Rail Strike Continuance Voted, 6-1, In Berlin

Berlin, June 14 (U.P.).—Fearful of Russian reprisals, West Berlin's rail workers voted 6 to 1 today to continue their 25-day-old strike against the Soviet-controlled railroads.

The vote was 12,626 to 2085.

Although the compromise offer balloted upon had been advanced by United States Brig. Gen. Frank L. Howley, he himself praised the strikers for their "very good sense."

Howley Charges Fright

Howley and British Maj. Gen. G. K. Bourne charged the Russians had frightened the Germans by welshing on their promise not to seek reprisals.

Right after the polls opened two organs of the Soviet military administration reported the Russians would not guarantee a thing to the workers.

Howley said on June 10 he and Soviet transport chief Gen. P. A. Kvashnin had "clearly and completely accepted" the compromise, including the no-reprisal agreement and a wage adjustment. He called Russia's repudiation of it a "180-degree change."

Howley and Bourne together accused the Russians of trying to prolong both the strike and the paralyzing rail blockade of Berlin on purpose "for political reasons."

Soviet Change Held Responsible

Taegliche Rundschau, a newspaper, and ADN, a press service, both semi-official Russian mouthpieces, reported at the last minute the Soviets refused to guarantee anything to the workers.

There was "no doubt" this had turned the vote, one official said.

Howley and Bourne then issued their strong statements questioning Russian motives.

"The Russians said at Lake Success they would lift the Berlin blockade and they have not done it," Howley told a press conference.

"The strike is a wonderful way out for them. It's another way to blockade," Howley asserted.

Big Four Work Late Seeking Some Accord

Paris, June 14 (AP).—The Big Four tonight struggled to patch up some sort of working agreement that would leave Germany on speaking terms, even though divided.

Even as the Foreign Ministers labored in secret session, striking German rail workers tossed another headache into their laps when they turned down a four-power formula for ending the strike which has reimposed blockade conditions on the former German capital.

There was a two-hour recess in today's conference while Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Vishinsky left, apparently to telephone Moscow from the Soviet Embassy.

Leaving the embassy, he went for a ride in Paris' famous park, Bois de Bologne. Then he returned to the embassy a second time before going back to the conference where the three Western Ministers had been waiting.

The Ministers then met for two more hours, pressing far beyond their usual quitting time and long after they were due at a reception at the French Foreign Office.

When they finally adjourned at 8:40 p.m., Vishinsky was the first to leave and he looked cheerful. But it was announced that no communique on the meeting would be issued.

An official said another secret session would be held Wednesday.

Authoritative sources said Vishinsky had asked that the meetings be secret, with reporters given no briefings by official observers.

By Chalmers M. Roberts
Post Reporter

The District Recreation Board in a torrid three-hour meeting yesterday took three actions on the controversial matter of Washington's segregated play areas and public meeting places.

The board:

1. Rejected, 5 to 2, moves to end segregation on playgrounds immediately.

2. Pledged instead, also by a 5-to-2 vote, "every possible and realistic effort" toward ending segregation in such time and manner "as may be consistent with the public interest, public order and effective administration."

3. Voted unanimously to throw open to interracial meetings both public school and recreation buildings. The school buildings will be nonsegregated after school hours.

The two 5-to-2 votes found these members in the majority: Chairman Harry S. Wender, James E. Schwab, Mrs. Andrew Saul, Albert Steinem, representing the Board of Education, and Geoffrey M. Thornett, representing the District Commissioners.

The minority consisted of Irving C. Root, National Capital Parks superintendent, representing the Interior Department, and Mrs. Alice C. Hunter, the only Negro on the seven-member board.

Wender, Schwab, Mrs. Saul and Mrs. Hunter are citizen representatives on the board and are appointees of the Commissioners.

Thornett, substituting for Walter Fowler, who was reported ill, said he received his instructions on how to vote "late last evening."

Immediately after the segregation votes, Wender proposed what he called a step "to begin to implement" the new gradual policy toward an end to racial barriers.

He reported that a Negro baseball player had been working out with a Police team and that the team wanted him to play in league games.

But, said Wender, he could not play in a league whose scheduling is handled by the Recreation Board

17 Rainless Days Set New Spring Mark

A record spring drought—17 continuous days without rainfall—was set for the Washington area yesterday.

The Weather Bureau saw "only a slight chance" of afternoon or evening showers today.

A 43-year-old mark was exceeded when yesterday passed without rain.

Not since 1906, when no rain fell for 16 straight days, from May 10 to May 25, inclusive, has there been such an extended spring dry spell, according to records of the Weather Bureau.

In the District, the continued hot, muggy weather may have been responsible for one death. In the agricultural areas of Maryland and Virginia, lack of rain was reaching a critical point.

The Weather Bureau forecast "warm and humid" for today and said there was "only a slight chance" of scattered showers in the afternoon or evening. Tempera-

Hose-Sprinkling Ban Imposed in Counties

Residents of nearby Montgomery and Prince Georges counties were ordered yesterday to stop using water for hose-sprinkling Move Is Afoot to Earmark Sales Tax Surplus for D. C.

By Thomas Winship
Post Reporter

District affairs leaders on Capital Hil, confident that the 2 per cent sales tax will yield more than current estimates, yesterday moved to earmark any surplus funds for city-wide capital improvements.

At a closed meeting before the Senate-House joint fiscal subcommittee, the Commissioners disclosed a proposal to spend $60,000,000 on permanent improvements over a five-year period.

The Commissioners' plan, presented by District Budget Officer Walter L. Fowler, would allocate $12,000,000 for capital outlay each year, beginning July 1, 1950.

This amount for permanent improvements, primarily for school, Health and Welfare Department construction, would approximately equal the anticipated revenue over and above the present operating cost of Government services, the city officials estimated.

The Commissioners based their proposal for a 12-million-dollar yearly capital outlay program on revenue estimates from all sources over the same five-year period.

Yield from the sales tax for fiscal year 1951 was set at $11,970,000, and at 12 million dollars annually in the following four years.

Both Senator Hunt (D., Wyo.) and Representative Howard W. Smith (D., Va.), committee co-chairman, conceded yesterday that the sales levy return figure was low.

Senator Hunt said that the income from the recently enacted

Carpenters' Strike Backed By $1,500,000

The District Carpenters Council is prepared to spend its entire treasury of $1,500,000 to win the two-week strike for a 10-cent-an-hour increase in pay in the Greater Washington construction industry, it was asserted yesterday.

Strikes Here Boost Unemployment Rolls

Unemployment rolls here have risen 108 per cent, and GI readjustment allowance figures have soared 146 per cent as a result of the strikes by carpenters and laborers, it was disclosed yesterday.

Nonstriking workers made idle by the construction industry strikes became eligible for benefits on June 8, or seven days after being furloughed.

In the week ending June 11, the new applicants for jobless payments of $C to $20 a week totaled 573 as against 275 for the previous week and the GI readjustment allowance payments of $20 a week jumped to 405 as against 166 the week before.

Carpenters and laborers on strike are not eligible for District unemployment compensation or GI readjustment allowance.

Annexation Faction Clinches Election In Falls Church

Falls Church annexationists seeking expansion of the city and a minimum of connection with Fairfax County, are assured of a majority in city council as a result of last night's election.

The annexation faction, besides reelecting incumbent Mayor Albert M. Orme, saw five outspoken proponents of its ideas elected to the nine-member city council.

The remaining four elected have either evaded the issue or represent a faction opposed to annexation on the ground that it means increased taxes.

Orme polled a total of 582 votes against 121 write-in votes for incumbent councilman Jack Eakin, who was not an announced candidate for either the mayoralty or council. Eakin is an anti-annexationist.

Annexationists elected to council were incumbent Councilmen Sherman Wells, J. H. McCarthy and Lee M. Rhoades; and Mrs. Dillon S. Myer, housewife, and Samuel H. McCrary, a Navy Department electrical engineer.

Also elected were Mandley T. Rust, a real estate operator of 607 Poplar dr., a member of the oppos-

Democrat Ahead After Trailing Early For City Council

The impossible in Alexandria city politics—the defeat of a Democratic candidate—almost came to pass yesterday.

The seven-man Democratic slate swept all of the city council seats at stake, but one Democrat, R. Samuel Luckett, an incumbent, squeezed in by an unofficial 76-vote margin.

A record total of 4682 ballots was cast in a municipal election which almost upset traditon. No one can remember in Alexandria's history when a candidate bearing the Democratic label had been beaten in a city election.

But for many hours last night it appeared that this had happened. With seven of the city's nine polling places reported, Luckett trailed Mayo Edwin Barrett and F. Clinton Knight, both independents.

Returns from the first ward's Armory precinct and the second precinct swept Luckett, a councilman for three years since his election as a write-in candidate, 76 votes past Barrett and 86 past Knight.

By polling the highest total of votes—3113—Franklin P. Backus, a political newcomer, became

1938 State Secrets Read At Hiss Trial

By Murrey Marder
Post Reporter

New York, June 14.—Confidential State Department documents, which Whittaker Chambers says were given to him by Alger Hiss, today were placed in the Hiss perjury trial record, along with original department papers.

Some of the documents that Chambers had were shown to be verbatim transcripts of what were state secrets in 1938. Others closely paraphrased originals that had been received in code from embassies, legations and consulate offices overseas.

A total of 20 of 47 such exhibits were read into the record today, and the remainder will be identified Wednesday, said Assistant United States Attorney Thomas F. Murphy, chief prosecutor.

Represents 167 Messages

The 47 exhibits comprise 65 typewritten sheets plus four handwritten documents. The entire documentation represents 167 cablegrams or messages, said Murphy, for in some cases there are as many as six or eight messages on a single typewritten page.

Most of the documents, it appeared, were among those publicly disclosed last December by the House Committee on Un-American Activities.

Among the few new documents disclosed today was a cryptic January 28, 1938, message referring to the mysterious Robinson-Rubens passport fraud case of that year and a hopeful message from William C. Bullitt, then Ambassador to France, discussing possibilities of averting World War II.

Murphy said the State Department still regards part of the Bullitt message as classified matter and gained court permission to withhold the original. Displayed in the courtroom, however, but not read into the record, was the bulk of that document as recorded in the papers Chambers alleges he received from Hiss.

Compared With Originals

Walter H. Anderson, chief of the records branch of the State Department's communication division, was on the witness stand all day to introduce original documents as Murphy compared them with those supplied by Chambers.

Anderson read "routing" notations on the 1938 originals, which showed they went to a wide variety of department offices, including the office of Francis B. Sayre, then Assistant Secretary of State.

At Murphy's direction, Anderson read from records showing that in Sayre's office at that time was Hiss, as assistant to Sayre; Eunice A. Lincoln, private secretary; Annabelle Newcomb, clerk, and Robert T. Greenfield, messenger.

Hiss, with his wife, Priscilla, seated beside him in the Federal courtroom, observed the proceedings closely, occasionally turning to talk to Mrs. Hiss.

Hiss has previously admitted that documents among those produced by Chambers are similar to papers that passed across his desk in Sayre's office. He has admitted that at least three of the four handwritten documents are in his writing.

But he has ridiculed the charge that he was a Communist and has flatly denied any knowledge of

DR. FRANK OPPENHEIMER JACQUINETTE OPPENHEIMER
Husband and wife admit former membership in Communist Party

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

Dr. Frank F. Oppenheimer, commended for his work on the atomic bomb and brother of a top authority on nuclear fission, said yesterday he was once a Communist.

The 36-year-old brother of Dr. J. Robert Oppenheimer, famed chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission's advisory council, said he and his wife were card-carrying members of the party for 3½ years, but he quit "long before" doing research on the bomb.

Less than an hour after he testified before the House Committee on Un-American Activities the University of Minnesota announced acceptance of young Oppenheimer's resignation as assistant professor of physics there.

Surprise to Witness

The news came as a surprise to the witness. He said he offered his resignation two or three days ago so as not to "embarrass" the university, but had not heard it had been accepted.

Oppenheimer, who worked for the radiation laborator, of the University of California from 1941 to 1946, said he was always a loyal American, had no knowledge of espionage activities and if he had, he would have reported it immediately.

He disclosed his former membership in the Communist Party in a statement to reporters after he and his wife testified before the committee in executive session.

Later he and his wife were recalled to give largely the same testimony in open session. They freely admitted belonging to the party, but balked at identifying as Communists a long list of names read to them by committee investigators.

Refuses to Answer

Oppenheimer refused to answer questions about the political beliefs of these, he said, because "that might be used to impugn the loyalty of others, whom I know nothing against."

He said he was "aware of the implications" of refusing to answer, but asked the committee not to "press" him.

Later Representative John S. Wood (D. Ga.), chairman of the committee, said Oppenheimer could be cited for contempt of Congress for not answering questions about persons he had known. Wood added: "I personally do not favor such a course when no important information is involved."

Near the close of the questioning, Louis J. Russell, senior investigator for the committee, said the record should show that Oppenheimer's former membership

U. S. Studying Oath of Red Sympathizer

The Justice Department is studying non-Communist oaths filed by three union officers, one of whom said he had quit the Communist Party but still believed in it.

Robert N. Denham, general counsel of the National Labor Relations Board, yesterday sent the department the oaths filed by the three men, all officers of the CIO United Furniture Workers Union.

The affidavits must be filed with the board by a union's officers before the union can obtain labor law protection from the board.

File Statement

Max Perlow, the union's secretary-treasurer, along with its president, Morris Pizer, and organization director, Ernest Marsh, filed the sworn statements that they are not Communists a few days ago.

They had refused to do so for a long time, but recently announced they were filing reluctantly because their union had lost 4000 members for lack of access to NLRB processes.

Perlow, in agreeing to sign, was quoted as saying he was quitting the Communist Party but was not forswearing its principles. He said he supported no organization "that believes in or teaches the overthrow of our Government by force and violence."

"Not a Communist"

The affidavits union officers must file with NLRB say:

"I am not a member of the Communist Party, or affiliated with such party. I do not believe in, and I am not a member of, nor do I support, any organization that believes in or teaches the overthrow of the United States Government by force or by any illegal or unconstitutional methods."

There is a penalty up to $10,000 fine and 10 years in jail for giving false information in the affidavits.

Denham said Perlow's quoted statements "tend to throw considerable doubt on the good faith of his affidavit." He made no comment upon the status of Pizer and

Rules Committee Forwards Housing Bill to House Floor

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

Reversing its previous stand, the House Rules Committee yesterday cleared for floor action the Administration's gigantic housing bill, largest in the Nation's history.

The House is slated to take up the measure Tuesday. President Truman made the bill one of his major campaign issues.

Staving off action to bypass it under the revised rules of the House, the Rules group sent the bill to the floor open to all amendments with a provision for eight hours of general debate.

Two Democrats and a Republican switched their votes to allow the House to vote on the measure, although it is understood they still oppose the bill.

The three who switched were understood to be Representatives Colmer (D., Miss.), Cox (D., Ga.) and Herter (R., Mass.).

Cox issued a statement terming the bill "one of the most dangerous legislative proposals that has arisen in my memory."

He said he was "certain" the measure would reach the floor anyway," and since that is so I believe that considering it under a special rule will afford better opportunity for resistance than would be the case if considered under the new discharging rule."

The new machinery, already put into motion after the Rules Committee's original blocking of the measure, would have allowed Chairman Spence (D., Ky.) of the House Banking Committee to bring the bill up June 27 without Rules clearance.

The Rules action brings the bill to the floor a week earlier than

New Report Of FBI Held Irrelevant By Judge

Ickes May Take Stand Today as First Defense Witness in Case

By Bill Brinkley
Post Reporter

A "top secret" FBI report on Communist intelligence activities in this Nation now locked in a safe in the criminal division of the Justice Department yesterday was kept from an airing before the world by a vigorous judicial ruling in the Judith Coplon espionage case.

But the question of whether or not it is eventually to be published in open court, as the defense asked, was only temporarily decided.

Harold Ickes, former Secretary of the Interior, will be called as the first defense witness today as the trial of the suspended Government girl in District Court resumes, it was announced last night.

Condons May Testify

Dr. Edward U. Condon, director of the National Bureau of Standards, and his wife will also take the witnesss stand today if Judge Albert L. Reeves allows it.

Prosecution has said it will challenge the calling of Ickes and the Condons on grounds of irrelevancy to the case of Miss Coplon, charged with stealing Justice Department data.

This challenge should appear either directly before Archibald Palmer, Miss Coplon's lawyer, tries to bring them to the stand or directly after they actually step into the witness box.

If they do testify, the court will hear in the persons of Ickes and Condon two outspoken critics of the FBI.

Condon has demanded that FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover personally apologize to his wife—if "he is man enough"—for a reference to Mrs. Condon in one of the secret FBI documents introduced at the trial.

Ickes' Aide Named

Ickes' name turned up in one of the FBI documents in connection with Ruth Gruber, who worked in the Interior Department when he was its chief and was "reported to have been a contact of F. A. Garinin of the Soviet Embassy." Miss Gruber has denied this.

Ickes, said Palmer, is being called to "show the lies in FBI reports" and similarly Mrs. Condon: "to show the dirty gossip, backyard gossip, barroom gossip" in them.

Dr. Condon, the attorney said, is wanted because of his connection with the atomic energy program to demonstrate that "it's a bunch of nonsense about Russia stealing the atom bomb—just like these spy charges against Judith Coplon are a bunch of nonsense."

Mrs. Condon was said in an FBI report to have furnished to a Washington businessman, Morton E. Kent, the address of a Bulgarian U. N. employe suspected of being a Russian agent. Kent's former employer said he probably wanted the address to sell some supplies to

Stock Market Stages Mild Rally After Slumping

New York, June 14 (AP).—A half-hearted rally gave the stock market a little lift today following Monday's plunge to the lowest in 4½ years.

Final prices showed a majority of gains running from a few cents to around $1 a share.

The market's best gains were scored soon after the opening. Buying lacked punch, though, and most final prices were well under the day's best marks.

Business news was no better than it has been for weeks. The market has dropped sharply during the past month, however, and Wall Street quarters said at least a temporary interruption was overdue.

Some key stocks closing higher were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem Steel, General Motors, Chrysler, Montgomery Ward, Great Northern preferred, Illinois Central, N. Y. Central, Nickel Plate, Standard Oil (N.J.) and Westinghouse Electric.

Business was comparatively lively, with more than 1 million shares traded.

Coplon Trial Denied Secret FBI Report

U. S. Code Cited

Miss Coplon Was Indicted On 2 Counts

There are two counts in the Washington indictment against Judith Coplon, now on trial. They charge violations of Sections 793 and 2071, respectively, of Title 18 of the United States Code.

The first count says that Miss Coplon, in the period from December 10, 1948, to March 4, 1949, took intelligence reports from Justice Department files "with intent and reason to believe that the information was to be used to the injury of the United States and to the advantage of a foreign nation."

The second count says the documents were "certain extracts and summaries of reports of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, known as data slips, containing intelligence reports relating to espionage and counterespionage activities in the United States."

Maximum Penalty Is 13 Years

Maximum penalty under the indictment on these two counts is a fine of $12,000 and 13 years imprisonment.

In addition, Miss Coplon and Valentin Gubitchev, Russian U. N. employe arrested with her, are charged in New York with conspiracy to commit espionage.

The New York indictment says in part:

"It was part of said conspiracy that . . . Judith Coplon . . . for the purpose of obtaining information respecting the national defense and with intent and reason to believe that the information was to be used to the injury of the United States and to the advantage of a foreign nation, would copy, take, make and obtain documents . . . relating to espionage and counterespionage activities in the United States."

Gubitchev Accused

This indictment also says that Gubitchev, "a citizen of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics," unlawfully attempted to obtain this intelligence from Miss Coplon.

Under the New York indictment, Miss Coplon could be sent to prison for 35 years and fined $20,000. Gubitchev is liable to a maximum penalty of 15 years imprisonment and $20,000 fine.

the Bulgarian. Kent committed suicide here June 4.

A double-lined crowd was on hand yesterday to see the defense open its case in the trial of Miss Coplon, who was arrested March 4 in New York with Valentin Gubitchev, then a Soviet U. N. engineer.

Yesterday's climactic moment was Judge Reeves' ringing denial of Defense Attorney Palmer's efforts to have produced in open court the "top secret" FBI report on Communist intelligence activities in this country.

On a personal scale, it was the ascent of the burning feeling between Palmer and Chief Prosecutor John M. Kelley, jr., to a point where the two attorneys placed an armchair between themselves to ward off physical contact.

The document sought by Palmer was mentioned in a typewritten note found in Miss Coplon's purse when she was arrested with the Russian Gubitchev in New York. The note said in part:

"I have not been able (and don't think I will) to get the top secret FBI report which I described to Michael on Soviet and Communist Intelligence activities in the U. S. When the moment was favorable I asked Foley where the report was (He'd previously remarked that he'd had such a report); he said that some departmental official had it and he didn't expect to get it back. When I saw the report for a minute I breezed through it rapidly . . ."

William E. Foley, who was Miss Coplon's boss in the Foreign Agents Registration Section of the Justice Department before she was suspended following her indictment, was on the stand yesterday and Palmer asked him where the report was.

"It's in the safe in the Criminal Divisior of the Department of Justice," Foley said.

"I ask that the Government be directed to produce this top secret report," Palmer said.

The jurist immediately denied the request, and sharply. "It is not competent material," he said.

Palmer protested. He claimed it was just as relevant as the confidential FBI documents Judge Reeves had ordered produced last week over intense Government objections.

Kelley Objects

Prosecutor Kelley arose to point up a difference between the two matters:

Judge Reeves, he said, had ruled the 34 FBI investigative reports must be produced in full because parts of them had been introduced in the Government's case. These are the documents back of the "data slips" the Government charged were found in Miss Coplon's purse at the time of her arrest.

But the "top secret" report on Communist activities in this country was a different matter, he said, because the Government had not attempted to introduce any part of it. He said there were no grounds upon which the defense could demand it be brought into evidence.

Palmer then said he would issue a subpena to get the report and Judge Reeves said he would hear the matter further then.

The Government announced it would continue vigorously to oppose bringing the report into evidence.

The typewritten note found in Miss Coplon's purse about the report picks up:

"When I saw the report for a minute, I breezed through it rapidly, remember very little. It was about 115 pages in length; summarized first Soviet 'intelligence' activities, including Martens, Lore, Poyntz, Altschuler, Silvermaster, et al.

"It had heading on Soviet U. N. delegation but that was all I remember. The rest of the report I think was on Polish, Yugo, etc., activities and possibly some info on the CP, USA."

Palmer has said the reference in the first sentence of the note, ". . . the top secret FBI report which I described to Michael on Soviet and Communist intelligence activities in the U. S.," is to the Archangel Michael.

The Archangel Michael, the defense contends, is one of the central characters in a novel which Miss Coplon was writing on the Washington scene.

She copied from secret FBI documents to gather material for the novel: this is one of the two principal defenses Palmer has to date indicated for her.

The other is that she was seeing Valentin Gubitchev, the Russian, not to give him Americal secrets, but because she was in love or falling in love with him.

Before opening its case yesterday, the defense moved for a directed verdict of "not guilty" on the grounds for one thing, that the Government had failed to prove its charges of espionage against the 5-feet, 100-pound Barnard College honor graduate.

Judge Reeves denied the motion and the defense launched its case.

From Kenneth T. Delavigne, supervisor of the FBI's Washington field office, Palmer tried vaily to get testimony about FBI shadowing of Miss Coplon in Washington, including names of agents and how many. Judge Reeves ruled out this whole line of testimony as irrelevant.

Another defense witness was Guy Hottel, special agent in charge of the Washington field office of the FBI.

Besides Ickes and Dr. and Mrs. Condon, the defense attorney announced he was calling as witnesses today Dean L. Schedler, director of public relations in the Justice Department, and Howard B. Fletcher, inspector at FBI headquarters.

Kelley objected over and over again yesterday to Palmer's questioning of his own witnesses—the FBI agents—as being cross and not direct examination.

"It appears obvious and patent that counsel is on a fishing expedition," he said.

"I want to make it patent they're trying to close the doors on evidence," Palmer rejoined.

"There are no doors being closed here," Judge Reeves reprimanded the defense lawyer. "Don't say that again. There are no doors being closed here."

"My objection goes to the relevancy of this material," Kelley again objected.

"What does he want to do, get the girl in jail too fast?" Palmer barked back.

Dr. Bush Cites Nazis' Error On Research

Baltimore, June 14 (AP).—"The Nazis had not even reached first base" in atomic energy research by the end of the war, Dr. Vannevar Bush declared today.

Dr. Bush, president of the Carnegie Institution of Washington, was wartime chairman of the Office of Scientific Research and Development.

At Johns Hopkins University graduation exercises, Dr. Bush said the Nazi scientists, hampered by regimentation, "had not accomplished 5 per cent" of the atomic energy enterprise successfully concluded by the scientists and military men of the democracies.

The reason for the Nazis' failure was not the lack of critical materials, he said, but that "their war organization under that system (totalitarian) was a botch."

The keynote of atomic energy research in the United States was the fact that "it was on an essentially democratic basis," Dr. Bush stated.

Referring to the Communist regime in Russia, the scientist noted that "we are still in competition with the principle of regimentation, of totalitarianism."

"The competition is real and vigorous," he declared. "The threat it suggests is a real threat, not one from which we should facilely be beguiled by such events as the lifting of an absurd blockade."

However, he advised that the future should be faced "with calm and confidence engendered not only by our settled conviction of the relative strength of democracy but also by our recognition of the inherent weakness of the system which raucously rants against us."

That weakness, Dr. Bush said, is "the fact that dictatorship can tolerate no real independence of thought or expression."

Degrees were conferred on 942 candidates.

Marsh. He said that under the law the NLRB accepts such affidavits at face value and the union is now qualified to do business with the NLRB. Any investigation is up to the Justice Department, he added.

Denham said that if the sworn statements should be proved false, the union leaders would lose their standing with the NLRB.

This is the first time Denham or the NLRB has checked any non-Communist oaths to the Justice Department. However, the department is reported investigating a number out of the 102,000 filed with the board by local and international unions.

'If He Asks'

Committee Votes Hearing For Condon

The House Un-American Committee yesterday voted unanimously to hear Dr. Edward U. Condon, director of the Bureau of Standards, "if he asks for a hearing."

If he fails to make a formal request, Representative Richard M. Nixon (R., Calif.) said he will press for a hearing anyway.

The group was widely criticized in 1948 when a subcommittee, without hearing Condon, issued a report saying he was "one of the weakest links" in the atomic security chain.

Condon Asked Hearing

Condon hotly denied the charge and publicly demanded a hearing. Advised yesterday of the committee's action, Dr. Condon said he would wait until he is notified formally before he decides whether to ask for a hearing.

Representative John S. Wood (D., Ga.), chairman of the House committee, said he wasn't instructed to do so "but I'll see he gets formal notification."

Nixon denied Condon ever has asked the committee for a hearing on the 1948 report.

Should Be Settled

He said the old controversy ought to be settled "once and for all," particularly in the light of developments in the espionage trial of Judith Coplon, former Justice Department analyst, accused of stealing FBI secrets to help Russia.

An FBI report read into the Coplon trial record quoted an unidentified informant as saying Dr. Condon's wife arranged a contact between a Russian-born Washington businessman and a suspected Soviet espionage agent.

Dr. Condon twice demanded that FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover publicly apologize for the report "if he is man enough to do so." He called the passages relating to Mrs. Condon "10-cent mystery story stuff."

Clark Can't Talk Now

Hoover declined comment, but Attorney General Tom Clark indicated he may have something to say later.

"I can't comment now because there's a trial on," said Clark.

He said he hasn't yet taken the matter up with President Truman.

The Un-American Activities Committee took no action on a proposal that it investigate alleged Communist influences in the stevedore strike in Hawaii, but Chairman Wood said "we may decide to send an investigator over there."

Was Communist, Says Frank Oppenheimer

in the Communist party was known to Maj. Gen. Leslie R. Groves, head of the Manhattan project. He said an "outstanding scientist" had vouched for Oppenheimer's loyalty.

Later Russell told newsmen the outstanding scientist was Frank's brother, J. Robert Oppenheimer.

Dr. J. Robert Oppenheimer, wartime head of the Los Alamos (N. Mex.) atomic laboratories, and now head of the AEC's advisory council and president of the Institute for Advanced Study at Princeton, testified before the Senate-House Atomic Committee Monday. He said the AEC has "sweated blood" to protect its secrets, and that some of the information now closely guarded could safely be made public.

Frank Oppenheimer said he knew of no connection between his call to appear before the committee yesterday and his brother's testimony Monday. He said he was subpenaed to testify June 3.

Accompanied by his wife, Jacquinette, Frank Oppenheimer handed the press copies of a letter he received from General Groves in September, 1945, terming it "sufficient testimony of my own loyalty to my country."

Research Work Praised

The letter said Frank Oppenheimer's work at the radiation laboratory, which with the work of others led to the electro-magnetic process for separation of uranium, "was an essential factor in our success. Groves also praised his research work in the Tennessee and New Mexico projects and expressed "grateful thanks for your indispensable part in our success."

Frank Oppenheimer's prepared statement, released to newsmen before the committee lifted the lid on the hearings, said in part:

"My wife and I joined the Communist Party in 1937, seeking an answer to the problems of unemployment and want in the wealthiest and most productive country in the world. We did not find in the Communist Party the vehicle through which to accomplish the progressive changes we were interested in and so we left it about three and a half years later and never rejoined. Our connection with the Communist Party ended long before the establishment of the Manhattan project . . .

"I realize that—whether justified or not—real fears exist in the minds of many Americans concerning the security of our atomic program. Lest the report of any one-time connection with the Communist Party be used to stimulate those fears, I would like to say in conclusion that I have certainly never engaged in espionage or turned over secret information to any unauthorized person: I have no knowledge of any instance of espionage or the unauthorized delivery of secret information. Had I knowledge or even suspicion of such conduct, on the part of anyone, I would have reported it immediately . . .

Under questioning, Oppenheimer said he had met Steve Nelson, Communist Party organizer in western Pennsylvania, at two "purely social" gatherings in Berkeley, Calif., after he (Oppenheimer) had left the Communist party.

"I presume he was a member of the Communist Party," said the witness.

That was as close as he got to identifying the political beliefs of anyone.

In a report last September, the committee said Nelson was involved in Communist espionage at Berkeley. A "Scientist X" mentioned in the case has never been identified, but committee sources said it was not Oppenheimer.

Oppenheimer said he knew Dr. Joseph Weinberg, another atomic scientist, but didn't know whether Weinberg was or is a Red.

Russell asked if he ever met Nelson in the home of Dr. Weinberg.

"No, sir," Oppenheimer said flatly.

Asks About Others There

Russell asked about persons who attended meetings he (Russell) said had been held in the home of Frank Oppenheimer or in the home of Frank J. Malina.

Oppenheimer declined to identify Malian or persons who might have attended such meetings. Russell told the committee he had information in connection with another investigation that indicated Malina was a member of the Communist party and that cell meetings had been held either at his home or at the Oppenheimers' home. Mrs. Oppenheimer said she knew Malina, she thought, when they lived at Pasadena, but like her husband she declined to go into the political beliefs of others.

She made an exception in the case of an Isaac Folkoff, whom she identified as a financial agent of the Communist party. She said she did so because Folkoff "told everybody" he was a Commie.

Under questioning, she said she made a $600 personal loan to a Bramlee Shirek, but again balked at discussing Shirek's beliefs.

Oppenhemer testified that he left the Communist party in late 1939 or early 1940.

Asked how you "resign" from the Communist party, Oppenheimer said: "You just leave—you don't go to any more meetings or pay any more dues."

Used Only Own Name

When he joined the party, he said he was asked to take a second name. He said he thought that so "ludicrous" that he put down "Frank Folsom," after a jail in California, "but I never used any but my own."

He said he sometimes carried his Communist card with him—once it was sent to the cleaners in his laundry and returned in an envelope. Mrs. Oppenheimer said she thought she left the cards issued her in her dresser drawer.

Asked why she left the Communist Party, Mrs. Oppenheimer said she found individual members had little say about its policies.

"No matter what I said or other people said, it didn't do any good," she said. "That isn't the democratic way."

After the committee hearings, reporters asked Oppenheimer about his public denial in July, 1947, of a news story that he was a member of the Communist Party in 1937, 1938 and 1939. Oppenheimer at that time was quoted as calling the story a "complete fabrication." Oppenheimer said yesterday he would rather not comment.

Methodists Plan to Sponsor Training of Labor Leaders

New York, June 14 (AP).—Bishop G. Bromley Oxnam of the Methodist church disclosed today that steps have been taken to develop labor leaders within the framework of the Methodist church.

Bishop Oxnam first outlined such a program in 1944. He subsequently presented it to the denomination's governing body, the Methodist General Conference, in 1948. The bishop said in an interview today that a special commission of bishops has been charged with implementing the scheme.

Under Oxnam's plan, 50 college juniors would be selected each year for Methodist scholarships to graduate schools in labor relations.

Upon completion of such studies candidates would enter industrial concerns and affiliate with labor organizations. They would refuse advancement to managerial duties in favor of union activity. Oxnam believes that "in 20 years, 1000 intellectually able men and women could be brought into the labor movement to influence it along Christian lines."

At the end of five or six years of union activity the young Methodist would be given a year more of graduate study and travel, Oxnam asserted.

"They would not be ministers, but Methodist laymen—especially dedicated to the ministry as it pertains to labor problems."

Frustrated Busman Called Dangerous

Toronto, June 14 (AP).—Prof. Karl Bernhardt, University of Toronto psychologist, told members of the Canadian Transit Association today that a motorman or bus driver who resents his boss or hates his wife is a potential danger to passengers he carries, because "a man drives as he lives."

Army Says 'Unemployable' Really Meant 'Unavailable'

They Drop an Army Word . . .

Maj. Roy R. May — Gordon Gray — Associated Press Photos Maj. R. W. Morrison

They explain why TVA Chairman Clapp was tagged "unemployable"

By The Associated Press

A Senate committee put the Army on the pan yesterday for applying the term "unemployable" to TVA Chairman Gordon R. Clapp. It concluded an "injustice" had been done the agency head.

In its turn, the Army banned forever "unemployable" from official military-ese as "a bad word."

When the hearing ended, Senator Kefauver (D., Tenn.) told reporters the Senate group was "thoroughly convinced that an injustice was inflicted on Clapp."

Red-face apologies previously issued from the Pentagon last week when the appellation became known.

Was 'Unavailable'

Gray and Assistant Secretary Tracey Vorhees told the committee flatly yesterday:

"There is absolutely nothing in military intelligence files that reflects on Clapp's loyalty or integrity or in any other manner."

Gray testified "unemployable" had been used to "denote unavailability" of Clapp for a 90-day lecture assignment with the Military Government in Germany. The request for the assignment had come from Germany.

Maj. Read W. Harrison, the officer who marked Clapp "unemployable," testified he did not know Clapp was the TVA head, but concluded he was "unavailable as far as we were concerned, and I marked him 'unemployable' because that's the term we've always used."

Eight witnesses, headed by Gray and Vorhees, did their level best to convince the Senators no slur was intended on Clapp's loyalty or ability.

Files Kept Secret

Gray promised a revision of procedures to prevent a recurrence. He said instructions are being sent to all branches of the Army to remove the word "unemployable" where it occurs and substitute instead "unavailable."

While assured Army intelligence files did not reflect on Clapp's loyalty, the committee was refused access to their contents for security reasons. The only mention of Clapp's name, an Army personnel officer said, was in the cross-reference file — wherein Clapp's name appeared in an Army interview, or was used as a reference by someone.

AEC Explains How Plant's Costs Rose

An explanation of why costs of a plutonium plant at the Hanford, Wash., Works zoomed from 6 to 25-million dollars was released at 10 o'clock last night by the Atomic Energy Commission.

Not many hours earlier it had been announced that Senator Bourke B. Hickenlooper (R., Iowa) would question AEC Chairman David E. Lilienthal on this matter at an open session of the Joint Atomic Energy Committee today.

The AEC release said speed and considerations of safety had jumped the estimates of the cost of the plutonium plant.

"Of Urgent Importance"

"The overriding consideration," soon as the design was started." possible completion of this vital installation because of its relation to the results of the 1948 Eniwetok tests."

Speed was essential, the Commission said, because the plant is "of urgent importance to the national defense."

Hickenlooper said he would demand to know why the Commission originally estimated the cost of the plant at $6,255,000 and later said it would reach $24,950,000.

He cited the revised estimate in support of his charges of "incredible mismanagement" against Lilienthal.

In giving its side of the case even before Lilienthal's appearance before the Joint Committee, the Commission said the original estimate made in December, 1947, by General Electric Co. was necessarily tentative because there were no detailed plans available at that time.

'Safety Consideration'

"Because of the great urgency of the project," said the Commission, "construction was begun as soo nas the design was started."

"Considerations of safety" brought about changes in design as work went ahead on the plant, to be used in the final refining and fabrication of plutonium metal.

"Plutonium is a deadly material," said the commission. "The General Electric Co. and the commission have modified the design of this plant to assure safety not only of the workers engaged in processing the material in the plant, but also of people and animals even at considerable distances from the plant.

"Design changes were made not only for safety but also to insure more dependable and continuous production of higher quality materials. These added to the cost."

Expenditures Revealed

The commission said a part of the plant will be in production June 27 and the remainder will be completed as rapidly as possible.

The commission also made public for the first time the extent of its expenditures at Hanford between July 1, 1947, and last April 30. There were 34 major construction projects undertaken at Hanford, all now completed or in their final stages.

The initial indicated cost of the projects was $230,602,000, which figure now has been increased about 3 per cent to $237,162,000, the commission said.

Red on Trial Calls Communism 'A Vision, Dream'

New York, June 14 (AP).—An Illinois party official took the stand at the Communist conspiracy trial today and destified he never has regretted his teen-age dedication to the ideals of Marxism-Leninism.

The official, Gilbert Green of Chicago, second defendant to testify, declared that Marxism-Leninism "represented to me a vision, a dream, something to fight and work for," He added.

"I decided to dedicate myself to that ideal. I do not regret it today, nor shall I ever."

The 42-year-old Green, Illinois chairman of the Communist Party, said he joined the party when he was 18 or 19, but that he was converted to Marxism by his reading before then.

He began his testimony after John Gates, editor of the Communist Daily Worker, stepped down. Gates had been on the stand more than three weeks.

All 11 Communist leaders on trial are scheduled to testify. They are accused of conspiracy to advocate the forcible overthrow of the United States Government.

Dock Strike to End

London, June 14 (U.P.) — Some 1500 dock workers at Avonmouth, the Port of Bristol, today yielded to strong government pressure and voted to end their strike at 8 a. m. tomorrow.

Red Unrest Rears Head Among 300 On 'Crusoe's' Isle

Valparaiso, Chile, June 14 (U.P.) An outbreak of apparently Communist-inspired unrest on 'Robinson Crusoe's island" was reported today by an official of the tiny Chilean South Sea possession.

Dario Infante, Chilean government representative on the island of Juan Fernandez, reported to the governor of Valparaiso province that the island's 300 people were growing increasingly hostile to him and to the government. He blamed an island dweller who had been converted to communism.

(Alexander Selkirk, the Scottish sailor whose adventures inspired Daniel Defoe to write the novel "Robinson Crusoe," was cast away on Juan Fernandez for four years early in the eighteenth century.)

Cominform Calls For Front Against Americanism

Bucharest, Romania, June 14 (AP) Communism's leaders called today for a world front against what they called United States efforts to "poison" working classes with Americanism.

The call was contained in the Communist International Information Bureau (Cominform) bulletin published here.

"The United States today is the center of ideological and political reaction," the journal of the Moscow-led Cominform declared editorially.

It said the job of keeping American philosophy from spreading was now the "cardinal task" of Communist-led countries and "the Communist movement in capitalist countries," presumably including the United States.

'38 State Secrets Read Into Trial Record

how the papers were obtained by Chambers, whom he said he once befriended in the belief Chambers was a 'free-lance writer."

Chambers, an admitted former courier for a Communist spy ring, is the chief prosecution witness in this trial in which Hiss is accused of perjury for denying to a Federal grand jury that he gave Chambers any documents in early 1938, or even saw Chambers after January 1, 1937.

The documents themselves are obviously the key evidence in the case, and upon the completion of Anderson's testimony—sometime Wednesday—the prosecution will bring an FBI typewriter expert to the stand in an attempt to prove that the typed copies were prepared on a typewriter used in the Hisses' Georgetown home.

Inasmuch as the prosecution is still presenting its case, the defense, headed by Attorney Lloyd Paul Stryker, has not yet attempted to explain how the documents might have come into Chamber's possession.

Hiss, in previous appearances before the House committee, the Federal grand jury and the FBI, said he could provide no answer to this question, but suggested close scrutiny of Chambers' activities.

Large Stands for Exhibits

Two large wooden stands today were placed in the courtroom on a platform adjoining the bench of United States District Court Judge Samuel H. Kaufman. On the stands were photographic enlargements—some 5 feet long by 3 feet wide—of the documents that Chambers said he hid away in 1938 after renouncing communism.

Murphy rebuffed a defense offer to agree to stipulate that the documents were copies from official papers, making it clear that he had no intention of foregoing the opportunity to impress the jury with the material.

Instead, Murphy read at length from some of the documents that were in Chambers' possession, then read comparable portions from the department originals.

After each reading, he asked Anderson to state what offices received copies, and Anderson would read off a list including the offices of the Secretary, Undersecretary, legal adviser, political adviser, European division, Far Eistern division, division of current information and "Assistant Secretary Sayre."

Two documents, the record showed, specifically were initialed "A. H."

Anderson explained that the codes employed included the "gray" and "green" codes of less confidential nature—requiring paraphrasing of textual material for further use—and "A through D, letter codes."

He said "the farther down the alphabet you go the more confidential the code becomes." Some documents, he said, were in the "D code . . . the most confidential in the department."

The controversial Bullitt cable concerned a talk that Bullitt had with Yvon Delbos, then French Foreign Minister under Premier Camille Chautemps, in which Delbos said he learned Adolph Hitler was "intensely interested in the 'humanization of warfare.'"

That portion of the message displayed in the courtroom today immediately brought speculation about whether the remainder was either a high secret blunderingly ignored by whoever copied it; something of a nature "embarrassing" to the Government, or whether its importance was just overrated. Most speculation centered on the last-mention grounds.

The viewable part read:

"France.

"January 25. Bullitt cabled that 'in the course of a long conversation last night Delbos said that after his return from Geneva he hoped to inaugurate active moves for reconciliation with Germany.

" 'He said that he felt that the Government of the United States would be of great assistance in promoting such reconciliation. The Germans had even today an enormous respect for the United States and a latent fear of the United States, and the American Ambassador in Berlin should be able to exercise a powerful influence for peace.

Door to Reconciliation

" 'Delbos went on to say that all the information he received recently indicated that Hitler was intensely interested in the "humanization of warfare." He, Delbos, believed that the only civilized way to humanize war was to have no war, but he and Chautemps felt that this interest of Hitler's in the "humanization of warfare" might be used as the door to real Franco-German reconciliation.' "

This phrasing was what heighted the belief that the remainder of the message—in view of Hitler's all-out attack on western Europe in World War II—was more embarrassing than secret.

In a January 12, 1938, message, Bullitt quoted Delbos as saying, "Hitler said he would like to come to the Paris exposition but he quite realized that there are some people in France who didn't love him."

The 1938 message touching on the Robinson-Rubens case was one of the four handwritten documents introduced, and Anderson said portions of the original were in the "gray" code. The document read:

"M28 tel from Mary Martin, widow of Hugh Martin, formerly employed for special work by legation at Riga. (gray) Remember well Rubens while working for Hugh. Be strict if needed. Write Library of Congress, law division. (end gray)."

It was signed "Henderson"—Loy Henderson, then American Charge D'Affaires in Moscow.

Arrested by Russians

Mrs. Ruth Marie Rubens of Long Island, N. Y., was arrested by the Russians in Moscow on December 10, 1937, under the name of Mrs. Donald Robinson, a week after the disappearance of her husband, Adolph Arnold Rubens.

Two days before her arrest, Henderson interviewed her and she told him her husband, who she said was an American, also, was missing. After her arrest, Henderson interviewed her again, in prison, on February 11, 1938, but she refused his aid.

The couple completely disappeared from sight. Later it was learned they had entered Russia on false passports in the name of Robinson, and the Russians charged they were American spies. In March, 1939, however, the Rubenses were among nine persons indicted by a Federal grand jury in New York on charges of participating in an international passport fraud ring believed to have supplied passports to foreign spies. Only three of the nine defendants were located to stand trial, and they were convicted and sentenced to two years' imprisonment.

Last August 31, when Chambers came here with a subcommittee of the House Committee on Un-American Activities, he accused a man named Alexander Stevens as really being "J. Peters—head of the Communist underground in the United States since 1934."

Chambers said Peters was the man who arranged the fake passports for the Rubenses and other members of the Communist Party. Peters, who was recently deported, was described in the Hiss trial by Chambers as one of the men who introduced Chambers to Hiss.

Curious Aspect to Note

There was a curious aspect to another of the handwritten notes, which concerned a four-page cable from Paris, dated March 2, 1938.

It said the American attache in Paris had learned that the "Chinese are still getting a few airplanes from France via the Indo-China route," and that the Chinese had placed an order "in France for 30 Potez 63 planes, a light bomber-pursuit plane."

After Murphy read part of the original, however, Stryker asked him to read the remainder—which did not appear in the Chambers papers. This section, which for some reason was not passed on, quoted an informant as saying that "the Japanese may be preparing to move against the Russian maritime provinces."

The two remaining handwritten documents dealt with the construction of British battleships and troop movements in China.

Among the typewritten documents introduced was a 22-page statement concerning economic policies in Manchuria. Anderson said his original came to the State Department from the War Department.

Another document, in top secret D code, dated January 5, 1938, discussed French apprehension that "the involvement of the United States in war in the Far East would mean catastrophe for France." It was signed "Bullitt." A second section of the document, from a different source, said there was "not the slightest chance that Britain would go to war with Japan no matter what insults she would receive . . ." It added what now appears incongruous — 11 years later—"latest information from Russia was that Russia would continue to supply arms and ammunition to Chiang Kai-shek but would positively not become involved in the war . . ."

From Italian Official

A January 12, 1938, cable quoted information received from the Italian charge d'affaires in Paris to the effect that Italy "would not be disturbed in the least if Germany should absorb Austria . . ."

One exchange of telegrams between Secretary of State Cordell Hull and the American Ambassador at Rome in January, 1938, said President Franklin D. Roosevelt "was greatly disturbed" about a report that "80 aircraft and 50 Italian airmen, some recently returned from the Spanish front, have been ordered to Japan . . ."

Further investigation was ordered to check on this.

Other messages dealt with British efforts to purchase B-17 bombers, Japanese feelers for a Swiss loan, Russian trucks and planes reported operating near Hankow, China, and Japanese troop movements in Formosa and China.

During the trial session, Judge Kaufman denied a request by Hiss' attorney for personal examination of statements given to the FBI by Chambers.

Judge Kaufman said he inspected FBI notes of conversations with Chambers in 1942 and 1945 and he noted wide discrepancies. He said Chambers stated he "was a member of the Communist Party from 1924 until 1937." (Chambers has since contended that he erred in giving his date of his "break" with the party, stating it actually was in April, 1938.)

At no time in those talks, said Kaufman, did Chambers make any statement about receiving papers from Hiss, and Chambers told the FBI his Communist "courier" work had not involved gathering information for Russian agents—which he now charges.

Chambers later stated that he withheld these accusations to prevent injuring Hiss "any more than necessary." Chambers first made the present range of charges last November.

Judge Kaufman said he then examined statements given to the FBI by Chambers last December, and they contained "nothing inconsistent . . . with the testimony he has given here."

OUTDOOR LIVING ROOMS

Why not move outside this summer? Take advantage of the air, sunshine and cool breeze as long as you can. With a little thought and very little expense you can turn your porch into a comfortable room.

Like the other rooms in your home, the porch should be furnished to give the greatest amount of comfort and beauty the space allows. Easy chairs and low tables are always popular.

The color scheme is up to you . . . but for perfect harmony it should match the rug, or floor coloring. Green, orange and yellow often make a gay combination.

It's fun to furnish a porch because of the great latitude allowed. No matter what your budget is, you'll find new and exciting pieces of furniture to fit it.

Just because you're furnishing a porch, don't think for a minute that you have to stick to rustic, outdoor type of furniture . . . go ahead and use what you like, watching scale, of course. Show some individuality . . . it will pay off in a porch where you and your friends will want to spend many friendly hours.

If there's any way we can help make your porch a better place to live, let us know.

Big Four Work Late

give an answer today to Western proposals made Sunday and Saturday, and perhaps offer counter-proposals. These proposals were reported authoritatively to call for Soviet written guarantees of full transport rights into Berlin from the West in return for an agreed rate of exchange between East and Westmarks to facilitate trade.

Vishinsky's delays in answering the proposals and the break in the meeting suggested the Kremlin was watching closely the diplomatic operations here, and perhaps controling them directly.

The Western powers' latest proposal officially reported under consideration was the creation of a four-power board in Germany to replace the wrecked Allied Control Council.

Russia still would have a veto on the board, and it might satisfy Russia's demand for reconstitution of the council. Its power would be limited, however, to consultation on general economic matters, to encourage trade and commerce and freedom of movement of individuals and to settle specific problems and disputes as they arise.

It would have little authority, but it would provide a means for the four powers to keep an avenue of negotiation open.

The proposal was reported to include an all-German economic trade commission to function under the four-power board. This commission would include representatives from East and West zonal economic councils.

Authoritative sources said the West again had demanded that Russia show some indication of good faith in talks on the Austrian treaty.

The West has agreed to meet Soviet demands for 150 million dollars of German assets in Austria if she would drop her support of Yugoslav territorial claims against the country.

There were some indications the Soviet reply had been favorable. But it still was considered doubtful if a completed treaty would come out of this conference.

Howley's in tone, saying, "It now appears the Russians want to continue (the strike) for political reasons."

"Try and keep poor Kvashnin's name out of it," Howley asked newsmen. "He was sincere in wanting to settle the strike but someone on the top overruled him.

"The orders must have come from higher up because Kvashnin was sincere in his desire to end the strike. I don't know if Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Vishinsky gave the orders from Paris, but someone did.

"I think the Soviets completely repudiated the agreement and I am not surprised, as they keep their word only as long as it suits their aims," Howley said.

Just over 25 per cent of the workers had to vote "yes" to end the strike, but the "yes" votes fell short by more than 1500.

"The strike will continue," said Heinz Bracht, chairman of the west Berlin rail union.

"The results clearly show one thing—the workers have no confidence in Soviet promises," Bracht said.

The strike has reduced Berlin to near blockade conditions. No freight train has arrived since May 24 and on May 27 the Russians said no more trains could be accepted.

U. S. Forces On Malta

Valletta, Malta, June 14 (U.P.)—American Air Force, Marine and Navy contingents arrived here today for land, sea and air maneuvers.

Moscow, June 14 (U.P.)—Red Fleet, newspaper organ of the Russian navy, said today that Norwegians, Swedes and Turks were aiding the United States in building up a system of naval bases at points where "the waters wash Soviet shores."

Norwegian Artic waters, the Baltic, the Dardanelles, the Bosporus and Black Sea were mentioned as targets for American ambitions.

Suspicion was expressed that some of these bases might be intended for use in atomic bomb and rocket warfare against Russia.

Red Fleet made its assertion in two articles, one on the Scandinavian angle, the other on Turkey.

Activity Reported

Red Fleet reported intense activity in certain Norwegian and Swedish circles, "facilitating those inspirers of aggression included in the Atlantic Pact." The United States, the newspaper said, regards expansion in the Scandinavian countries, and especially Norway and Sweden, as containing vital naval bases including areas close to Russia.

Red Fleet cited the Norwegian Communist newspaper, Friheten, and the Finnish Popular Democratic newspaper, Ny Tid, as reporting suspicious naval activity in northern Scandinavian waters.

Turk Admiral's Visit

Red Fleet said that despite strictest secrecy cloaking the visit of Turkish Adm. Mehmet Ali to Washington, the Turkish newspaper Dzamhuriet (probably Cumhuriet or Hurriyet) gave things away when it said Turkey must build auxiliary naval bases on the Black Sea with American aid.

"It is well known that American expansionists are pursuing extremely aggressive objectives in the Mediterranean basin, particularly striving for possession of the Dardanelles and the Bosporus . . ." Red Fleet declared.

25 Turkish Officers To Join Army Schools

Reckless Driving Charge Dismissed

A technical charge of reckless driving against Archie Burks, 33, of 422 11th st. sw., whose automobile killed a 25-year-old Pentagon typist, was dismissed yesterday after a hearing before United States Commissioner Stanley King in Alexandria.

Burke's car struck Miss Josephine Lewis of Lincolnia, Fairfax County, Va., on Columbia pike just south of the Pentagon, as Miss Lewis was walking to work June 2. Testimony at the hearing indicated that there was no crosswalk where the girl crossed and that the morning rush hour traffic was unusually heavy.

Inaugural Books Disputed by $4000

Full settlement of the 1949 Inauguration books awaits solution of a $4000 difference of opinion between the Inaugural Committee and the District Armory Commission, it was learned yesterday.

The dispute centers in the cost of renting the Armory for Inaugural Week festivities.

Melvin D. Hildreth, committee chairman, said there had been a "gentleman's agreement" that the committee would rent the Armory for $100 and construct a $12,500 bandstand which it would donate to the Armory. He said this agreement had been violated.

Leonard P. Walsh, Armory Commission member, said a written contract had been signed calling for a rental of $5400, this figure to include construction, by the Armory Commission, of a $4400 bandstand. Walsh said the commission had agreed to settle for $5000 from the committee.

In addition, Hildreth disclosed yesterday, the Inaugural Commission is involved in another dispute with the Globe Ticket Co. Hildreth says the commission is refusing to pay the company's full bill because tickets for the Inaugural Concert were delivered so close to the concert date that the commission was "seriously inconvenienced."

Hildreth said the company and the commission were $1000 apart.

Housing Bill Reported Out

Democratic leaders planned, and gives the Rules Committee control of a preliminary hour of debate prior to the eight hours of general debate.

Herter told a reporter he switched his vote for that reason, knowing the bill would reach the floor in any event.

Republican leaders, who oppose the measure, announced that there will be a House GOP caucus today to plan floor strategy. Administration Democrats supporting the bill are expected to call a caucus early next week.

The measure, as amended in House committee, would allow the District to participate fully in slum clearance and public housing programs on the same basis as the States.

The measure calls for 1,050,000 public housing units over the next seven years, plus a $1,500,000,000 slum clearance program and provisions to improve rural housing.

The Senate-passed housing measure provides for 810,000 housing units in six years.

The Administration bill calls for spending a maximum of 400 million dollars a year for the next 40 years to finance public housing. It authorizes up to one billion dollars in loans and 500 million dollars in grants for slum clearance projects. It would make available to farmers $12,500,000 in grants and a total of 250 million dollars in loans for farm modernization.

Brewster Promises Public Works Bill

By The Associated Press

Senator Brewster (R., Me.) yesterday said Senate Republicans will shortly sponsor a 50-million-dollar public works and relief planning program "to meet the growing Democratic depression."

"I regret," the Maine Senator told reporters, "that we are now in a state of depression. It is not a thing of the future. It is right now."

The measure would not in itself provide funds for public works, but would merely finance the planning of a "shelf" of such works to be started when deemed advisable.

Brewster said he had discussed the proposal with Senator Taft (R., Ohio), chairman of the Senate Republican Policy Committee.

Taft said the matter had been discussed informally by Republicans. He said he would bring it before the policy committee at a meeting today.

Taft said what he has in mind is a bill that would set up a framework for Federal grants to States if their relief cases should reach a certain percentage of their total population.

"What we Republicans want to avoid is the creation of another WPA like Harry Hopkins ran," he said. "If relief becomes necessary, it should be handled by the States at the local level."

The Ohio Senator said he opposed a "home relief" proposal made by the Administration in its social security expansion bill, now bogged down in the House Ways and Means Committee.

This provision would make Federal funds available to match State money to care for all needy. At present, the Government spends one billion dollars yearly on a matching basis to help care for needy aged and blind persons and dependent children.

Brewster also proposed that the Government "give the veterans their two billion dollars in insurance funds "now, not next year."

Czech Priest Can't Say Mass in Rome Church

Vatican City, June 14 (AP). — A statement issued in the name of Pope Pius XII today warned all Roman Catholic parish priests in Rome against permitting Father Joseph Plojhar, Czech Minister of Health, to offer mass in their churches.

Plojhar, who is attending the World Health Organization meeting here, was suspended from his priestly prerogatives after he joined the Communist Czech Government a year ago.

a toast to the world famous
MINT JULEP!

A toast to the world-famous Mint Julep!

There are innumerable schools of thought on this world-famous American creation. First of all, the silver cup versus the glass school . . . the bruised mint versus the crushed mint school . . . the fruit garnish versus the ungarnished school . . . plus two extremely prejudiced schools of thought on what species of alcoholic beverage shall complete the picture. Actually, there is no need for argument on the Julep. It is one of those happy concoctions that (barring a truly flagrant abuse) can not only stand but flourish on its own rights.

1—Chill the glasses, whether silver or otherwise.
2—Use large glasses.
3—Use two full jiggers.
4—Do not cut mint until just before serving.
5—Use finely crushed ice.
6—Use saturate solution of sugar to avoid sugar granules in the finished drink.
7—Don't over-garnish with fruit. A Julep is more than a mere chilled liquid—it is a tradition to be respected.

Woman Heads Falls Church School Board

Mrs. Mark M. Regan, a housewife, of 114 N. Fairfax st., Falls Church, last night was named chairman of the new Falls Church School Board at its first meeting in the Madison School.

Mrs. Regan was chairman of the old three-member school board, which the new nine-member group replaces.

Fairfax Circuit Court recently ruled that Falls Church has the right to operate its own schools, thus adding to the importance of the new board. The three city schools have been run by Fairfax County since 1942.

City Attorney LaRue Van Meter told the board last night it could not appoint a school superintendent until financial terms of the school transfer have been worked out with the county.

The board named a member, Dr. John R. Miles, 210 S Lee st., temporary clerk until a permanent nonmember clerk can be employed.

The board decided to hold its regular meetings on the first and third Wednesdays of each month at 8 p. m. in the Falls Church High School library.

TEMPORARY WET SPELL—Many residents are watering their lawns daily, during the dry spell, and as many youngsters are taking advantage of the cool spray. Among them, Ann Cooper, 2, of 6420 14th st. nw.

17 Rainless Days Set Mark

tures recorded yesterday by the Weather Bureau raiged from a low of 70 at 5:40 a. m. to a hi gh of 86 at 3:10 p. m.

One District death yesterday was laid tentatively to the heat. William J. Mullen, 71, no fixed address, was lying in the street unconscious condition at 1 p. m. at 9th st. and Independence ave. nw.

He was pronounced dead by Dr. Roland Strong of the Emergency Hospital staff and the body was removed to the morgue.

Dr. Strong said it was possible the man had suffered a stroke from the heat. Dr. A. Magruder MacDonald, District coroner, withheld a death certificate pending an autopsy.

Not since last May 28 when .15 inches fell has there been any rain locally.

A 17-day drought would set a spring record for this area, but not a year-round record. According to the Weather Bureau, the longest period without rain was 28 days in 1901. In that year, no rain fell from October 15 to November 11, inclusive.

The prolonged dry weather had not done serious damage to crops on Maryland and Virginia farms, but experts said unless rain comes soon, it may do so.

Municipalities Vote to Seek More Powers

Ocean City, Md., June 14 (AP).—Representatives of the Maryland League of Municipalities today voted to seek a constitutional convention in the group's battle for home rule.

It wants the Legislature to turn loose some of the power it has over cities and towns and delegate it to municipalities.

The league, which represents 52 Maryland cities and towns, wound up its summer conference here today.

Mayor John C. Post of Takoma Park, president of the league, told delegates home rule is one of the changes that might be brought about by a convention on the State constitution.

"This old constitution, written in 1867, is in ways ridiculously antiquated," Post said.

Painter's Death in Fall Listed as Accidental

A certificate of accidental death was issued yesterday by District Coronor Dr. A. Magruder MacDonald in the case of William J. Quirk, 40-year-old painter who fell to his death from a scaffold Monday.

Dr. MacDonald said investigation of the scaffold, which hung 85 feet above the ground outside the eighth floor of the Cavalier Apartments, 14th and Oak sts. n.w., showed that there were no defects in the equipment. Quirk, who lived at 431 11th st. n.e., lost his balance and fell, Dr. MacDonald said.

with Aunt Penny

There was a big crowd at the market this morning. On top of that, two of the regular checking girls were at home, ill.

When the manager saw how many people were standing in line waiting, he asked the girls who were packing groceries to take over as cashiers at the two vacant counters. That way, a lot more people were taken care of, sooner.

It reminded me of something Cy Stubbs (one of the local telephone men) was saying the other day about the importance of sharing our telephone party lines.

He said that in spite of all the headway being made on the job of expanding the local telephone system, a lot of folks are still waiting for telephones. And party lines mean more service for more people, sooner. The Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Company.

ing faction who is for stronger ties with the county; incumbent John C. McRae, who has not expressed himself; James E. Durant, an accountant, who also is uncommitted on the issue, and D. Kemper Grille, real estate broker, opposed to annexation and complete independence from the county.

The vote, a heavy one, was as follows:

First Ward: Mayor: Orme, 180; Eakin, 82. Council: Durant, 244; Wells, 205; Grille, 170.

Second Ward: Orme, 130; Eakin, 20. Council: McCarthy, 139; Myer, 110; McCrary, 101.

Third Ward: Orme, 272; Eakin, 19. Council: Rhoades, 231; Rust, 215; McRae, 200.

Keith Price, a business man, of 903 Hillwood ave., filed a protest with election officials as a preliminary step toward contesting the election in the first ward.

Alexandria's new mayor as well as a member of the city council.

Albert A. Smoot, 2952; James M. Duncan, jr., 2913; Roy C. Bragg, 2757; Leroy S. Benheim, 2687, and Marshall J. Beverley, 2472.

Votes for the independent candidates were: Barrett, 2253; Knight, 2243, and Lesley B. Mayer, 823.

The two Republican candidates, Nathan J. Paulson and Clyde J. Verkerke, collected 1597 and 1207 votes, respectively.

The record vote was attributed to the presence of independent and Republican candidates in the race. Usually the Democrats are unopposed.

Backus, who at 32 wins his first political race, lives at 202 W. Walnut st. He is a law partner of State Senator Andrew W. Clarke.

Smoot, 44, who was first elected to the council a year ago, is the son of a former mayor and a descendant of one of the city's founders. A businessman, he lives at 410 Duke st.

Duncan, 51, is another who won his first political race. A former fire chief of Alexandria, he is now in the real estate business and owns a filling statino. He lives at 107 W. Walnut st.

Bragg, 48, of 206 W. Mt. Ida ave., was elected to his second council term. He is a lawyer and owns a filling station.

Bendheim, former school board chairman and lawyer, also begins a second council term. He is 43, lives at 309 Mansion dr.

Beverley, also is 37 and lives at 3157 Martha Custis dr., is a bank official now back for his second year as councilman.

The lucky Luckett is a hardware merchant and with three years service is the counil's senior member. He was originally elected as a written candidate, the first in the city's history.

Situation Clarified For Mrs. Eva Douglas

In yesterday's editions of The Washington Post, it was stated that Mrs. Eva Douglas, a Falls Church City Council "write-in" candidate, was being supported by the North Greenway Downs Citizens Association.

The association is nonpartisan and does not indorse any candidates as a body.

retail levy might run as high as 18 million dollars.

He said yesterday's conference with the city heads was to "further explore ways and means of obligating revenue surpluses for the purpose of capital improvements."

Smith added that Congress was "merely trying to get an orderly program for capital improvements, and to see that any surplus is allocated to the most worthwhile projects."

The Commissioners at the meeting—Guy Mason and Gordon R. Young—also presented a revised priority listing of the improvement projects throughout the city. It was withheld from release.

General Young said later that "no specific and itemized program" has been approved by the Commissioners, but that it must be a "balanced" one. He named school construction, health, recreation and public welfare expansion among the "important needed public improvements."

It is further understood that some economy-minded District leaders in Congress, who steered the sales tax to passage, are concerned that budget surpluses created by the new tax may dissolve into bigger payrolls in departments "where the pressure is the heaviest."

A definite scheduling of major capital outlay now, these members feel, would "ward off the pressure for increased salaries and personnel."

Hunt said his group is not for the moment considering long-range borrowing. "We will go into that separate question later," he said.

Figures submitted by Fowler indicated the city would be about $11,875,000 in the red at the end of a five-year 60-million-dollar capital outlay program if the admittedly conservative revenue estimates hold true.

Revised Bill On Service Pay Returns Today

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

The revamped military pay bill, back before the House for a second chance, heads for a probably favorable vote late today.

Debated yesterday for 3 hours, it will be thrown open for amendment this afternoon. Some of the former GI's who helped beat the original measure have a series of proposed changes ready—largely to increase the compensation of enlisted men and junior officers.

But several members of the economy bloc, who also voted against the earlier version, are supporting this bill. It will cost about 300 million dollars a year compared with 4000 million dollars before.

Representative Case (R., S. Dak.), whose amendment curtailing the pay increases 3 to 5 per cent was defeated by a narrow margin last month, has told sponsors he favors the new measure.

Yesterday, Representative Short of Missouri, ranking Republican member of the House Armed Services Committee, urged approval of the pay bill as a means of avoiding universal military training and the draft.

"If Congress will approve such incentives as are provided in this bill," he said, "We will be forever through with the peacetime draft and UMT."

Representative Kilday (D., Tex.), floor manager of the bill, read a letter from Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower to Defense Secretary Louis Johnson, declaring the present pay scales are "stupidly inadequate."

"We shall reach the bitter consequences of secondary leadership" unless pay rates are raised, declared Eisenhower.

Short predicted that if the present bill is passed, there will be an ultimate saving to the taxpayers. The measure drastically cuts back physical retirement benefits. He also chided some members of the House raising the issue of "brass vs. the GI."

"It is very easy to criticize the brass and braid," Short declared. "But only a few years ago when the fate of the Nation was hanging in the balance, we honored those men. Where would we be today if it were not for those generals and admirals who are being so heavily criticized?"

Representative Brown (R., Ohio), a member of the Hoover Reorganization Commission, denounced the Armed Services Committee for bringing back the pay bill while it pigeon-holed the new Service unification bill.

He declared that Chairman Vinson had put the measure, which some sponsors have claimed will save one billion dollars a year, "into the deep-freeze."

Vinson challenged Brown to show him how the bill will save any money.

Like Father, Like Son . . .

Associated Press Photos

AT THE AGE OF 34—Franklin D. Roosevelt, jr. (left) 34, is pictured at his desk after being sworn in yesterday as a Congressman from New York. His father, the late President Franklin D. Roosevelt, was Assistant Secretary of the Navy when he was 34 and is pictured at his desk in the Navy Department while serving in that post

By The Associated Press

One of the most famous names in United States history was back in political business yesterday: Franklin D. Roosevelt, jr., was sworn in as a member of the House.

The third son of the late President took the oath while his mother, Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, looked on from the gallery.

She sat in the presidential box, the same spot from which she heard her husband address joint sessions of Congress.

Acting Speaker John W. McCormack (D., Mass.), read the oath to the 34-year-old lawyer, who wore a rumpled brown suit.

The ceremony took less than a minute, there was applause from Republicans, Democrats and spectators, and Roosevelt sat down among the Democrats.

Actually Roosevelt wasn't elected as a Democrat, although he'll be one here.

He failed to get the regular Democratic nomination for New York City's Twentieth District, a job left vacant by the death of Sol Bloom, a Democrat.

So Roosevelt ran as a candidate of the Four Freedoms and the Liberal Parties. In so doing he defeated the regular (Tammany) Democrat, a Republican and an American Labor Candidate.

Vacancies repeatedly occur in the House with its 435 members. There are two right now. Normally there is little excitement as a few member steps in.

Yesterday was different, for two reasons:

There is that magic name, Franklin D. Roosevelt, and there is that magic smile. Some political observers insist that the smile is like the name, a carbon copy of the original.

Other events in the first day of the Nation's newest Representative:

He had an appointment at his old home, the White House, for a talk with President Truman.

Of his visit with Mr. Truman, Roosevelt said to reporters:

"I told the President that there is no question that I was ever a member of the Democratic majority in the House and my only hope is to work as a member of the team of which he is captain and quarterback."

He denied a rumor that he may run for mayor of New York.

He said he hoped Congress would repeal the Taft-Hartley labor law, enact Mr. Truman's civil rights program, and put through a national housing act.

The only blot on an otherwise perfect day: The House roll call booklet came out with Roosevelt's name in italics, the type used for Republicans.

Said a clerk in the House Clerk's office:

"Purely accidental."

Death Penalty Review Asked by Senate Unit

Senator Hoey (D., N. C.), said yesterday that a Senate investigating committee asked the Army to review the cases of 23 Germans sentenced to death after Army war crimes trials.

Included are six former German storm troopers facing death sentence because of the Malmedy crossroads massacre.

Hoey, chairman of the Expenditures Investigating Subcommittee, said Army Secretary Gray was asked to delay all the executions until the Army inspector general could make a new review of each case.

Banker Giannini Leaves Estate of Under $480,000

San Mateo, Calif, June 14 —Banker Amadeo P. Giannini, who often told friends he had "no intention of dying a millionaire," left an estate valued at less than $480,000. His will was filed today for probate.

Founder of the vast Bank of America, Giannini died at his San Mateo home June 3.

About $430,000 is bequeathed to the Bank of America-Giannini Foundation to further the "higher practical and cultural education" of the bank's employes.

Although described as his only legal heirs, Giannini's son and daughter do not share in the estate. They are L. M. Giannini, president of the bank of America, and Claire Giannini Hoffman.

There are nine individual bequests, each $1000, made as tokens of remembrance to other relatives and one employe of long service. The remainder goes to local charitable organizations.

Coal Owners Seek Negotiating 'Czar'

Pittsburgh, June 14 (AP).—George M. Love, president of the world's largest commercial coal company, today disclosed that a big segment of the Northern coal industry wants a spokesman for its contract negotiations. He named Harry M. Moses as the operators' choice.

Moses is president of the H. C. Frick Coke Co., United States Steel Corp.'s coal producing subsidiary.

Love revealed the coordinator plan "for the Northern operators" (including Ohio, northern West Virginia and western Pennsylvania) after widespread reports vast segments of the industry wanted a "czar." These reports said the plan had the approval of John L. Lewis, United Mine Workers chief.

Denies Secret Talks

Love, president of Pittsburgh Consolidation Coal Co., expressed dismay the spokesman should be termed a "czar." He denied the Moses choice came after secret negotiations or with the approval of "Mr. Lewis or anybody else" but a number of coal operators. . .

Love's statement said:

"This is an unfortunate reference (use of the term "czar") to what should be a constructive move, the purpose of which is not to establish a 'czar' or 'limit production' or 'create an industrial monopoly to match the labor monopoly.'"

(The New York Times, which reported the desire for a coordinator, used the term "czar" to explain his function. The Times also indicated the coordinator's job would be to keep an eye on production. The Times added that Southern operators were opposed to the idea because, in their opinion, it would create "an industrial monopoly to match the labor monopoly.")

"To Bring Order and Dignity"

Love added:

"The purpose is simple—it is to bring order and dignity into labor relations of the industry and to avoid the chaos which has too often attended labor negotiations and inconvenienced the public."

Love's statement came as Lewis indicated his bargaining strategy would be to divide the industry into separate segments in search of the best possible price for a new contract. This price, obtained from any one of several parts of the industry with which Lewis has undertaken bargaining, presumably would be applied to all.

Love said, "Mr. Moses has been approached . . . He now has the matter under consideration . . ."

Love said if Moses accepted it would involve his resignation as H. C. Frick president and severing of all conections with U. S. Steel.

Lewis' stratagem emerged in the second day of a week-long "stabilization period of inaction" he ordered for his 480,000 United Mine Workers in the Nation's soft and hard coal pits.

The UMW chief asked wage talks with Northern, Western (both soft coal) and anthracite operators. Previously, he undertook contract bargaining with Southern (soft coal) operators and operators of the U. S. Steel Corp.'s "captive mines" (Bituminous pits wholly owned by steel companies).

Reports Lewis had gotten together with some big coal executives in the North on a plan to set up a soft coal industry "czar" with the power to coordinate all factions were due for an airing at talks scheduled at Bluefield, W. Va.

If none of the contract discussions with any of the separate groups brings agreement by July 6, the miners can be expected to stop work again.

The UMW contract expires June 30, but the Nation's miners will be on a paid 10-day vacation, starting June 25. They traditionally refuse to work without a contract.

Southern Lays Off 850 Due to Coal Walkout

The coal walkout already has forced the Southern Railway System to lay off 850 employes, President Ernest E. Norris said yesterday.

It may become necessary to furlough additional workers in the 13 States the Southern serves, he added.

University Budget To Be Ready on Time

College Park, Md., June 14 (AP).—C. L. Benton, comptroller of the University of Maryland, said the university's $14,581,566 working budget for the 12 months starting July 1 will be in the hands of the board of public works before the July 1 deadline.

Governor Lane previously announced that details of the budget would be made public after the board has studied it.

Labor Asserts

T-H Repeal Amendments 'Deceptive'

Twenty labor union attorneys who are backstopping the fight for repeal of the Taft-Hartley law yesterday charged a series of proposed Republican amendments to repeal legislation would leave the "core" of the law untouched.

The 20, who have established headquarters in a hotel on Capitol Hill, sent each of the 96 Senators an analysis of the amendments sponsored by Senator Robert A. Taft (R., Ohio) and backed by most Republican and many Southern Democratic Senators.

"Analysis of the amendments . . . reveals that they are carefully designed to give the appearance but not the reality of concessions to the popular demand for Taft-Hartley repeal," they said.

The few concessions, they stated, "are designed to correct evils in the Taft-Hartley Act for which no defenders can be found."

Debate Apparently Ended

The attornews include Arthur J. Goldbert, general counsel of the CIO; Herbert S. Thatcher, general counsel of the AFL; and counsel for AFL and CIO affiliates and independent unions.

Their blast was issued as the Senate appeared to have ended its general debate and to be ready to vote today on an amendment to require employers and unions to bargain collectively in good faith.

The proposal is one of four amendments sponsored by a bipartisan coalition of liberal Senators in an attempt to strengthen the bill and attract votes for it.

Two others would require unions and management associations and corporations to file financial statements and non-Communist and non-Fascist affidavits with the Federal Government. A fourth would guarantee unions and management free speech.

A fifth, to authorize 90-day Federal seizure and operation of struck facilities as a last resort in "national emergency" strikes will be offered today, Senator Paul H. ouglas (D., Ill.), said.

Before the debate dragged to a close, Senator Taft chided the Democrats for giving the appearance of filibustering against their own bill. The Democrats promptly denied this was so.

Senator Hubert H. Humphrey (Dem., Minn.) winding up a speech of nearly eight hours spread over yesterday and last Friday, assailed the move to enact a "softened" version of the Taft-Hartley law.

Carpenters Back D. C. Strike With $1,500,000

strike benefits beginning this week to all carpenters who've been unable to find employment.

A spokesman said that the leaders will meet again today to determine the amount of the strike payment.

'Fight to Finish'

"This is a fight to the finish," the carpenters' spokesman said. "We're willing to spend our treasury to win the strike. And we've assurances that the international union will back us with more funds if and when we should need the assistance."

Disclosure of the carpenters' determination to continue the walkout which began June 1 came almost simultaneously with announcement that 180 members of the Construction Contractors Council met yesterday and voted unanimously to resist the strikers' demand for a pay increase.

With the walkout entering its fifteenth day today, the Washington area was faced with the continued paralysis of 100 million dollars' worth of construction activities, including schools planned for fall opening, and traffic arteries needed to relieve congested conditions.

District authorities already have announced that their plans to ease crowded school classrooms have been set back by the strike. At least three new schools are affected.

cials announced yesterday that

Prince Georges County officials announced yesterday that the lengthening strike left little possibility of the scheduled September opening of the new Fairmount Heights Negro High School and the new Oxon Hill High School.

Francis J. Kelly, attorney for the contractors, said yesterday that the builders met for 90 minutes in the United States Chamber of Commerce Auditorium, and were in complete agreement to stand firm on their last offer.

Employers' Offer

This called for continuation for two years of the 1948 work contract paying the carpenters $2.40 an hour, with wages open for further negotiations at the end of 1949 if the Consumers Price Index of the Labor Statistics Bureau showed a rise of 5 points. As an alternative, the builders have offered to arbitrate the dispute.

Both offers, acchrding to Kelly, the contract negotiation team for the carpenters has refused to take back to their unions for a vote of the membership.

The carpenters argue that they firs asked for 22½ cents more an hour, and that by lowering their demand to 10 cents, they have made their final concession.

There appears to be considerable confusion as to the number of employes out of work in the construction industry as a result of the strike.

How Many Out of Work?

First estimates were that 5000 AFL carpenters had walked out, followed by 3500 AFL laborers. As a result, it was said, 11,500 other AFL mechanics and laborers had to be laid off.

However, the District Carpenters Council now insists that of its 5000 members only 3500 are on the active rolls. Of this 3500, only 300 have registered at their locals as being out of work. The remaining 2700—according to the carpenters' council spokesmen — have found work with the 119 builders which the union claims have signed the new wage agreement, with builders in housing construction not affected by the walkout, and in other work.

The number of AFL laborers on strike has narrowed down to around 2400, since only one of the seven locals is actually on strike. This local, No. 74, seeking 15 cents an hour increase in pay went on strike one day after the carpenters. The local is not paying strike benefits, but has been doling out baskets of food to needy strikers for the past week according to Henry Thomas, president of the local.

Jacobs Quits Prague Post; Briggs Named

President Truman yesterday announced the resignation of Joseph E. Jacobs as Ambassador to Czechoslovakia.

He nominated Ellis O. Briggs of Maine, now Ambassador to Uruguay, to Jacobs' post at Prague.

He also nominated Christian M. Ravndal of Iowa, a career diplomat, to succeed Briggs as Ambassador at Montevideo.

Jacobs resigned after only six months in the Prague post. The action was officially unexplained. Mr. Truman in accepting his resignation expressed his appreciation for the "valuable service you have rendered."

A Foreign Service veteran, Jacobs is expected to be assigned to a new post. Much of his previous service was in the Far East.

Briggs is a Foreign Service career Minister and has had 22 years in diplomatic service, largely in Latin America.

Ravndal, now Director-General of the Foreign Service, has seen nearly 30 years' diplomatic service, largely in Europe.

W. F. Raugust Is Disqualified In Alexandria

The number of contested races in Alexandria's August 2 Democratic primary was reduced to two yesterday with the disqualification of William F. Raugust as candidate for Civil and Police Court judge.

The city Democratic committee voted unanimously against certifying Raugust as a meeting called Monday night to pass on the qualification of all party candidates.

Committee Chairman Gilbert J. Cox said the action was based on a State law and a ruling from State's Attorney General J. Lindsay Almond, jr., that a lawyer must practice in Virginia five years before he is eligible to become a judge.

Cox said Almond told the committee a lawyer is not considered to have practiced in Virginia in any year he did not pay the State license tax. Raugust failed to pay the State tax in 1947, Cox said.

In 1947 Raugust acted as executive counsel to the chief counsel at the Nurenberg trials.

The committee certified all other candidates for nomination for the seven major offices in the primary. The only contests in the primary will be for nominations for city sergeant, between J. Frank Moriarty and Hugh Travers, and for commissioner of revenue, between C. Aubrey Callahan and William E. Sellers.

In 1969...will you still be his hero?

HIS HERO? Right now you're far more than that. You're his world...his everything. When he gurgles his special, very own version of "Daddy", you know you've reached heights no victory at sport, no business triumph can ever equal.

Yet, how about the future?

Sure, you've got a few years when his devotion to you, his faith in you are bound to remain untouched by doubt.

But what about 1969...

Yes, what about those days when he sees you, not as just an idol, but a man among men.

Will his devotion, his respect remain the same?

Live up to your high duties as a father and the answer will be a ringing "Yes".

Forget them—fail to live up to your responsibilities as a father—and the answer is bound to be a disillusioned and discouraged "No".

And certainly one of the most important of those responsibilities is to practice moderation in all things including drinking! For nothing will so shatter a son's faith as to know his father cannot enjoy liquor with wise restraint and common sense.

Yes—Moderation! That is our Father's Day Message in 1949.

In 1969—our message will be the same.

Montgomery Officials Get New Reports of Bear Enjoying Off-Season Status

A new report of a large black bear roaming around upper Montgomery County yesterday again sent police scurrying to the scene.

The animal was first seen Sunday above Boyds by two men at different points.

Yesterday afternoon, a Hyattstown farmer and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Biddinger, called police to say they had just seen the animal crossing the Frederick County line into Montgomery County. Biddinger dispatched his hunting dog to trail the animal, but the dog soon returned.

Capt. Charles Barnes of the Rockville substation, and two police officers hurried to the scene and tramped the fields and woods fruitlessly for about two hours.

Barnes said later police would have no authority to kill the bear unless it could be proved it was molesting someone or destroying crops or livestock.

"There is a State law making it illegal to kill bears out of season," he said.

Meanwhile, Miss Sadie Henley, of Angler's Inn, Md., phoned police yesterday with a report that she had just seen a large panther near her home.

On Monday, Game Warden Henry Huff said he had heard there was a panther in the vicinity of Great Falls which is not far from Miss Henley's home.

Public Housing Rents

Mr. Justice Burton probably found a good deal of satisfaction in writing the Supreme Court's unanimous opinion in the Wittek case. As a member of the Senate before he went on the bench, he took a keen interest in slum clearance and public housing in the District, and his decision is wholly in line with the best interests of these movements. It reverses the United States Court of Appeals in holding that the Emergency Rent Control Act is applicable to the United States as a landlord. The immediate effect will doubtless be an increase in rents for tenants in the local "defense housing" in line with increased costs. But of much greater importance is the fact that the District's public housing system may continue to operate without being hamstrung by a rent-control system designed only to put a ceiling on rentals in private housing.

We expressed our belief at the time of the Court of Appeals' decision that its reasoning had gone astray in this case. The rentals of public housing, including the "defense housing" rentals that were brought into question by Mr. Wittek, were under controls independent of the Rent Control Act. In passing that act, Congress had made no reference to the United States as a landlord. We thought it was an unreasonable stretching of the law to superimpose its controls upon the existing public housing controls without express provisions to that effect. The Supreme Court now says that in the absence of an express statement by Congress, "it is not conceivable" that that body intended to sweep public housing under confusing and conflicting control systems.

The decision seems to us to reflect not only sound legal reasoning but also an understanding of public housing policy that should discourage future efforts to bedevil the National Capital Housing Authority with lawsuits of this character.

Vinson's Fiat

Carl Vinson has long been known both for being more blue-water than the most diehard admiral and for the tyranny he exercises over the House Armed Services Committee. He is adding to his reputation in both respects by implying that the House equivalent of the Tydings bill will not come out of his committee this session. The Tydings bill, which the Senate passed unanimously, would strengthen the Armed Services Unification Act. The need for the measure got a dramatic reenforcement from the tragic circumstances of the death of Mr. Forrestal—the first Secretary of Defense, who was reduced to a state of frustration by the pulling and hauling over authority within his department. The Tydings bill attempts to correct the proven deficiencies in the administration of national defense. Already Secretary Johnson, under a separate statute, has got an Undersecretary, but under the new bill the Joint Chiefs of Staff would be provided with a head. Only with this change can the Joint Chiefs resolve the constant differences of opinion which have hitherto inhibited decision.

This lack of authority in the Joint Chiefs was obvious when the initial unification was enacted. To be sure, Secretary Forrestal himself was opposed to any change in the wartime system, or the lack of it, of the Joint Chiefs, deficient though it had proved to be. But before he died he had switched his position. He found from grim experience that the setup was completely unworkable, and he threw his influence behind the Tydings bill. But Representative Vinson remains in the ranks of the unconverted. Though he heads the Armed Services Committee—in itself a recognition on the legislative side of unification—he thinks in terms of the partisan interests of the Navy. His case adds to the growing indictment that is piling up against chairmanships based upon the seniority principle. It is anomalous to have as head of the Armed Services Committee a man who opposes on the executive side the same degree of unification that his own committee represents.

The new Citizens Committee for Reorganization of the Executive Branch of the Government is putting on an active campaign to pry a unification bill out of the Armed Services Committee. The Citizens Committee, of course, is an offshoot of the Hoover Commission. The Tydings bill, except in one minor item, seeks to carry out the national defense recommendations of that commission. It is a heartening thing to see the Citizens Committee seeking legislation to give effect to the Hoover recommendations over which its members labored long and patriotically. The committee stresses above all the budget unity which the bill would introduce to the Defense Department. It is this absence of unity that has given the component services a sort of fishing license in making up their estimates. Yet Representative Vinson says that no economies would be achieved under the Tydings bill, but that, on the contrary, the bill would add to expenditures. Such an argument does not hold water. To treat the budget as a whole instead of an addition of three (or four) parts is to make the first step in bringing efficiency and therefore economy to the Department of Defense. The Citizens Committee deserves the active support of the American people.

Busted Boom

That the business boom is a thing of the past is acknowledged by all but a few diehard supporters of President Truman's anti-inflation program and, of course, the President himself. The country is in the throes of an immense readjustment from a sellers' to a buyers' market. This means a drop from peak levels of economic activity which were attained while industry was trying to catch up with abnormally pent-up demands. Things may get worse before they get better—that is to say, before any kind of stability is achieved. It does not follow that the evidences of business recession, reflected in price and production declines, reduced consumer spending and rising unemployment signalize the oncoming of a serious depression. It is defeatist to think and act on such an assumption. Of first importance is to keep a sense of proportion by neither minimizing nor overemphasizing the significance of current changes in industrial and trade activity.

An outstanding example of the prevalent tendency to exaggerate the importance of statistical data bearing on the industrial decline is afforded by the Department of Commerce report of a drop in personal income for the fourth straight month this year. This was headlined as a "sharp" drop. Actually, as is clear from an examination of it, the drop is very modest. Personal incomes in April were still being maintained at an annual rate of 213.7 billion dollars compared with a rate of 214.6 billion in March. That is a decline of slightly more than four tenths of 1 per cent from the March annual level—certainly nothing to create alarm. Furthermore, April incomes on an annual basis were 2.5 per cent higher than at the same time last year, although below the record rates of the year's end.

So far, therefore, the evidence at hand shows that current incomes are still at extraordinarily high levels. There are also large reserves of savings in consumer hands that provide support for spending of current incomes—over 200 billion dollars, in astronomical fact. Moreover, despite reports of rising unemployment that have deepened the atmosphere of gloom enveloping so many business forecasters, more people were employed in May than a year ago. Why don't the commentators mention this fact along with that of the rising unemployment? We except Mr. Marquis Childs, who has further explained that several million young people, released from schools and colleges, are now looking for work of a temporary or permanent character. Those unable to find jobs will be listed as unemployed. Yet, even with the unemployed lists lengthened by this influx of new job-seekers, the numbers of people employed will no doubt show a seasonal increase.

So long as this country can provide work at good wages for 60 million or more people, their buying power will sustain a large volume of business even though localized unemployment may present serious problems to many communities. Of course, no one can safely predict what the future holds in store. Unemployment, still low by comparison with prewar standards, might spread, accelerate the downturn in business, and lead to a severe depression. But so far there is no factual basis warranting predictions that a depression is inevitable. Certainly there is more reason to be encouraged than alarmed by the current information on personal incomes—information which connotes the existence of general prosperity among the Nation's consumers.

Heftier Women

Reports that American women are wearing larger size shoes and gloves than before the war indicate either a decrease in feminine vanity or an increase in feminine muscle. Shoe and glove manufacturers say women's feet and hands have developed with their greater use in wartime. The popularity of open-toed shoes, flats and sandals in recent years has given feet more opportunity to spread. Also women's increasingly active life, accelerated by the war, has eliminated shoes that pinch, gloves that bind. Nevertheless vanity still hangs on. Glove manufacturers are cutting many 6½-size gloves full enough to be actually 7s, since women don't like to move into larger hand sizes. The average-size shoe for women now is 6 to 6½, while before the war it was 5 to 5½—and it is rumored that the whole truth is not always told in these sizes.

On top of this, William K. Streit, vice president of the American Association for Health, Physical Education and Recreation, says American women are becoming taller, "somewhat heftier and more muscular." He gallantly adds "also prettier and more zestful." Better diet, living conditions and physical education are making both American women and men bigger and even better—in the sense of healthier. Since life is constantly demanding more and more of women, placing them in two-job and even three- and four-job roles, it is indeed fortunate they are getting more muscle and also sturdier foundations for the future.

Lecture On The Bench

Many persons who read the news accounts of the Supreme Court's decision in the Standard Oil case must have been bewildered, as we were, by Justice Douglas' fiery dissent. The court struck down Standard Oil's exclusive supply contracts with independent dealers as a device that may substantially minimize competition. Yet Justice Douglas accused the majority of his brethren of pushing the oil industry in the direction of monopoly and of approving what the antitrust laws were designed to prevent. The reasons for his dissent are clarified in some measure by a reading of the opinions, but one is still left in the dark as to why he chose to write a political stinger instead of a legal opinion.

The majority, with Justice Frankfurter as spokesman, put a literal interpretation on the language of the Clayton Act, which says that exclusive supply contracts shall be prohibited where their effect "may be to substantially lessen competition or tend to create a monopoly in any line of commerce." Justice Jackson, with the support of Chief Justice Vinson and Justice Burton, thought that the contracts should stand unless the Government could prove they had lessened competition or tended to create a monopoly. He pointed out that an exclusive supply contract may be used as "a device for waging competition" as well as for suppressing competition. But the majority felt that, under the language of the act, the contracts should be condemned because they might have the effect of substantially lessening competition. In other words, the decision turned on legal points as to which reasonable men may differ.

But Justice Douglas cut himself completely free from both opinions and wrote a political screed that was apparently addressed to Congress. "Big business has become bigger and bigger," he complained. "Monopoly has flourished. Cartels have increased their hold on the Nation. The trusts wax strong." All this is undubitably true, as The Washington Post has pointed out on many occasions. Senators O'Mahoney and Kefauver have laid the case before Congress in the form of a bill that urgently demands attention. But why should the cry be taken up on the bench. There are many worthy reforms in which judges are interested as individuals, but most of them resist the temptation to lash out from the bench in favor of the policies they would espouse as legislators. Mr. Justice Douglas ought to remember that this sort of a political lecture from the bench is likely to do far more harm to the Supreme Court's standing as a judicial body than it can do good in influencing legislation.

Expert Appraisal

The opinion of laymen respecting so technical a matter as the wisdom of shipping radio isotopes abroad is peculiarly dependent on the advice of experts. Expert advice has now been made available to the public through the extraordinarily qualified person of Dr. J. Robert Oppenheimer. His view has been presented in illuminating and readily understandable terms. The gist of it is that although the isotopes released for export by the Atomic Energy Commission have an indubitable relation to atomic research, there is virtually no way in which any foreign country could utilize them to further its military science. The export of these isotopes is, in his judgment, a bulwark rather than a menace to American security.

Dr. Oppenheimer's advice seems to us definitive. It should conclusively exorcize the spectre conjured up by Senator Hickenlooper of "incredible mismanagement" at least in respect of security. Indeed, the General Advisory Committee of experts headed by Dr. Oppenheimer believes the Atomic Energy Commission was "too conservative" in its isotope export policy. It would have been well, we think, if the judgment of this body had been made public long ago to support Mr. Lilienthal in his patient efforts to make atomic energy useful instead of merely mysterious. No doubt the AEC was inhibited by fear of just the sort of outcry which has come from Senator Hickenlooper.

Perhaps the best way for the AEC to prevent hysterical outcries of this sort would be for it to make public the divisions among its members on questions of policy and the grounds on which decisions or dissents are taken. It appears that Commissioner Strauss was alone among his colleagues in opposing the isotope export policy. No doubt he had what seemed to him good reasons for his opposition. If they had been publicly stated along with the reasons of the majority at the time the decision was made, in the way that differences of opinion are aired among members of the National Labor Relations Board or the Federal Trade Commission, the public could have judged the issue calmly and in the light of the arguments presented on either side. Here is an admirable place to begin AEC publicity.

Israeli Dilemma

Of the many decisions confronting the new state of Israel, none is more difficult or more momentous in its significance for the future than that of the Arab refugee problem.

The principle at stake is that of mercy and justice. Eight hundred thousand Arabs are homeless refugees from their old homes in Palestine. They have no place to go, no clothing or adequate shelter, no money, and no powerful groups of friends. They and their ancestors have lived in this country for the past 1000 to 2000 years. In the recent disturbances there they fled to escape the massacre which destroyed some of those villages.

For more than 2000 years the Jewish religion has emphasized mercy and justice as the basic principles in human relations. If Israel refuses to deal justly with the Arab refugees, driven out by superior force from their ancient homes, then this state will make its start by denying the very principles for which Judaism has stood throughout the centuries.

This is one side of the dilemma. The other is that of practical necessity. At last after 2000 years the Jews again have control of their ancient homeland. Two hundred fifty thousand Jewish refugees in Europe are waiting to find homes. All the space available is needed to take care of Israel's own people. Practical necessity decrees that those who have fled be not permitted to return and their lands be taken for Jewish use.

The new state thus faces an ancient dilemma. Shall it be true to its ancient principles of mercy and justice, or shall it like most other nations follow practical necessity and sacrifice principle? Or are there, perhaps, leaders of Israel so wise that a third solution will be found which will be both just and practical?

"Negro Crime"

The writer, who has been acting as chairman of the Citizens' Anti-Crime Committee, commends your June 10 editorial interpretation of the high crime rate among the Negroes of this city. We, too, think that when one analyst like Henry Coe Lampher, statistician, indicates as a casual factor the frustrations many Negroes suffer, and when penologist Donald Clemmer says poverty is at the root of most of the crimes committed, they are both right.

Slum dwellings, job denial or discrimination because of race, segregation and the host of accompanying evils account for inferiority feelings and some of the high crime rate. It is not enough just to jail these offenders. About 50 per cent once imprisoned become recidivists. In fact jail has little fear for some. A record of Federal prisons shows that only one Negro as against nine white prisoners try to escape from Federal custody.

Other factors that turn some Negroes into delinquent channels are the feelings of frustration coming from inability to secure jobs they are qualified for because of color. Another cause often attributable to higher crime rates is the immigration of many Negroes from the South who have had little chance to learn to make adjustments to our urban society.

Nor are our Boys' Clubs doing the job they are capable of. The two clubs operating for one third of the boys who need them most do afford some profitable leisure time use, but like segregated schools, they intensify rebellion against social systems that separate them from other juveniles and create inferiority complexes.

If we would reduce the criminal element, and give hope beyond what many of our social and religious institutions are trying to do, we need to lessen these frustration-making devices. We commend Mr. Clemmer for recently appointing colored guards at the jail. We commend the Department of National Park police for up-grading colored park police. We would suggest also that those States needing aid to improve education and uplift standards of living get rid of the fear of Federal grants in aid and seek support for better housing, education, recreation and jobs.

I, too, wish to congratulate you on your very sympathetic and understanding editorial of June 4 on "Dr. Bunche Declines." It is indeed heartening to those who have been struggling for freedom and human rights for all peoples to see more and more broad and outspoken champions.

Service Limitations

A letter published in your May 12 issue, has revealed to me how little many people in civil life appreciate the difficulties and limitations of service life.

The public should be informed that dental care for service dependents is not available anywhere to my knowledge. Moreover, the frequently mentioned medical care for dependents is often not available, or at best, difficult to obtain. Medical officers are urgently needed throughout the service, and the impending shortage after July 1 is certain to create an additional hardship on service families. I believe it is truthful to say that as far as medical and dental services are concerned, the service family is about as fortunate as the average family in civil life.

Service housing is critical, and anyone who believes that service pay is adequate to meet the repeated crises which our people face just simply does not know the facts.

The career enlisted man or officer, is not just another Federal employe whose work, living conditions, and importance can be measured in the same terms as his civilian counterpart. The career military man is always under orders as long as he is on active duty. These orders may take him to any part of the world at a moment's notice. Granted that is his job and that he has chosen a military career. Nonetheless, who can evaluate the worth to our Nation of those soldiers, sailors, marines, and airmen who held the line during the dark days of 1941?

Germany And ERP

Senator McKellar is an old man. I take for granted his service to the people of Tennessee has been good. Even when he opposed the Lilienthal appointment to the Atomic Energy Commission with obviously juvenile antics, I took the view he spoke for the people of his State.

Certainly, however, he now has spoken for no one, not even his own interests, when he says Mr. Paul Hoffman's resignation would be a "good thing." To the people of Europe, a drop in funds in the ERP and the loss of Mr. Hoffman would be a calamity.

I should like to present quotations from a letter I received from a German concerning this issue.

"As far as the Marshall Plan or ERP is concerned, it has achieved good results since last year to get Germany off her desperate food shortage and has helped to crank industries into production. I don't think there would have been much left in Germany, or Europe, without ERP. It has helped to checkmate chaos and prevented people from starving, from rioting and from bashing each other over the head and it has also played its important part to stop the advance of communism giving Russians the only reason to fight it tooth and nail.

"With the help of ERP and the new German currency, German production has jumped, according to latest official reports, to nearly 70 per cent of the 1938 level, which is at least a fair start although it is by far not enough to satisfy the existing demand. Moreover, a great part has been reserved for exports to pay for large imports in food and raw materials to keep workers and factories going. In these times where everythin seems to run into some kind of opposition, ERP meets with unanimous approval, cooperation and gratitude all over the western zones including Berlin."

This writer is a young man of 30 who yet has maintained hope and desire for democracy when others are more tempted to vacillate with the strongest influence, communism or democracy. He is an interpreter for the British and well thought of by them. But when he studied for his exams before the currency reform of January to July of 1948, he developed an attack of neuritis from nervous exhaustion and hunger.

About this, he is philosophical but points out: "You often hear people say: 'As long as democracy or democratic methods are nothing but a mere theory, then it will help the course of the totalitarians better alone than 'Comrade Joe' himself could do.' Here again Communists and fellow travelers cut in and shout: 'They (the Allies) don't really want to help; they merely talk: democracy is a farce contrived to help the capitalists dominating the world' and so on and so forth . . . I am not afraid that they will gain much ground in Germany as long as we have freedom of opinion and freedom from want . . . but these guys don't care much about opinions as lots of people on the other side of the iron curtain (in the Russian zone of Germany for instance) will bitterly confirm . . ."

It is my opinion that if Congress maintains Mr. Hoffman's requests, the German situation will continue to improve, giving a chance to such people as this young man.

Turning Out Fifth Wheels

By Malvina Lindsay

High School Lag

THE JUNE crop of 1,200,000 high school graduates again causes national pride to surge. Yes, we are the greatest country in the world when it comes to high schools! Look at the growing percentage of Americans who are high school graduates, 1 man out of 4 in the last war, 1 out of 30 in the first World War. Consider how the British have been studying our high school system, how foreign visitors express amazement at the network of great brick high school buildings over our landscape.

Yet as multitudes of teen-age boys and girls are presented their diplomas this week while complacent parents look on, the question is being widely asked: Are our high schools keeping step with the times?

Increasingly headlines tell that some educator has called our high schools a failure, or that some committee has been appointed to study why teen-age boys and girls are dropping out of school. And someone is always raising the question of what is to become of the 60 per cent of high school graduates who have no plans or equipment for the future, who have not prepared for college or for entry into the skilled trades.

TOO MANY young people are being prepared for fifth-wheel living, say critics of today's high schools. Many pupils sense this and drop out of school—55 out of every 100 leave before completing their courses. Customary excuses are "I'm not getting anywhere," or "nothing in it for me."

With employment opportunities lessening compared to boom days, many of these half-trained youths are likely to become economic rolling stones, perennial explorers of blind alleys. But even many of those who finish high school, though better equipped for job-hunting, may land in that same category.

Social taboos, myths and aspirations of the nineteenth century still dominate the classrooms of many of the big modern high school buildings. These schools, like much of society, have not caught up with the technological facts of life, let alone the atomic ones. Now, as another big postwar expansion in education gets under way, the high school, if it is to remain the pride of and distinction of American life, will need some overhauling.

The rise of blue-collar society is one fact to which the high school will have to adjust. Some educators think high schools are still choked by the white-collar myth, with which the American success dream is so closely tied up. Yet escaping this myth is not so simple as dividing high school students into "blues" and "whites"—training one group to be mechanics, the other to go on to college and enter the professions.

FOR THE lines between blue and white collar society are daily becoming more intermingled. Technology is reaching into the lives of the college set as never before. And culture is extending itself into blue-collar living.

The high school of tomorrow is expected to do more toward opening to youth the blue-collar world with its great and growing opportunities. It also will need to do more toward preparing all its pupils for living both in the practical and cultural sense.

The present rate of high school drop-outs could be greatly reduced, it is believed, if schools could function better as bridges to the workaday world into which their graduates will step.

The trend of high schools is to do this. Some are giving credits for actual work experience. Some are tying up their courses with practical experience in community affairs. Some are trying to develop curriculums that will make sense both to the pupil who aspires to college and the one who must begin his working life the day after he gets his diploma.

Along with this practical trend is the opening of cultural opportunities to the blue-collar worker of tomorrow, who though denied the mental satisfaction of following a profession may yet get creative outlet in leisure-time activities.

Another trend that may make boys and girls feel that high school makes sense is that of life-adjustment education. Courses in family living, human relations, consumer education, citizenship, work habits, creative use of leisure, are increasing in high schools instead of being reserved for college, where they reach a small fraction of future citizens.

Atomic Energy Control

It should be obvious to everybody that a lot of informed people are not satisfied with the present civilian administration of the atomic energy program. It is equally obvious that a lot of people are afraid to trust the military with this great responsibility (although the same people do trust the military with the job of protecting them from foreign foes).

Congress should do the common-sense and patriotic thing and recreate the Atomic Energy Commission, giving civilians and the military equal representation.

Loyalty Probe Absurdities

THE FANTASTIC lengths to which the loyalty search is being pushed are daily more apparent. It would be absurd if it were not so serious for the well-being of the Nation.

Childs

In this and a following column I want to analyze a case that seems to me to illustrate both the absurdity and the tragedy of what is happening. Quite apart from considerations of justice and ethics, it illustrates, too, the waste of time and money in a pursuit that seems to have less and less relation to the realities and necessities of the present day.

MRS. ANNE V. Alling, who has given me permission to present the details of her case, is 59 years old. Until she was suspended on a finding of the Fourth Regional Loyalty Board which is the board for Washington, she was a stenographer in what was known as the "blind pool" at the Veterans' Administration.

Because of several eye operations, Mrs. Alling has very limited vision and with several stenographers who are totally blind she typed from dictaphone records. The typing she did was about veterans' insurance and had nothing to do with anything remotely secret.

Mrs. Alling's husband suffered severe wounds in World War I and in 1929 they went to France because they thought it would be easier to live there on his pension. In France, Mrs. Alling became interested in communism. She met and talked with French Communists.

Mrs. Alling is a type fairly common in this country. Her religious background contained strong elements of pacifism and the kind of idealism that accepts uncritically the ideals professed by others. They must be good people if they say they mean to be kind to everyone and end evils of the earth. In this naive fashion many earnest, decent Americans were deceived about the aims of communism and particularly in the cruel years of the great depression.

Returning to their home in Atlanta, Ga., Mrs. Alling interested herself in the cause of justice for the Negro. In 1934 the Atlanta police raided her home and arrested seven people who were holding what they said was a "current events" meeting.

One of them was a Negro. Mrs. Alling was held in jail for three weeks without bail under a charge of "inciting to insurrection." Subsequently this law was declared unconstitutional by the United States Supreme Court. Even after the experience she continued to make small contributions to the International Labor Defense, since put on the Attorney General's proscribed list . . . in that same year her husband died of his World War I wounds.

THE TRANSCRIPT of Mrs. Alling's hearing before the regional loyalty board is nearly 100 pages in length. As she has done several times before, she denied under oath that she was ever a member of the Communist Party. At times the interrogation seems almost as though it had been intended to be a burlesque on itself!

Question: Do you remember whether or not you told her (a woman suspected of being a Communist in 1942 whom Mrs. Alling could not recall) that you were knitting for the Russian War Relief and volunteered to teach any comrade how to knit?

Answer: No, I don't remember anything about that, and I don't remember knitting for the Russian War Relief. Maybe I did knit a sweater. I think I did that for England, too; not just for Russia. Maybe I did but I can't remember that, but I could have . . .

Question: Well, almost all of us were knitting for the Red Cross and the things were channeled through to various places. I wondered why Mrs. Alling knitted especially for Russia. That was what I was trying to determine.

Answer: I wasn't just interested in Russia.

Mrs. Alling was questioned at length about her thesis for a master's degree in French at Emory University in Atlanta. It dealt with one of the novels of Andre Gide, who last year received the Nobel Prize for literature. Mrs. Alling said it had nothing to do with communism.

At one time three FBI men, able-bodied and supposedly intelligent, were concentrated on a phase of the Alling case. How could this woman possibly be a threat to the security of a great and powerful nation? How have we become so preoccupied with fear? It seems to me high time that we asked ourselves some searching questions about our present state of near hysteria.

The Gallup Poll

Liberal Party Forges Ahead In Canadian Election Race

By George Gallup

Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J., June 14.—With election day June 27, Canada's Liberal Party, roughly the equivalent of the Democratic Party in the United States, takes a substantial lead in the first preelection poll conducted by the Canadian Institute of Public Opinion.

The gap between the two leading parties—Liberal and Progressive-Conservative—was found to be widening in late May due to fairly substantial Liberal gains especially in the Province of Quebec. The poll results are in terms of popular vote, not seats.

The Cooperative Commonwealth Federation Party (C. C. F.), which advocates government ownership of certain key industries and which is indorsed by the Canadian C. I. O., showed no change in strength from previous months.

The poll was completed in the last week of May and showed the following trend based on all eligible voters:

	April 1949	Late May,
Liberal	33%	40%
Progressive Conservative	25	24
C. C. F.	13	13
Other Parties	7	5
Undecided	22	18

For comparison, the vote cast for the parties in the last general election (1945) was

1945 Election
Liberal	32%
Prog-Cons.	21
C. C. F.	11
Other	12
Didn't vote	24

A vital factor in all election polling is the proper interpretation of the figures. Much of the uproar concerning polls after the presidential election in the United States last November came about because the critics had imputed to polls an infallibility which did not exist.

Polltakers themselves pointed out during the campaign itself and in previous years that poll results are always subject to a margin of error.

The Institute election poll of last November failed to pick the winner. However, its average error nationally on all four candidates came within the 4-point margin.

Premier of Newfoundland Charged With Intimidation

St. Johns, Newfoundland, June 14 (U.P.).—Newfoundland's Premier Joseph Smallwood today was summoned to appear in court on charges he intimidated voters in a recent campaign speech for the Liberal Party.

The charges, already being used as political ammunition by the Conservatives for the forthcoming national parliamentary aelections stemmed from a speech Smallwood made in the Ferryland District last week.

"Not 1 Cent"

The St, Johns Sunday Hehald quoted Smallwood as telling the audience:

"If you don't vote for (Liberal Candidate) Greg Power, not 1 cent will you get from the (Provincial) government during the next four years. Mark it down, I mean every word of it.

"You have turned me down three times. Ferryland voted against me in two referendums and in the provincial election, but I won in spite of you. Now I don't need you—I've been elected—but you need me.

"I'm sitting right on top of the public chest, and not one red cent will come out of it for the Ferryland District unless Greg Power is elected."

Calls Remarks 'Bantering'

Smallwood said yesterday he had made the remarks in a "bantering manner."

But W. J. Browne, Conservative candidate opposing Power, went to court and obtained four summonses ordering Smallwood to appear Thursday. He is charged with violating election laws which carry a possible sentence of two years imprisonment and a $2000 fine.

Newfoundland officially became a province of Canada March 31.

Matter Of Fact

The Last Card

SAIGON, Indochina.—The difference between China and Indochina can be simply stated. In China, a world disaster is entering its final phases in an atmosphere of decay, disillusion and despair. But in Indochina, a world catastrophe threatens, in an atmosphere that is all light-hearted charm.

The catastrophe that threatens here, of course, is the loss of the rest of Asia to the Soviet Union. Indochina is the danger point, where what has happened in China may become a chain reaction. But here in Saigon, the first thing you notice is how well the French know how to live. It is only a good deal later that you remark how little the French know how to govern.

THE PLACE is wonderfully pretty, wonderfully agreeable and wonderfully unreal. The French colonial officials, who were Indochina's only government for so long, have organized for themselves in Saigon every one of their favorite pleasures, from the most admirable food and the most exquisite parks, to the most interminable official forms which the humble applicant must fill out with due respect. The whole show is perfect in its way, and entirely convincing until you suddenly grasp the fundamental fact that Saigon is nothing but a charming concentration camp.

The trouble is the rebellion against French rule of Indochina, which the Communist chieftain Ho Chi-minh and his Communist staff have been leading since the end of the Second World War. Any European or American venturing beyond the perimeters of the city (except by dubious courtesy of Air France) risks death. Even within the city, when night falls, one's sleep is apt to be disturbed by machine-gun and mortar firing or by the explosion of grenades, which the followers of Ho Chi-minh toss into restaurants and theaters with monotonous regularity.

Somehow it is difficult to take all this seriously, perhaps because the French, who are really much more indifferent to personal danger than Englishmen and Americans, do not take it very seriously. Indeed, for most of them the little difficulties of life in Saigon apparently add a positive spice to existence. Yet the situation of the French in Saigon, and everywhere in Indochina, is in truth serious enough, not only for the French but for the whole Western world.

Militarily, as they delight to tell you themselves, the French in Indochina in 1949 are in the same position as the Germans in France in the early summer of 1944. Like the Germans then, the French now hold, at least during the daytime, the larger towns—Saigon, Hanoi, Haipong.

They attempt to hold certain main routes of communication, on which their convoys and trains are regularly blown up. Also hold without difficulty the racially distinct interior provinces of Laos and Cambodia and certain key points on the coast.

But for the rest, Viet Nam, the important coastal part of Indochina, is already Ho Chi-minh's.

That the French have come to such a pass is, in the voluble opinion of virtually every Frenchmen here, the fault of the French.

Viet Minh, Ho Chi-minh's resistance movement, is now owned heart and soul by the Communists. Yet the young men who blow up trains or toss grenades into cafes for Ho Chi-minh are not Marxists—they have not suddenly become converted to the theory of surplus value. They simply mean to have the right to make a mess of things in their own way.

EVERY intelligent Frenchman here will tell you that two years ago, even one year ago, the French should have offered them that right under an authentic, nationalist, non-Communist leadership. Then the French would have been able to retain every important commercial, cultural and political tie, losing only the outer trappings of colonial rule. This is precisely what the French are now attempting to do, but everyone agrees that they are making the attempt very late.

Indochina today is a sort of triple distilled object lesson in the near fatal weaknesses of the French system of government. All sorts of factors have operated to make the French position in Indochina almost hopeless. But what is basically responsible is the internal division, the necessity for endless compromise, which is inherent in French government, and which makes any decisive action almost impossible.

Now at last the French are acting. They have proposed an independent government of Viet Nam, under the former Annamite monarch, Bao Dai, and they have promised Bao Dai more internal sovereignity than Ho Chi-minh himself ever demanded. The intention is, of course, to pare away from Ho Chi-minh all but a small hard core of convinced Stalinists, rallying the real nationalists around Bao Dai.

The French themselves say that in Bao Dai they are playing their last card. The card is being played with the Chinese Communists sweeping down toward the borders of Indochina. Obviously much will depend on Bao Dai. A forthcoming report in this space will concern itself with the ability of the young monarch, and the assets which he will still command in the forthcoming struggle for power in this key country of southeast Asia.

Burma Crisis Declared Passed

Rangoon, June 14 (AP).—Prime Minister Thakin Nu today said the crisis in Burma has passed. He said the future of the country still depends on the outcome of the current conflict with several rebellious groups, but there is no likelihood of a return to "the bleak days of February, March and April," when the people lived in "a terrible state of suspense."

He made the statements in a report to the Burmese Parliament.

He said the active rebel groups now were four in number, but that "it is absolutely impossible" for them to unite. If any one group gained power, it then would face opposition from the others, he said.

The prime minister expressed confidence in the government's ability to overcome existing difficulties.

On the other hand, it was learned officially that Akyab, chief seaport on the West Burma coast, faces a threat from anti-government forces seeking to control the Arakan region. Disturbances reportedly have increased along this coastal strip, which currently is dominated mainly by Red Flag (Trotskyist) and White Flag (Stalinist) Communists.

The Burmese army was reported advancing on Minbu, an oil center and rebel stronghold 250 miles north of Rangoon. Minbu, is a new headquarters town of the White Band PVOs and Communists on the west bank of the Irrawaddy River.

Carson's FTC Appointment Put on Shelf

By Robert S. Allen

The appointment of John Carson, liberal Republican, to the Federal Trade Commission has been quietly pigeonholed in the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee.

Carson

No announcement has been made of this. But no hearings will be held on Carson, and the secret plan is to let his appointment expire with the adjournment of this session.

The committee will hold hearings on the appointment of Leland Olds for another term on the Federal Power Commission. A curious thing about this is that Olds was renamed only last week, while Carson's appointment was sent to the committee more than two months ago. However, while hearings will be held on Olds, it is still very doubtful whether any action will be taken on him.

Like Carson, Olds is being determinedly opposed by powerful business and political elements. Their outcries against the two men range from "New Dealers" to "leftists."

Leading foes of Carson are the National Association of Manufacturers, National Retail Dry Goods Association, and the Advertising Federation of America. The last-named charged that Carson's five brothers and one sister are registered Democrats in Indiana. Actually, only one brother is living, and the sister died 55 years ago, at the age of 5.

Vigorously supporting Carson are James Twohy, director of the Investors Syndicate of Minneapolis Msgr. L. G. Ligutti executive secretary of the National Catholic Rural Life Conference; William Green, AFL president; James Carey, CIO secretary-treasurer, and C. L. Brody, executive secretary of the Michigan Farm Bureau Federation.

Olds is under fire from utility and natural gas interests. He has a generally liberal record on the Power Commission, but on occasion has sided with the conservative members.

If the two are not confirmed at this session, President Truman will give them recess appointments. He has made that clear in private comments.

Reds in China Willing Tool Of Russians

By Spencer Moose

Pusan, Korea, June 14 (AP). — Communist China shines as an apparently willing satellite of Russia.

There is no sign of coercion or compulsion in the relationship. There is every sign the Chinese Communists are, in fact, eager to follow the dictates of Moscow.

As one just coming from Communist Peiping, I have been asked: "Are Chinese Communists simple agrarian reformers who by an unfortunate mischance chose the wrong label?"

The answer is a positive ..no."

Are Well-Trained Marxists

The idea they are only agrarian reformers is a myth that has been exploded in the minds of nearly everyone in North China.

Chinese Communists are exactly what they say they are—Communists.

Chinese Reds Seize Center For Wolfram

Hongkong, June 14 (U.P.).—Chinese Communist troops have captured Kanchow, site of China's most important wolfram ore deposits, only 200 miles north of Canton, the Central News Agency reported today.

Capture of Kanchow on June 12 marked the nearest approach of Red Manchurian Gen. Lin Piao's forces to Canton, which is steadily being evacuated by government officials.

Lin Piao's lightly armored columns are moving south against virtually no opposition, aided by Red guerillas who have been increasingly active in the Kiangsi-Fukien-Kwangtung border region.

Reports from Canton said meanwhile that two cabinet ministers already had resigned from Marshal Yen Hsi-shan's new cabinet formed less than a week ago. New York dispatches indicated Foreign Minister Hu Shih, now in the United States, would decline that post.

Central News Agency said George Yeh, Deputy Foreign Minister, and Gen. Chang Chun, minister without portfolio, had offered their resignations.

Bao Dai Claims Vietnam Rule

Saigon, June 14 (AP). — Bao Dai proclaimed himself the emperor of a new French-sponsored Vietnam state in Indochina today. But he said the ancient title meant nothing—the 20 million people will decide whether they have a monarchy or republic.

Bao Dai, abdicated as emperor of Annam in August, 1945, in the wake of Japanese collapse, which left Vietnam Nationalists and communists under Ho Chi-Minh.

He formally took over rule of a state composed of Annam, Tonkin and Chochin China, three of Indochina's five provinces, in a ceremony at the city hall. He was saluted by 21 guns and the new Vietnamese flag was unfurled.

By creation of the new state, which will have a semi-independent status within a French union, the French hope the emperor will wean away from Ho Chim-inh his Nationalist followers.

Pair Freed In Georgia Lynch Case

Irwinton, Ga., June 14 (AP).—An all-white grand jury today freed two white men of any guilt in connection with the lynch-murder of Negro Caleb Hill, jr., 28.

The jury, after an all-day investigation in this rural Georgia county seat, ruled there was not enough evidence to bring the pair to trial.

Dennis Lamar Purvis, 37, cafe operator and well-to-do businessman, and Malcolm Vivian Pierce, 27, electrician, had been held for nine days in the jail from which Hill was taken and shot to death May 30.

The Negro's widow swore out murder warrants against the two white men. Georgia Bureau of Investigation Agent H. M. Spurlin, Sheriff George Hatcher and Solicitor C. S. Baldwin said before the investigation they were "sure" they had enough evidence to obtain some indictments.

The grand jury heard 12 witnesses including law enforcement officers and three men who were in the jail when Hill was seized.

Before retiring into privacy, the grand jury foreman, Baptist Preacher Howard D. Blalock, prayed for "justice without prejudice."

Solicitor Baldwin emphasized that the investigation had removed "any question of doubt" about Sheriff Hatcher's blame in the incident.

"Most Georgia sheriffs would have shot the Negro instead of taking him to jail," Baldwin added.

Hill was arrested by Sheriff Hatcher at a Negro roadhouse.

Text of Board's Statement on Segregation

Following is the text of "A Statement Interpreting the Policy of Racial Segregation by the District of Columbia Recreation Board," as formally adopted yesterday:

As a clarification of the Recreation Board's racial policy conerning the use of facilities under its control, the board adopts the following:

The board will make every possible and realistic effort toward the removal of racial segregation in public recreation in such sequence and at such rate of progression, as may be consistent with the public interest, public order and effective administration.

The following statement is made in explanation of the board's attitude and the conditions which must govern it in implementing its policy.

On its creation in 1942 the board inherited a policy of segregation, providing equal facilities under a dual system, according to the pattern of the public schools which are an integral part of the recreational system, and in which segregation is required by law. Recent actions of the board have already indicated a departure from this policy.

Authority Acknowledged

Now that the Board of Education has acknowledged the Recreation Board's complete authority for determining policy in the use of school facilities for recreation purposes and the National Capital Park and Planning Commission has eliminated all racial designations of recreation areas in the District of Columbia Recreation System Plan, the Recreation Board unquestionably has the power to create its own policy in this respect.

On February 6, 1949, the board unanimously removed racial designations from permits affecting 18 tennis courts. On March 21, 1949, the board unanimously expressed its willingness to operate public golf courses on a nonsegregated basis if they were made available by the Interior Department for operation by the board. On May 10, 1949, the board unanimously approved a proposal of the American Friends Service Committee to experimentally operate three playgrounds during the summer period on an integrated basis.

At the June 14, 1949, meeting the by-laws committee will recommend that the by-laws be amended so as to allow interracial use of community and school buildings by permit for public assembly purposes. By these actions, the board is demonstrating its willingness to remove racial barriers in the use and operation of facilities and programs under its administration.

Just as the board has pursued an aggressive and effective program for expansion of facilities, increased appropriations and the raising of public recreation standards, it is similarly aware of the need for changing concepts and practices in the administration of a progressive public recreation program.

'Much Larger Pattern'

In effectuating this conversion the board must bear in mind the following facts:

1. The racial pattern heretofore existing in our recreation system is a part of a much larger pattern which has prevailed in much of the United States for generations under legal compulsion. In other areas the pattern continues despite legal restrictions to the contrary. Its roots are primarily emotional rather than rational, and the emotions have too often been of a violent and explosive nature giving rise to tragic consequences.

2. To avoid a repetition of such consequences, the elimination of segregation must always go hand in hand with the progressive education of the public mind. Wise and liberal administration of municipal facilities can accelerate this process to a certain extent, but not entirely. Public opinion, which can be led or educated, but in America cannot be coerced, must not be ignored.

3. There can be little doubt that public opinion in Washington has changed materially in recent years and that a substantial portion of our citizens do now intermingle and are anxious to abolish every kind of racial segregation. Nevertheless, an extremely large portion of our citizenry do not accept this liberal view.

We must recognize that elements are to be found among extremists in both directions who are notoriously seeking to exploit racial differences for the sole purpose of disrupting national unity.

Legal Responsibility

4. The board must not respond to pressure or criticism from extremists, regardless of their good intentions, who will wish it to move more rapidly or less rapidly than it should. The legal responsibility for progressively implementing this policy, destined to abolish segregation in public recreation, is one which the board did not seek but must accept as a burden and as part of its duty.

5. The board foresees three specific difficulties to be overcome:

First, the potentialities of racial friction vary in different parts of the city, and vary also according to the nature of interracial gatherings. This fact must and will be a major determinant in effectuating the board's policies.

Second, it must be borne in mind that the board's activities consist, not simply of making available certain areas and facilities, but also and most importantly of organizing recreation, including competitive sports, free play, social, creative, and cultural programs and the like, under the guidance of its staff. It is far more difficult to conduct such organized enterprises on an interracial basis than merely to make an area available to the public to do whatever it wishes. This vital fact is often overlooked in comparing the board's policy with the recently adopted interracial policy of the Interior Department on local park lands. In this connection, it must be remembered that the Interior Department has spent a number of years in the gradual process of eliminating segregation in the Park System.

Supervisors and Instructors

Third, supervisors and instructors who will conduct organized interracial recreation programs must necessarily be selected regardless of race. They must know how to deal with both races in such a way as to eliminate friction, prevent any undesirable "incident," and establish a reputation for complete impartiality. Such personnel require careful selection and training. Few of the board's personnel—competent and carefully selected as they are—have had such training, since they have habitually worked only with members of their own race. An essential element in the board's program must be the training of its personnel along these lines. This will require time and patience.

6. The interracial playground experiments with the American Friends Service Committee will be conducted through the voluntary assistance of an organization which has had long experience with the problems involved here. It provides an opportunity for the training of selected staff members in the approach and techniques required for such work. It is heartening to learn that we have already recevied offers from sufficient qualified and experienced personnel now in the department who have expressed a willingness to assist in this project. Upon conclusion of their relationship with the volunteer representatives of the Friends Committee they may serve as the nucleus for in-service training of other employes who may then be used for staffing additional playgrounds where the board will seek opportunities for the progressive extension of this policy. This is based upon the assumption, as seems probable, that the experiment will prove successful and satisfactory to the board and to the public.

In adopting this stand the board is embarking upon a momentous experiment of great importance to the entire Nation. It is dealing with a serious problems of human relations for which there is not and can be no easy or simple solution. If this policy can be successfully accomplished in our Capital City a great forward step will have been taken.

However, the board remains mindful of its primary duty to provide wholesome, healthful, and enjoyable recreation for the entire community. The ever-increasing "off the job hours" of our adults and the unscheduled hours of our youth necessitate a continual enlargement of facilities and personnel. As one of the salient factors in the maintenance of community scale, discipline, and solidarity, recreation is also an important means of demonstrating democratic principles among our people.

The quality of any civilization or individual is usually apparent in the use of its leisure time. It is to be hoped that this policy will be instrumental in extending the benfits of public recreation to more people so that they may enjoy a fuller life in the use of their leisure time and have a greater appreciation of their responsibilities as citizesn.

It is hoped that people of good will of both races will recognize the necessity of eliminating segregation in public recreation on a rational, workable and, essentially voluntary basis. If it will require more time to accomplish this integration, it will assure the permanence of these accomplishments and avoid probable dislocation of community life. The board earnestly bespeaks the sympathetic cooperation of all our citizens toward the implementation of this program, without which success will be impossible. From one group of our fellow citizens we ask, MODERATION; from the other group we ask, TOLERATION.

Dental Society Hears Health Plan Scored

Compulsory health insurance and Government intrusion in professional affairs would dull the initiative of dentists, and impair their services, Dr. Edward D. Leifer, retiring president of the District of Columbia Dental Society, said last night at the society's annual meeting in the Medical Society Auditorium, 1718 M st. nw.

Dr. Greeves

Dr. Burton

Dentists in our free enterprise system exert an amazing amount of energy in seeking professional improvement which results in betterment of dental health service to the public," he declared.

Dr. James J. Greeves, 43, who was chosen president-elect in June, 1948, automatically became president at last night's meeting. He attended Fordham Law School in New York, later came to Georgetown University on a football scholarship, where he was graduated in dentistry in 1931. He has practiced in Washington since.

Dr. Marcus H. Burton, 46, was elected president-elect to take office as president in June, 1950. A graduate of Georgetown University Dental School in 1933, he has engaged in practice here since then.

He is on the staffs of Sibley Memorial and George Washington Hospitals.

With his wife and three children, Dr. Burton lives at 1222 16th st. nw.

Elected vice president was Dr. Z. Bernard Lloyd, 34, of 4540 Chesapeake st. nw. He was graduated from Georgetown University Dental School in 1938, and in addition to private practice is now professor of orthodontics at Georgetown. He is married and has four children.

Elected to the Executive Committee were Dr. John O'Keefe, Dr. William D. Curtis, Dr. E. Milburn Colvin, jr., Dr. William Alexander and Dr. Joseph Manley.

Dr. Leifer in the society president's annual address said Washington dentists conduct monthly scientific meetings, special study clubs under ranking authorities, and a yearly postgraduate clinic that draws attendance from a dozen States. He emphasized the initiative of dentists under our present system in keeping abreast of professional developments and sharing knowledge and special technics.

"In the dental profession we know that the initiative and inspiration of the dentist can be nurtured best under the free enterprise system of dentistry," he said.

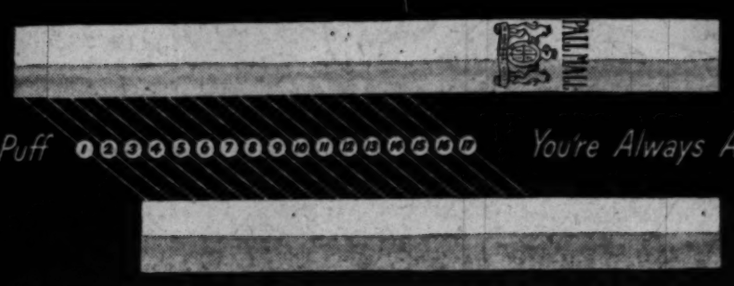
GUARD AGAINST THROAT-SCRATCH
enjoy smooth smoking

PALL MALL's greater length of fine tobaccos travels the smoke further... filters the smoke and makes it mild

LET YOUR THROAT ENJOY SMOOTH SMOKING! Puff by puff—you're always ahead when you smoke PALL MALL. For PALL MALL's greater length travels the smoke further on its way to your throat—filters it naturally through PALL MALL's traditionally fine, mellow tobaccos—guards against throat-scratch. Thus PALL MALL's fine tobaccos give you a smoothness, mildness and satisfaction no other cigarette offers you.

THROAT-SCRATCH SPOILS SMOKING ENJOYMENT. You guard against it when you smoke PALL MALL. If you really want your throat to enjoy smooth smoking, ask for PALL MALL—the longer, finer cigarette in the distinguished red package.

PUFF BY PUFF... YOU'RE ALWAYS AHEAD
Take 5 puffs or 10... or 17... when you smoke PALL MALL



Study the puff chart! At the first puff, PALL MALL's smoke is filtered further than that of any other leading cigarette. Moreover, after 5 puffs of each cigarette—or 10, or 15, or 17—PALL MALL still gives you a longer, natural filter of fine tobaccos—guards against throat-scratch.

Outstanding—and they are mild!

because of its segregation rule. Wender proposed suspension of the by-laws to permit the man to play, providing no other team in the league objected.

Schwab then said:

"I don't think the board should leap so suddenly."

He added it would result in "chaotic" conditions in the ball leagues to act "overnight."

Recreation board officials then explained that the league schedules already were made up. Wender withdrew his motion and the matter was referred to board administrative officials for a report at the July meeting.

The move to immediately end segregation was offered by Root.

Wender

Mrs. Hunter

A similar proposal offered by Mrs. Hunter also was defeated by a 5-to-2 vote.

Most of the discussion centered on the "statement interpreting the policy of racial segregation by the District of Columbia Recreation Board," offered by its bylaws committee, headed by Schwab.

Pledge Contained in Statement

The statement contained this pledge:

"The board will make every possible and realistic effort toward the removal of racial segregation in public recreation in such sequence and at such rate of progression as may be consistent with the public interest, public interest, public order and effective administration."

Wender declared the statement was not a "compromise" but a definite move forward. He indicated he was the chief author of the statement.

While the statement gave no time-table for putting into effect any of the steps toward ending racial barriers, it hinted that additional playgrounds will be added to the nonsegregated list if the interracial experiment to be conducted this summer on two areas is successful.

Both Wender and Schwab, leaders on the board, indicated no important change is likely until fall.

The action to throw open the schools, voted unanimously, climaxed a long campaign by various citizens and groups to end the present ban on mixed meetings in the public school buildings regularly turned over to the board for after-hour use.

This action followed a recommendation in the Wender report of last month pointing out the changing pattern in use of such public gathering places in Washington as meeting halls, sports arenas, hotels and theaters. The unanimous vote was a tribute to Wender's persistence.

The statement on playgrounds came under heavy attack from Mrs. Hunter. She read a lengthy "dissent" in which she said the statement was "not a new or compromise policy," but "only an attempt to justify the continuation of the existing segregation rule."

Mrs. Hunter said the statement contained only "a vague promise of good will" and she charged the by-laws committee with "engaging in mockery" in calling for public co-operation. She added:

"How can a white child who is denied the privilege of playing in a playground, how can a colored child who is denied the privilege of playing in a playground, solely because of a racial designation by this board, be sympathetic' toward a policy which continues the segregation rule and keeps him out?"

Root also read a statement in which he declared his proposal would "not compel" members of one race to associate with members of the other "if they do not wish to do so."

He said the segregation rule "violates our ideals and our democratic assertions both here and abroad" and "feeds the propaganda mill of the Communists and fascists . . ."

Citizen Walks Out

He said that if segregation were not ended there would be no "basis" for agreements with the Interior Department by which Interior would turn over other recreation facilities to the board.

Several citizens attempted to speak at the meeting but Wender reminded them it was open to them only as spectators. One walked out indignantly, declaring "you ought to be with the Nazis."

The board unanimously reelected its present officers for another term. They are Wender as chairman, Schwab as vice chairman and Mrs. Hunter as secretary.

The board will meet in closed session July 7 to discuss the 1951 recreation budget. A public meeting will be held on the budget at 8 p. m. June 21 in the District Building board room.

GI's Confession In Chapel Fire Read in Court

Pfc. George F. Falterman, 19, set the $75,000 fire that destroyed Bolling Air Base Chapel because he "felt bad about not being let to teach Sunday school," according to his confession read at court-martial proceedings yesterday.

The general court will reconvene today at 9 a. m. to hear defense testimony.

The prosecution rested yesterday following reading of the confession. Later in the afternoon Falterman testified he had been questioned from 10 a. m. until 11 p. m. with only three hours sleep in between before signing the confession last February 25.

The fire broke out in the chapel February 24.

Slot Funds Pay for Backers

Prince Georges County School Board will use the first slot machine receipts assigned to reinstate teachers and clerks cut from 14 county elementary schools under the county's 1949-50 budget.

Fourteen teachers and 13 clerks are affected by the decision, made at yesterday's board meeting.

Approximately $75,400 will be needed to reemploy the 27 persons, board members said.

The board expects to get sufficient slot machine receipts in time to restore the teachers and clerks by the beginning of the new school year in September, according to School Supt. G. Gardner Shugart.

Prince Georges County commissioners last week allocated to the schools all revenue from the newly legalized slot machines for the fiscal year beginning July 1.

The first year's revenue was estimated by the commissioners at $189,000.

The elementary schools at which the teachers and clerks will be restored are Riverdale, Greenbelt Center, North End, Berwyn, Laurel, Seat Pleasant, Suitland, Bradbury Heights, Oxon hill, Ager Road, J. Enos Ray, Capitol Heights, Mount Rainier, and Fairmont Heights.

Bids on five Prince Georges County school additions will be opened at noon June 29 at a special meeting of the board of education in Upper Marlboro, Md., the board decided.

The school board yesterday approved plans for the five additions. They include sanitory and heating improvements to the Lincoln Negro Elementary School at Vista, to cost $75,000; a four-classroom and multi-purpose room addition to Ager Road Elementary School to cost approximately $100,000; a $100,000 four-classroom and multi-purpose room addition to District Heights Elementary School; a four-room addition to Suitland Elementary; and a two-room addition to Oxon Hill Negro Elementary School.

Draft of Slot Machine Forms Approved in Prince Georges

The Prince Georges County Commissioners yesterday approved a draft of the application for a license for owning or distributing slot machines under the new county law legalizing such machines.

The licenses should be ready for distribution early in July. The printed forms will be offered for final approval of the commissioners next Tuesday.

In the draft, as presented by Robert Mathias, assistant attorney for the board, the applicant must signify the district or precinct wherein he is a registered voter.

Other Requirements Listed

(The law requires licensees to have been residents of Prince Georges for the past two years and to be registered voters there.)

The draft also requires a prospective licensee to:

1. Reveal if he ever has been convicted of a felony or of gambling-law violations in the State.

2. Signify if he ever had a license for an amusement device revoked and whether he owns the premises where the machine is to be placed.

Resignation Accepted

3. Affirm that no other person is interested financially in obtaining a license and that he has made no deals other than the offer of a share of proceeds with anyone in exchange for a location for the machine.

4. Authorize county authorities to enter his premises without a search warrant.

The commissioners accepted with regret the resignation of Waldo Burnside, attorney for the board since 1941, and named as his successor, Jerrold V. Powers of Landover Hills.

Ethridge Arrives Here To Report on Palestine

Ethridge, publisher of the Louisville (Ky.) Courier-Journal and Times, flew from New York. He told reporterss at LaGuardia Field upon his arrival there from Paris that he is "optimistic" over prospects for eventual peace in the Holy Land.

Says Governor

First Lady Of Florida To Be Chef

Tallahassee, Fla., June 14 (AP).—Barbara Manning had notice tonight that when she becomes Florida's first lady she also will become first cook in the gubernatorial kitchen.

Gov. Fuller Warren actually didn't propose to the pretty 23-year-old Californian on the basis of needing someone to cook his grits and fry his chicken.

No.

Miss Manning

Warren

It started yesterday when a press agent (one of two whom Warren denies he hired to keep Barbara's legs from being photographed) said there would be no bedroom mirror or kitchen apron photos either, because:

"A Governor's wife or, for that matter, most women in the south shouldn't work in the kitchen."

The press agent credited this quotation inferentially to the Florida Governor, adding he had expressly forbidden all such photos.

Warren seemed astounded today when asked about it. He said:

"If I had been silly enough to hire a publicity man who would make such a ridiculous statement, I would fire him forthwith."

"Barbara is such a good cook that in furtherance of frontier frugality which this administration has so faithfully practiced, I'm thinking about asking the cook at the executive mansion to take permanent leave of absence and let Barbara carry on his culinary duties.

The 43-year-old Governor, famed for his jesting, said the above with a straight face and no indication he was kidding.

Warren said he wasn't able to hire any publicity men but it developed that Miss Manning's publicity is being handled by John C. Flinn, Jr., and Bob Rhodes, both of Monogram Studio, one of whose chief stockholders is Lou Wolfson, Jacksonville industrialist who is to be best man at the wedding June 26.

Flinn said late today that the leg art, ban stands but that he was reversing Rhodes, who had said "no" to a kitchen shot.

Warren, after his high praise of his bride's cooking, tagged off his remarks with a statement that tore to shreds the romantic moonlight-and-roses curtain which had hung so heavily over the affair:

"I want to say further for the instruction of this dream-up Hollywood press agent that not only do most women in the South work in the kitchen, but many Southern hubsands toil with kitchen pots and pans."

Revolt Plot Charged To Japanese Reds

Tokyo, June 14 (U.P.).—The Democratic Liberal Party, headed by Premier Shigeru Yoshida, accused the Japanese Communists today of planning an "August revolution."

Recent strikes in Japan were initiated by the Communist Party to stir up the workers with an eye to using them in an August revolution, the party said.

On the Town

AMERICANS "have just as much taste for good food as Europeans," insists Gabriel Christol, chef at Michel's. He should know. Born in southern France, he was apprenticed to his relatives who were chefs in the famous resorts there. He has since traveled and cooked on three continents and is proud of "cooking in all languages."

GI's, especially, have acquired a taste for exotic foods in their travels, he believes. The real difference in American and foreign eating is one of availability. Hamburgers can be obtained anywhere, but where can an American get those delectable dishes so prevalent in Europe, he asks?

While serving in the French marines in North Africa, Christol was shipwrecked off Sicily. Then after his war service he cooked for Douglas Fairbanks, sr., in Africa, J. P. Morgan in South Carolina, Sarah Bernhardt in France.

His favorite dishes include Russian beef strogonoff, Italian gnocci a la romano, ravioli, Spanish tamales and enchiladas. These dishes he continues to serve at Michel's, along with the favorites of the luminaries he has worked for.

The Breast of Chicken a la Sarah Bernhardt was so tasty that we can't resist passing it on:

Remove the fillets of 3 chickens, pare into half hearts.
Arrange in buttered Sautoir.
Pour butter, lemon juice and sliced light fresh mushrooms, over chicken and cook until light brown.
Pour 1 glass sherry wine and ½ pt. of cream, and bake 30-40 minutes.
Add sliced Virginia ham cooked in butter, and top with rice pilaf garnish.

BIG-TIME entertainment in the airport's attractive Terrace Room starts tonight, when Jimmy Wakely heads the new Capitol Korncert show. Singing and Western star of Columbia Pictures, Jimmy Wakely is well up there on Billboard's Hillbilly Hit Parade.

Each Wednesday night at nine a well-known hillbilly star will be at the Terrace. Promoter for this is Connie B. Gay, former disc jockey, who sensed a trend and grossed more than a quarter million on it. His success with his hillbilly interest on the radio, in concert, and in variety program such as The Terrace's leaves little doubt as to Washington's taste for hillbilly music.

THE SHERATON LOUNGE is advertising "service with charm." Transparent skirts are charming, aren't they? Especially when their wearers are serving you drinks and led by such a girl as blonde Sherry, whom you may have seen on television. Rodney Davis completes the entertainment with his piano and organ, which he plays simultaneously.

SO MANY of the "New Dealers" used Fan & Bill's as a luncheon hangout in their day, that Steve Early still goes there for a touch of the old atmosphere. Although entitled to eat in his own private dining room at the Pentagon, he spends his lunch hours quietly over a Fan & Bill's planked steak. He just feels so at home there, he says.

Browns Toss Off Nats' Jinx, Wallop Haefner, 7-2

This Morning

—With Shirley Povich

I TAKE no great satisfaction now in having cast one of the votes that might have helped to install Charley Gehringer in baseball's Hall of Fame at Cooperstown, N. Y. At the dedication ceremonies the other day when they unveiled the plaques in honor of the five new installees, the guy didn't bother to show up.

From Kansas City, 79-year-old Kid Nichols, the ancient pitcher, made it. Pie Traynor was there to acknowledge the honor bestowed on him. Mordecai Brown and Herb Pennock, who have passed on from this life, were excusably absent. Gehringer, though, skipped the whole business to stick to his business in Detroit.

POVICH

Gehringer's office in Detroit gave as his excuse "pressure of business." He's a manufacturers' agent for the automotive trade, selling steering wheels, radiator top gadgets and buttons for seat covers, etc., and he couldn't possibly tear himself away to move up to Cooperstown for a day and accept his new honors personally.

I was just thinking he might have found time to detach himself for a few hours to be on the scene on a day when baseball was finding a niche for him among its immortals. That shows how easy it is, sometimes, to overrate a fellow.

BASEBALL WAS pretty good to Gehringer, I was thinking. It lifted him off the lots in a whistle-stop called Fowlerville, Mich., and opened a highly profitable career for him in the major leagues. He was the best second-baseman of his time, and probably the best-paid. He collected around $15,000 in World Series checks alone, while with the Tigers.

They gave a "day" for him in Detroit several years back before his career ended. Among the gifts presented him at home plate, an envelope was pressed into his hand. Therein was a nice check for $10,000, the gift of Club Owner Walter O. Briggs, sr. Gehringer left baseball as one of its most honored players, certainly one of its wealthiest.

Hundreds of former ball players on the fringe of greatness would have gone a-running to Cooperstown at the suggestion they might be honored with a niche there. It is still the highest tribute the game can bestow. Of course, there is no cash award accompanying it.

MARCEL CERDAN, the French Moroccan, defends his world's middleweight boxing title tonight against Jake LaMotta at Detroit, and there is a prospect that there will be a new champion at the end of the night's proceedings.

Much is being made of LaMotta's grimness in training for this shot at the title, his first, but at 27 he is a battle-worn campaigner whose best fights are supposedly behind him. Into his eight years in the ring, he has crowded more fights than the 33-year-old Cerdan, who has been performing as a pro for 14 years.

It's the fight they wouldn't have in New York because the New York Commission didn't consider that La Motta merited a title shot after his fiascos in that State, notably his knockout by Billy Fox in four rounds. Yet, the durable La Motta is never to be written out of any fight.

In Cerdan he will be meeting the type of opponent he likes best—the man who comes to him and invites the left-hook counter punch that LaMotta throws better than any other fighter now campaigning.

CERDAN is certainly the most refreshing foreign fighter ever to hit these shores. His swarming, milling style is in contrast to the calculated boxing technique of most old-world fighters, and in his maiden bout in the United States he received the highest tribute when it was observed, "He fights like an American kid."

If Cerdan has never met up with as sturdy a left-hooker as LaMotta, then Jake in turn has never encountered as constant a punch-thrower as the Frenchman. As canny a fighter and master boxer as Georgie Abrams couldn't solve Cerdan's style until it was too late, and when Abrams did devise some defenses and begin to take the play away from Cerdan, his only hope of winning was a knockout.

The last seen of Cerdan in this country, he was knocking Tony Zale silly and winning Zale's middleweight crown. That was last summer. But he can't afford to get careless with LaMotta.

Cerdan 5-8 Over Jake Tonight in Title Bout

By Jack Hand

Detroit, June 14 (AP).—Bronx cash and Jake La Motta's fine condition have cut the odds favoring Marcel Cerdan to 5 to 8 for the Frenchman's first defense of his world middleweight title tomorrow night at Briggs Stadium. It is 11 to 5 against Cerdan scoring a knockout over the erstwhile Bronx Bull who proudly boasts he never has been knocked off his feet. If Cerdan is to win, the knockout appears to be the most likely weapon.

Scars Around Eyes

La Motta, at 26 a veteran of 88 rough and tumble fights, is primed for the battle of his life. He may come in surprisingly light for a man who weighed as much as 167½ when he knocked out O'Neill Bell in this city April 18.

Since beating Zale into a state of utter helplessness at Jersey City to win by a 12th round knockout September 21, carefree Marcel has made a movie, fought an exhibition tour and knocked out two men—Dick Turpin and Lucien Krawcyzk — in nontitle bouts.

La Motta's career is checkered. The high spot was a 10-round win over Ray Robinson here in 1943, the only fight Sugar Ray ever lost. In 88 fights Jake has won 73, lost 12, fought two draws and been stopped once. He handles his own business with the help of his brother, Joey.

The one knockout loss to Billy Fox, November 14, 1947, created a scandal in New York. La Motta was stopped without being knocked off his feet when the referee halted the bout to save him from further punishment. There had been a strange shift in the odds, making Fox a 1-to-3 favorite in the late afternoon.

Jake later drew a suspension and fine for failing to report an injury to the New York State Athletic Commission. He blamed his poor showing on the injury. Since then Jake has been reinstated but it is a matter of common knowledge in New York that Chairman Eddie Eagan of the New York Commission frowned on a Cerdan-La Motta bout in New York.

Gordon Helps Feller Beat Bosox, 10-5

Boston, June 14 (AP).—Romping to six runs in the opening inning when Joe Gordon blasted a four-run homer and Manager Lou Boudreau angrily resented being hit with a pitch, the Cleveland Indians tonight whipped the Boston Red Sox, 10-5, before 35,137 fans, Fenway Park's largest night crowd.

The victory boosted the Indians into fourth place over the Red Sox and Washington Senators.

Bob Feller, who had lost his last five starts, went all the way for the Indians to gain his second win of the season, both at the Red Sox' expense. He gave up six hits and as many passes while striking out eight.

Boudreau, who played first base for the first time in major competition, was struck on the left elbow by Joe Dobson after Gordon belted his grand slammer.

Boudreau advanced toward Dobson after he was hit. Immediately both benches emptied. Players, managers, coaches and umpires milled around Dobson but no blows were thrown.

After the field was cleared, Boudreau went to the clubhouse for treatment and the Sox allowed Third Baseman Ken Keltner to be his manager's courtesy runner.

Eddie Waitkus Believed Shot

Chicago, June 14 (U.P.).—Eddie Waitkus, first baseman for the Philadelphia Phillies, was reported shot and wounded tonight in the exclusive Edgewater Beach Hotel.

Police who were called to the hotel said they were holding a woman identified as Ruth Ann Byrnes, of Philadelphia, as the person who fired the shot at Waitkus.

Virginian Wins Virginia

By Jack Walsh
Post Reporter

Fittingly, a horse owned by a Virginian captured both dashes in his division of the Virginian, split feature event at Rosecroft Raceway last night.

Crown Prince, owned by Lucius Westcott, Eastville, Va., and piloted by Billy Myer, made it a twin triumph. The 4-year-old was the easiest kind of winner first time around in a mile pace.

But he had Forbes Hanover to thank for his second victory when the same field went a mile and a sixteenth. Half of the favored Hylan entry and driven by Tom Walters, Forbes Hanover surged to the front at the top of the stretch and appeared to be under a winning drive. But the pace was too much and Forbes Hanover broke gait, finally finishing seventh.

Crown Prince's respective payoffs were $6.80, $4.60 and $3; $5.80, $4.20 and $3.40.

The other division had two winners with Doctor Vic winning at a mile under a nice drive by Paul Vineyard. When they stretched out, though, Doctor Vic broke gait right at the outset and Parma Hanover scored to the tune of a $12.40 payoff.

The usual Tuesday "off" night was observed with attendance only 5645 and the mutuel handled dropping below $200,000—to be exact $198,322.

But form wasn't off and a real outsider couldn't click until the eighth race when Lina, Jim Britt's 7-year-old mare, held off Pearl Gantle's blistering stretch drive, and paid $17.

The 5 and 7 daily double combination paid a mere $15.80. Ginny Hanover took care of the first half of it winning by a length and paying $5.60; then Crest came through paying $7.20 on a straight ticket.

Rosecroft Dope Charge Hearing Set

A hearing into the alleged stimulation of Miss Bonnie Lassie at Rosecroft Raceway, will be held Thursday, 10 a. m., in the offices of the Maryland Racing Commission in Baltimore, Chairman H. Courtenay Jenifer announced yesterday.

Miss Bonnie Lassie, winner of the first race on last Thursday's program, turned up the first positive saliva test in Maryland's harness racing history. Favorite in the race, she returned $4.80.

The horse is owned by S. S. Mather of Princeton, N. J., and is trained by brothers James and Alan Myer. Alan drove the horse on the night of the alleged stimulation but both handlers have denied any knowledge of tampering.

Presiding Judge Wayne Groves of Rosecroft, who announced the positive test last week and suspended all persons connected with the horse, will attend the hearing.

Cards Make Triple Play But Lose, 7-2

St. Louis, June 14 (AP).—The Cardinals showed some sparkling fielding with a triple play but the Brooklyn Dodgers poured on the hits and the necessary runs to whip the St. Louis club 7 to 2 on a rain-soaked field tonight.

It was the eighth straight victory for Brooklyn.

The 24,669 fans watched Jackie Robinson single home two runs before Gil Hodges lined to Marty Marion to start the one-two-three play in the first inning.

Marion took Hodges' liner, threw to Red Schoendienst to catch Carl Furillo off second. A fast toss to Nippy Jones got Robinson off first base for the triple killing.

Giants Top Reds, 2-0, On Jansen's 4-Hitter

Cincinnati, June 14 (AP).—Two slumping ball clubs met here tonight and the New York Giants were the ones to get rolling as they blanked the Cincinnati Reds, 2-0, behind Larry Jansen's tight, four-hit pitching. The Giants clubbed Eddie Erautt and Harry Gumbert for 11 hits as the Reds lost their seventh in a row.

Justice Ends Long Probe of Games on Air

The Justice Department has completed a preliminary inquiry into possible anti-trust law violations in organized professional baseball.

Department officials last night declined to comment on what the investigation thus far has shown, or to say if any further action is in prospect.

Actually, the department has never made any announcement on the subject. However, it was learned several months ago that members of the department's anti-trust staff had been assigned to examine the contracts under which major league baseball games are broadcast, televised, or transmitted play-by-play over interstate telegraph wire facilities.

The study was aimed at determining if there were restrictive features in these contracts which transgressed the anti-trust statutes relating to restraint of trade and commerce among the States.

The staff inquiry has now been completed and a report on its results has been handed up to higher officials in the Justice Department, who would not discuss its contents.

Trucks Tops A's, 4-0, on One-Hitter

Philadelphia, June 15 (AP).—Virgil Trucks held the Philadelphia Athletics to one hit tonight as the Detroit Tigers started their eastern invasion with a 4-0 victory. Hank Majeski's third inning single was the only blow off Trucks' right-handed slants as he registered his ninth win of the season.

Elmer Valo was the only other Philadelphia batter to get on base. He walked with two out in the second inning and, like Majeski, was left stranded on first.

The Tigers' ace right-hander fanned six to bring his total number of strikeouts for the season to 74.

Ostrowski's Six-Hitter Beats Griffs First Time

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

The Browns threw off the chains of bondage that the Nats had shackled them with on eight previous occasions and smote down their oppressors last night, 7-2.

Lefthander Joe Ostrowski, a surprise choice, surprised the Griffs, tossing a fancy six-hitter and also benefitting from a lusty 13-hit attack to flip the Brownies to their first decision of the year over the tailspinning Nats.

Ostrowski did more than win his first game of the season. He pitched the Nats out of fourth place and into a tie for fifth.

The defeat, administered before 11,290 patient Griffith Stadium patrons, was the sixth in the last 7 games for the Nats.

Haefner Fools No One

Little Mickey Haefner, who had already beaten the Browns twice this year, was trying for his sixth success, but received his second setback.

The knuckle-balling southpaw fooled practically no one and when he departed the scene for a pinch-hitter in the fifth inning, he left the Nats a 6-2 deficit.

Haefner was bumped for nine solid hits in his short tenure, the assortment including Dick Kokos' twelfth homer, a triple by Stan Spence and a double by Bob Dillinger, who also whipped out a couple of singles to make the evening rather enjoyable.

Sam Mele and Mickey Harris, the package deal sent down by the Red Sox in exchange for Walter Masterson, made their debut in Nats' livery. Outfielder Mele's was practically sensational while Pitcher Harris' left little to be desired itself.

Mele, Harris Shine

Mele, moved into right field as the Nats shifted to the right in their abortive attempt to upend the left-handing Mr. Ostrowski, cracked out a single, and a double and made a great throw to second base to rub out Jack Graham's attempt to leg a single into a two-base hit.

The southpawing Harris, wheeled in as a replacement for Haefner in the sixth, yield the seventh Brownie run, also giving up four hits.

From the sixth through the eighth, Harris looked much like the Harris who won 17 games for the Red Sox in 1946. He faced only nine batters, the minimum, during that span, striking out three.

The Browns leaped right in against Haefner, massaging him for four runs in the first inning. The first was rather simple. Spence dropped a triple into the corner of left field and trotted home as Dillinger poked a double into right center.

Kokos Corks Homer

After Gerry Priddy, the Browns' lone nonhitter last night, and Graham had rolled out, Rookie Roy Seivers singled off Mark Christman's glove to score Dillinger.

Sievers himself trotted in a few seconds later as Kokos lofted a Haefner offering over the boards in right.

Silenced for three innings, the Browns ganged up on Haefner for two more runs in the fifth on singles by Spence and Dillinger, Priddy's infield out and a single by Graham.

The Nats succeeded in denting Ostrowski's armor in the fifth for a couple of runs on two singles and a double by Al Kozar.

It remained 6-2 until the ninth when Harris gave up the seventh Brownie run on a double to Kokos and Sherman Lollar's single.

Helen Dettweiler, Beverly Hanson May Skip Western

Helen Dettweiler of Washington, D. C., and Beverly Hanson of Fargo, N. Dak., were undecided yesterday whether they would play in the Western Women's Open Golf Tourney at Oklahoma City this weekend.

Both women narrowly escaped serious injury when their car overturned on wet pavement near Wytheville, Va., yesterday. They have taken the train to Little Rock, Ark., where they will undergo physical examinations before making a decision of the Western meet.

Miss Dettweiler is one of the Nation's leading women pros, while Miss Hanson is considered among the top rank amateurs.

Miss Dettweiler bruised her shoulder and suffered a slight leg injury while Miss Hanson was cut about the head.

Frisch's Debut Losing One, 9-2

Chicago, June 14 (AP).—Frankie Frisch made his debut as manager of the sagging Chicago Cubs here today, but the Bruins, continuing their losing ways, took a 9-to-2 licking from the Philadelphia Phillies.

The Cubs loss was their 32d against only 19 wins.

The Phillies routed Bob Muncrief with a five-run splurge in the third inning that included five hits and an error. Two of the runs were unearned. So was another in the fifth. Andy Seminick whacked his twelfth homer of the season with two on in the sixth.

It was Seminick's fourth homer in three games and his ninth in the last 14 contests.

Cacique II, Regains Form, Wins at Charles Town

Bill Bennings . . .

DEAR FOLKS:

Several of the jockeys have been giving me tips on how to perform in the saddle, believing that I will ride in the mule race here on the National Press Club frolic program. However, Arthur (WTOP) Godfrey has the best explanation of riding. He says to put your right leg on the right side and your left leg on the left side and keep your mind in the middle. Arch McDonalh, the horse, has been sold to G. W. Tanneyhill of Hagerstown. We can't match him with Walter Haight, the horse, because the latter has been shipped to Ohio. Jockey Frances Weir, an old timer, who was doing well here, has retired again due to constant trouble trying to take off weight. Dr. Ernest Blanche, author of the book "You Can't Win," was a visitor. He was seen headed for the cashier's window after the first raise. "I didn't win," said Doc, "the cashier's an old friend." BILL.

Importation Scores After 3 Failures

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Charles Town, W. Va., June 14.—Tyson Gilpin's Cacique 2d, out of the money in his three previous starts after winning impressively here, developed stretch momentum today and ran off with the Bel Air Purse, featuring the Tuesday program.

The crowd was watching a keen stretch duel between G. S. Gladney's War Champ and C. E. George's Chaffee Dee when Cacique 2d, a South American importation, decided to break it up and came on to win going away by two and a half lengths.

War Champ was second and a neck in advance of Chacee Dee in the field of eight operating over the Charles Town course of slightly more than 6 furlongs.

Cacique II failed to get in the pay circle in nine tries last year and made it two for this season. He was firmly well backed and paid a $10.80 win mutuel after Chaffee Dee had been installed the favorite. The winner turned in the excellent time of 1.17 3/5. He was beaten oc in 1.18 here June 6.

Dick Pending's Bernie Moose, a son of Bull Moose, the local sire, won his second race in a row when he took the opener from Norman Corbin's fleet Snow Passes. Jockey Ray Arduini was aboard the $8 winner. The second race went to W. F. Parks' Foxler, a $5 favorite. Those who backed the pair, numbers 2 and 6, received a $22.40 payoff on the daily double.

To make the problem a little weightier, Benny Bortnick and Claudio Villar will apply their 500 pounds as referees.

House Group Approves Measure on Federal Job Night Pay Differential

On Capitol Hill Yesterday—

A bill that would make Federal workers eligible for night differential pay at 6 p. m. on either Daylight or Standard time was approved by a House Civil Service subcommittee.

Another subcommittee approved a bill to give annual automatic promotions to part-time postal custodial employes. These people must now work a minimum of 2064 hours before they can be promoted.

The Douglas Subcommittee of the Labor Committee heard Federal Security Administrator Oscar Ewing describe as "reasonable and just" the Administration's bill to liberalize the employes compensation system. Ewing emphasized that rates of compensation paid to employes injured on the job hadn't been changed since 1927. He said 80,000 Federal workers suffer accidents every year and 11,000 of them are certified for compensation.

At the suggestion of Senator Douglas (D., Ill.), Ewing will estimate the cost of making payments to employes who suffered major disabilities back to 1916. Meantime, the House Rules Committee is sitting on a similar bill approved by the House Labor Committee.

STORY: The charwomen at the Library of Congress are off their knees for the first time. They have been supplied with lightweight mops. Credit Librarian Luther H. Evans with the reform.

RFC is finding jobs for its displaced employes. The Reconstruction Finance Corp. is now down to about 40 per cent of its wartime high. About 900 of those laid off have asked for help from the personnel office to get other jobs. The office has been successful in 873 of the cases, or 96 per cent. That's an enviable record.

PENTAGON: Employes in the Army's historical division also are protesting as "unhealthy" their new offices on the first floor of the giant office building. Two hundred odd employes are being moved from the fifth floor to inside rooms on the first floor that have no outside light and the minimum of air. Employes charge that the new working conditions will "endanger our health, impair our vision, and destroy our souls." The 600 Adjutant General's Office employes who were moved to the subbasement "Mole's Heaven"—are promised better working conditions shortly.

SEC: The Democratic congressional delegation from Ohio is supporting George L. Rodgers, an SEC attorney, for promotion to the vacancy on the Securities and Exchange Commission.

The SEC staff tonight will give a farewell party for Robert K. McConnaughey, who didn't seek renomination. McConnaughey will join the law firm here of Shea, Greenman & Gardner.

JOB: A refrigeration mechanical engineer (P-5 rating) for duty in Saudi Arabia is being sought by the personnel office at Andrews Air Force Base.

WAGE AND HOUR inspector jobs that are in grades CAF-6, 7 and 8 will be reclassified to grades 7 and 9 as of July 1. With the agency's present staff, the average factory can't be inspected but once every 20 years.

But if Congress approves the President's plan to raise the minimum wage, the Labor Department agency will request additional funds to hire a larger staff to make more frequent checks.

CENSUS: Hollywood set up shop yesterday at Census Bureau's Suitland, Md., offices. Paramount Studios began work there on a movie to show how the bureau will conduct next year's general population census. . . . CIVIL SERVICE'S Board of Appeals and Review on Monday will begin to hear the appeals from 15 hearing examiners with Civil Service status who were rated unqualified for their jobs in a new test. Forty others were rated eligible after a review of their qualifications. . . . EXPORT-IMPORT BANK is being moved to the RFC Building. The Government is closing its offices in the Walker Building.

NEW AGENCY: The House Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce has approved a bill to create a National Science Foundation. The agency would be operated by a 24-man science board whose members would be appointed by the President. The board would select operating personnel. The Senate has approved a similar bill.

Arlington Adopts New Religious Class Plan

'Dismissed Time' Training Allows Instruction After 2 P. M. Closing

By Don Olesen
Post Reporter

Arlington's School Board last night adopted a compromise plan for conducting religious education classes in the public schools.

Once every two weeks, elementary school pupils henceforth will be released at at 2 p. m. instead of the usual time of 3:30 p. m.

Under this "dismissed time" plan, the board said, "responsible groups" in the county could offer religious instruction—in the school buildings—to those pupils who voluntarily remained after the 2 p. m. closing.

This would differ from the "released time" plan used in the past and widely attacked by several county groups as a violation of the 1948 McCollum decision of the United States Supreme Court.

Distinction Noted

The released time plan held religious instruction classes during school hours, with students not attending given other work by their regular teachers. Under the dismissed time program, students not attending the special classes are allowed to go home.

Mrs. Elizabeth Campbell, school board vice chairman, presented the compromise plan to the board last night. She said it "will remove all valid objections to the former program."

But L. D. MacIntyre, chairman of the Committee for Separation of Church and School in Arlington, said he felt the dismissed time program still:

1. Makes use of school facilities for religious purposes, although after hours.

2. Reduces the hours Arlington school children would have for their regular education.

Tends to Divide

3. Tends to "divide" students between those who attend and those who do not attend the religious instruction classes. The committee has engaged in a long fight against the released time setup.

MacIntyre added, however, that this group was "grateful to the school board for deciding to cancel the released time system."

The Rev. C. Fred Williams, past president of the Arlington Council of Religious Education, which has sponsored the released time classes, said he felt the board had made an "honest effort" to solve "a difficult program."

Also last night, the board announced that beginning next fall an elective course on the Bible will be offered at the Washington-Lee High School, using a course syllabus worked out by the State of Virginia after consultation with a joint committee of Catholics, Jews and Protestants.

2-Month Plan For Venereal Diseases Set

Two United States Public Health Service workers will be assigned to the District health department for two months to try a new technique in arresting the spread of venereal disease cases.

The personnel will act as combination interviewers and investigators in an attempt to locate all persons listed as possibly infected by new cases. The program will be part of a District drive on the diseases.

At present, the District has seven persons assigned to interviewing persons with venereal diseases, but there is a three-day delay before other personnel contact the people who may have been infected, Dr. S. Ross Taggart, director of the District Bureau for Venereal Disease, said. The delay is due to processing of papers and personnel shortages, he explained.

The District drive will take place in July and August as part of a campaign sponsored by the Health Service and city health units.

4-H Club Visits Here To Study Government

Outstanding farm boys and girls from 47 States, together with others from nine countries and special delegates from 20 States, will headquarter at the Raleigh Hotel through June 22 while visiting Federal agencies on the theme, "Know Your Government."

Home Condemned

Suit Refused On Woman On Relief

By Joseph Paull
Post Reporter

Assistant Corporation Counsel Philip N. Brophy refused yesterday to prosecute a woman for living with her seven children in a condemned ramshackle house here.

The woman, Mrs. Lucinda Scott, 36, of 114 F st. sw., was brought into the offices of Brophy in Municipal Court after repeated warnings to leave her quarters. She declared that she is receiving $108 a month from public assistance funds and is "too busy" taking care of her family to seek work as a housemaid.

After ascertaining her situation, Brophy declared:

"I'm not going to prosecute this woman. I'll do my duty, but I don't want to feel like a Simon Legree."

Might Be Jailed

If prosecuted and convicted, Mrs. Scott would face a fine of $100 or three months in jail for every day that she remained in her condemned home.

The woman and seven children, ranging from 16 years to 1 year in age, live in two dismal rooms at the F street address, which was condemned as unsafe and insanitary last February. She has been under orders to leave the place since May 6 but declared that no one is willing to give her family shelter.

Her rooms are dank and dark. There are holes in the torn ceiling where water drips in. Foul water flows from near the outhouse. Mrs. Scott says she is afraid of the rats.

One of her twins, 12 months of age, its body covered with a rash, squalled.

"I think she has chickenpox. The rash came out this morning and I'll have to take her to a clinic," Mrs. Scott said.

Tries to Find Shelter

After seeing how the woman lived, Brophy made repeated attempts with welfare agencies to find the woman more adequate shelter. But he was without success.

"We get 15 to 20 situations of this kind each week," Brophy said.

Mrs. Scott said that she separated from her husband eight years ago. The father of her younger children is serving three years in a house of correction, she declared, and there is no money coming in except from public sources.

Before she would allow reporters to come into her house, she and her older children quickly tossed the trash in the back yard into cans.

Summit Park Citizens Group Installs Head

Charles Dohne of 3633 Austin st. se. was installed last night as president of Summit Park Citizens Association at a meeting at Anne Beers School, 36th pl. and Alabama ave. se.

Other officers installed were: J. W. Smith, first vice president; Mrs. George Marshall, second vice president; Mrs. Joseph Cannon, secretary, and Akel Feriozi, treasurer.

The group went on record in favor of home rule for the District.

Fort Dupont Backs Smith for School Job

The Fort Dupont Citizens Association last night indorsed William J. Smith, Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Co. lawyer, for appointment to the Board of Education.

Meeting at the Anne Beers School, 36th pl. and Alabama ave. se., the 22 members present turned down a recommendation by a special committee which favored Arthur Morrisette, outgoing president of the Summit Park Citizens Association, for the appointment.

School Official Urges Teaching of Leadership

Edith Lyons, supervising principal of District elementary schools, Division 10 to 13, last night urged civic associations to prepare "the right kind of leadership" to meet the "challenge of our new democracy."

Miss Lyons spoke before 50 members of the Barry Farms Civic Association at the St. John C. M. E. Church, 2801 Stanton rd. se. It was the group's final meeting until fall.

Group Opposes Changes In the White House

The Thomas Circle Citizens Association last night adopted a resolution asking retention of the White House in its present form after repairs are completed. The 25 members met at 1536 16th st. nw. It was their final meeting until October.

'Dead Numbers' Come to Life And Haunt Local Operators

The czars of Washington's numbers business took their worst licking in 10 years last week when two "dead numbers," 417 and 810, came out Thursday and Saturday.

One big-shot numbers operator lost $60,000 on 810 alone, an expert revealed yesterday. Total damage on 810 was estimated at more than $300,000, while the payoff on both numbers was said to be in excess of half a million dollars.

A dead number is one that has not hit for a long time, and consequently is considered a good prospect by numbers players. Many pick a dead number and let their bets stand week after week until they either hit or go broke.

Winning numbers currently are determined from the total mutuel payoffs on the first three races at the operating Illinois track.

Winners are paid anywhere from 600 to 1 to 800 to 1.

Carter Case Appeal Route Held Barred

Perlman Says Court Lacks Jurisdiction In 'Administrative' Decision of Judges

Solicitor General Philip B. Perlman yesterday told the United States Court of Appeals that it lacks jurisdiction over an "administrative" decision of District Court judges.

The appellate court has before it the appeal of John W. Carter, 49, whose application for a bondsman's license was approved in November, 1947, and then disapproved in June, 1948, by several District Court judges.

Perlman's appearance was in behalf of the judges. On May 28, he filed a motion for them that asked that they be heard before the appellate court handed down an opinion.

The Solicitor General asserted that Federal District Judge David A. Pine had been "misled" in giving the original license approval.

He contended that in approving or denying applications for bondsmen's licenses, the court is carrying out an "administrative function" which is not subject to judicial review.

He said Carter's application for a license stated he had never been "charged and/or convicted" of an offense involving moral turpitude. Judge Pine later learned, however, that Carter, operator of a restaurant at 1228 U st. nw., had been arrested on gaming charges and also for receiving stolen property, Perlman said.

Last June, Judges Pine, Alexander Holtzoff, Richmond B. Keech and Edward M. Curran agreed on an order rescinding approval of the license.

27 Million Tax Stamps Are Ordered

District cigarette wholesalers and several retailers will meet with city tax officials today at 10 a. m. in the District Building to discuss tentative regulations on the tax collections.

Collector of Taxes Guy W. Pearson yesterday ordered 27 million decalcaomanis, cigarette tax stamps. Bids for production of the stamps will be opened by Purchasing Officer Roland M. Brennan on June 21 at 10 a. m. Most of the stamps will be affixed by machines, Pearson said.

Yesterday Superintendent of Licenses Chatham T. Nottingham received reports from a city-wide check made by police officials on the number of dealers now selling cigarettes. Nottingham said the reports show at least 5000 retailers, 16 wholesale distributors and 7 vending machine distributors. One machine operator has 1400 placed around the city while the others average from 100 to 125 each.

Pearson said the flurry of requests by liquor wholesalers for stamps has ended. Several dealers attempted to buy large amounts of stamps in order to lay in stocks at the present lower tax rate.

The tax collector said if the wholesalers attempt to revive the issue in the courts, he will ask Congress to adopt a floor tax, placing the added levy on all bottled goods in stock on August 1.

Two Are Fined In Attempt to Get Jobless Pay

A man and a woman were each fined $25 yesterday for misrepresentation in attempting to secure unemployment compensation here.

They are Nelson Jones, 25, of 1621 12th st. nw., and Louise Hubbard, 28, of 1405 6th st. nw. Sentence was imposed by Judge Ellen K. Raedy of Municipal Court.

According to the evidence, Jones obtained an identification card belonging to one Athea Covington which Mrs. Hubbard used June 7 at the offices of the District of Columbia Unemployment Compensation Board, in an attempt to get payment. Mrs. Hubbard's identity was discovered after she signed "Covington Athea," reversing the given and surnames, police said.

Zionists To Install

The Arlington-Fairfax Zionist District and the Arlington-Fairfax Chapter of Hadassah will hold joint officer-installation ceremonies at 8:30 tonight at the Arlington Jewish Center, Lee blvd. and S. Fenwick st.

Man Predicts End of World, Jumps to Death in Channel

A 35-year-old man jumped to his death into the Washington Channel yesterday just north of of the East Potomac public golf course after forecasting the end of the world.

A few moments before he dove into the channel, William Walker, 718 Green cr. sw., described his suicidal intentions to a golfer looking for his ball near the channel edge.

R. J. Tepper, a graduate student of 1426 M st., nw., told police Walker had approached him at the golf cause shouting, "this is the end of the world; two devils are coming," and saying he was about to "end it all."

Tepper paid no attention until five minutes later when he was attracted by the shouts of a passerby. He ran to the scene, jumped in after Walker, and made several attempts to locate his body in the 8-feet-deep water.

Walker was pronounced dead at 4:12 p. m., by Dr. Beth Glover of Emergency Hospital, 15 minutes after his body was fished from the bottom of the channel by Park Police.

The Fire Department's Rescue Squad No. 1 worked over Walker with an inhalator until he was pronounced dead. His body was taken to the morgue.

Dog Show Profits Go to Medicine . . .

The Washington Post

CHILDREN WILL BENEFIT—A $500 check, representing profits from the Old Dominion Kennel Club's recent dog show, is accepted for Children's Hospital by a polio victim from Bogota, Colombia. Presenting the money to little Patricia Armijo, who came here to have her legs straightened after an attack of infantile paralysis, are Mrs. Edward M. Perkins (left) and Mrs. Raymond M. Wilmotte, both members of the Kennel Club. Patricia, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick H. Armijo, whose father is administrative assistant at the United States Embassy in Bogota, was chosen to accept the gift because she has often enjoyed the wheel chair, which was purchased with part of last year's donation from the Kennel Club

Far East Held Easy Soil for Communism

The Far East is more fertile soil for communism than Europe because of more ignorance and more misery, the Philippine Minister said last night.

Speaking before 200 delegates at the opening of the annual convention of the D. C. Department, Veterans of Foreign Wars, in the Interior Department auditorium, Minister Emilio Abello said an economic and social security program for the Asiatic peoples is urgently needed to check the advance of totalitarianism.

Maj. Gen. Harry H. Vaughn, military aide to the President, brought the convention the personal greetings of Mr. Truman.

Next item on the convention agenda is a dance tonight at the Wardman Park Hotel. Resolutions, election of officers and other business is scheduled for sessions Thursday and Friday evenings at the Mayflower Hotel.

Galvin Speaks At Flag Day Exercises Here

Several hundred persons yesterday attended Flag Day exercises held in the Interdepartmental Auditorium at the Labor Department.

They heard Undersecretary of Labor Michael J. Galvin express the hope that the flag "never will be sullied by any of the false totalitarian thoughts abroad in this world today."

Galvin pointed out that "nine times our flag has been carried into major engagements and nine times it has emerged victorious." He said it means the same thing to the Nation's people now that it meant in 1777.

Marshall C. Miller, post commander for American Legion Post No. 42, presided at the exercises. "Lest we forget," he said, "19 employes of the Department of Labor gave up their lives in World War II."

School Board Sets Citizens' Meeting Date

The Board of Education will hold its annual meeting with citizens to hear requests for the 1950-1951 budget June 29 at 8 p. m. at the Thomson School, 12th and L sts. nw.

Representatives of parent-teacher and citizens associations have been invited to submit recommendations for school expenditures.

Girl Has Relapse

Iron Lung Rushed to Aid Polio Victim

An iron lung yesterday was rushed from Arlington Hospital to Washington Sanitarium at Takoma Park for a 24-year-old girl victim of polio as police sirens cleared the way for the mercy mission.

The patient, Miss Jean Talbott of 3231 N. Albemarle st., Arlington, daughter of Philip M. Talbott, vice president of Woodward & Lothrop, was stricken with the dread bulbar type of polio last October.

She was hospitalized at Gallinger and, about two months ago, transferred to Washington Sanitarium after appearing to be recuperating.

Monday night, the young woman suffered a relapse, according to Dr. Robert A. Hare, a medical director at the sanitarium.

He said he called Dr. Lewis K. Sweet of Gallinger, who handled the case originally, and was told that each of the five iron lungs at Gallinger was either in use or undergoing repair.

Dr. Sweet, however, communicated with the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, which authorized loan of an iron lung it had stored at Arlington Hospital.

A truck, borrowed from Arlington County authorities, with an escort of Arlington, Montgomery and Washington police, sped the equipment to the sanitarium.

According to Dr. Hare, Miss Talbott's condition, while serious, is not "critical."

Group Approval Of D. C. Pay Bills May Be Sought

Senate District Committee approval may be asked Tuesday for House-passed bills calling for municipal pay boosts and paid sick leave for public school teachers.

The committee will meet at 11 a. m. Tuesday. Chairman J. Howard McGrath (D., R. I.) voiced hope the committee might agree to the bills without ordering detailed hearings on them. He pointed out that their purposes had been discussed in considerable detail during earlier hearings on the new District revenue law.

A major purpose of the revenue bill was to cover the costs of the proposed pay increases. Senators Lester C. Hunt (D., Wyo.) and Andrew F. Schoeppel (R., Kan.) promptly seconded the idea that the pay and sick leave bills could be approved without further hearings.

Judge Raedy Holds Women May Damn Men Politely

It is not disorderly conduct for a woman to say, "All you damn men are alike and no good," Judge Ellen K. Raedy of Municipal Court ruled yesterday.

Her ruling caused dismissal of a charge of disorderly conduct against Mrs. Dorothy Gaither, 26, of 58 N st. sw. She also was acquitted of a charge of assaulting Police Pvt. Alton Thomas of the Fourth Precinct.

Thomas said that he met Mrs. Gaither outside 319 O st. sw., June 13 as he sought to serve a summons on another person. He said that during their conversation, Mrs. Gaither used the words: "G—— damn," but the defendant would admit only to "damn." He said she scratched him with her nails when he tried to arrest her.

In dismissing the cases, Judge Raedy declared:

"This is a small matter. I feel that 'damn' as used in this case is not profanity."

Senate Unit Bars Funds For Building New Office

Full Committee Votes 14 to 4; Dwellings on Site Still to Be Razed

The full Senate Appropriations Committee voted 14 to 4 yesterday against a 10-million-dollar appropriation which would have permitted start of construction this year on a new Senate Office Building.

The full committee thus sustained a 5-to-2 vote taken earlier in the day when a subcommittee rejected the appropriation.

The House previously had denied funds for the new Senate quarters.

The new building, expected to cost 20 million dollars, is to be erected on a site immediately east of the present Senate Office Building.

Ellender Leads Opposition

Senator Dennis Chavez (D., N. Mex.), a member of the Appropriation Comittee, who, as chairman of the New Senate Office Building Commission, had approved the construction plans, tried unsuccessfully to guide the appropriation through.

Voting with him for the appropriation were Senator Guy Cordon (R., Oreg.), Senator Carl Hayden (D., Ariz.) and Senator Styles Bridges (R., N. H.).

Senator J. Ellender (D., La.) led the fight against the appropriation on grounds of economy. He conceded there is a need for more office space but suggested, as he has in the past, that the problem might be worked out by a more equal allocation of space to all Senators and by making better use of the basement in the present building.

Suggests Another Story

He said, too, that at some future date another story might be added.

Chavez, blocked in his hopes to have construction on the new building start next month, said the planners will go ahead with the razing of dwellings, mostly vacated, in the block where the new structure is to be erected.

Funds already are available for leveling of condemned dwellings on the site of the proposed building and a contract for the razing operations probably will be awarded in a few days, Chavez said.

Requisitions Setup Revised By Gallinger

A new system for handling requisitions of materials has been adopted at Gallinger Hospital as a result of claims made three months ago that $6000 worth of goods was purchased "irregularly" there.

Commissioner Guy Mason said a proposal for hiring an administrative "trouble-shooter" to supervise the purchasing setup has been tabled in favor of an overhaul of the requisitions method.

Purchasing officials at the institution are now required to maintain a step by step check on requisitions from when they are first requested to the time that the goods are received and vouchers approved, he explained.

In the past bills have been presented, and no evidence could be obtained that requisitions were properly processed or, in some cases, that the goods were actually received, Mason said.

Last March, Corporation Counsel Vernon E. West ruled that the District had a moral obligation to pay for about $6000 in goods purchased "irregularly" on "emergency orders" after Auditor A. R. Pilkerton declined to pay for the items.

The bills covered purchases made from 1942 to 1947 and were eventually settled, according to Commissioner Mason.

Store Chute Fails Intruder as Exit

There's a law of physics that says what goes up must come down. But there's no law that guarantees what goes down must come up.

An 18-year-old youth learned this yesterday when he was captured in the basement of the People's Drug Store at 5550 Connecticut ave. nw.

George Wiseman, assistant manager, opened up at 7:30 a. m. and saw that the door leading to the basement had been tampered with.

"Hmmm . . . and all the windows and the outside door are locked," he mused.

Along came the iceman, and he accompanied Wiseman to the basement. Suddenly a head popped up from behind an ashcan. It belonged to the 18-year-old youth.

"I give up," he declared. "I got in, but I can't get out."

Later, the youth told Eighth Precinct police he had entered the store at about 3 a. m. through a coal chute.

He said he got into the store proper, loaded his pockets with merchandise, then—unhappy day—found he couldn't get out. The coal chute which made possible his entrance is a tricky affair with a bend which makes it possible to slide in but not climb out.

The youth was held by police for investigation.

A.B.'s Blamed

Children Get Fewer By Degrees

By The Associated Press

Maybe the A.B. degree means "abolish children."

For the Population Reference Bureau yesterday came up with the news that college graduates don't produce enough children to replace themselves.

Its study deals with the class of 1924, busy with its twenty-fifth reunion this month. The women, the study shows, have failed to reproduce themselves by 40 per cent, the men by 16 per cent.

Other quick items from the study:

Fair Harvard Cautious

The more you educate a girl, the less you're likely to educate a mother.

The farther west you go, the more likely you are to run into college-educated parents.

According to the bureau, if any class of people wants to reproduce itself, as a group, it must average 2.1 children a couple.

By this standard, Brigham Young University is bearing up nobly. Its women of the Class of 1924 have produced, on the average, 3.47 children. Its men, 2.45 children.

Vassar, too, is trailing statistically. Its alumnae have averaged 1.49.

Practices and Preaches, Too

Dr. Clarence J. Gamble of Boston, who directed the study, thinks college graduates spend too much of their time trying to provide the proper environment for their children.

"Why can't graduates afford families?" he asked. "If they can't who can?"

The doctor is no mere theorist, either.

He has five children.

Something For Everyone

High Life and Good Times Of Paris in the Spring Are Variations on a Theme

By Mary Van Rensselear Thayer

Paris (Delayed)—When Princess Margaret Rose was in town she dined at the Laperouse. To celebrate this triumphant occasion fittingly, the doorman and some dozen very small pages were costumed in Francois ler liveries, wigs and all. Cocktails were served below in the famous wine cellars. The Princess menu, considered almost insultingly simple, consisted of "basquettes de foie gras, canard a l'orange, tarte aux fraises des bois—and a single wine—Chateau-Bouscaut 1928.

After a Washington winter chastely devoid of night clubbing, it was heaven, or, rather, an earthly and possibly more pleasant approximation of same, to whip from the Casanova, with its lush blue brocaded armchairs, to the Florence, now tidily tricked in beige and red velvet, to Monseigneur and Sheherazade. Six violinists still fiddle wistfully or passionately according to mood, at both Casanova and Monseigneur and at the firmer, Claude Alphant, wife of French statesman Herve Alphand, whispers sophisticated songs to the accompaniment of her guitar.

The long-haired, bearded artists—French chewing gum and trying to look American, Americans wearing berets, corduroy pants and trying to look French, have practically deserted Montmartre for the very ancient Quatier of St. Germain-des-Pres.

EXISTIANTIALISM and its creator, Jean-Paul Sartre, are the quintessence of Bohemian fashion. M. Sartre hangs out most evenings at the Cafe Flore, almost next door to Les deux Maggots. The "types" or characters who drop in for a chat, a buck or a fin, are enchanting. Besandaled, bearded, orange-haired youths, looking like chorus boys from "La Boheme" (if Boheme HAD chorus boys) turn out to be Iowa natives; zoot-suiters, complete with real pleats, hail not from Harlem, but from a Montparnasse garret. Sartre himself, is attractive, well dressed and shows no sign of following one of the tenets of his own cult—not bothering to wash because it isn't worth while. His play "Les Mains Sale" (played on Broadway as "The Red Gloves" with Charles Boyer starring) is still a great success and most movingly acted by Robert le Beal as the Communist Hoederer, Philippe Dumat as the hysterical Huge and pert Marie Olivier as Jessica.

Not everything, however, is old hat in Paris. New ideas are burgeoning furiously. In more frivolous "literary" circles two new magazines have made their debut—"Sensations" and "Mon Flirt" while the good old rag "Le Rire" has been completely rejuvenated a la Esquire with its latest issue containing no less than 18 bare bosoms, 5 totally undraped gals and a welter of decolletages down to HERE. Soon to arrive, unimpeachable sources insist, will be a new publication titled "The Sexual Digest."

In sartorial circles, a new milliner—or should we say, creator of hats, is Jean Berthet who, in addition to designing handsome headgear, concocts truly exciting hats of real, live vegetables. Noele Reautteaut, who designs as well as sells authentic Renaissance jewelry, opened an enchanting shop on the Place Vendome. Made like a grotto, the tiny place is lined, for the most part, with deep green velvet. Mme. Couve de Murville, who's husband has No. 2 spot in the French Foreign Office, shows her exquisitely imaginative lamps in the same boutique. Most popular book in the social set is a tome called "Thirty Years of Dining Out in Paris."

DAR Against Destroying White House

The D. C. Daughters of the American Revolution at a recent State executive meeting unanimously adopted a resolution opposing the razing of the White House and urged that the present structure be keep intact and strengthened by necessary repairs.

Reasons for opposition to the destruction of the present Executive Mansion stated in the resolution are (1) architects and experts on the restoration of the old buildings maintain that the lovely old mansion can be made as safe as any modern structure; (2) this home of all Presidents since it was first occupied by John Adams in 1800, has gathered to itself through the years an atmosphere of sentiment and historic interest that never could be recaptured by any new building.

The resolution further stipulated that the White House structure be kept intact and be made strong and durable with necessary and proper repairs and enforcements.

Copies of the resolution were sent to President Truman, each member of the White House Commission plus the National Society of the DAR and heads of local patriotic societies.

Rose Anthony Kean Bows At Chevy Chase Dance

Miss Rose Anthony Kean made her bow last evening at a small dance at the Chevy Chase Club. A member of an old New York family, she is the daughter of Representative and Mrs. Robert Winthrop Kean. For her coming-out party, she wore a strapless gown of white net, full skirted and caught at the side with white flowers.

Mrs. Kean is in mourning and did not attend the party, but the debutante's aunt, Mrs. John Kean, came down from New York to assist in receiving. Guests were greeted in the large center room of the club and dancing was on the terrace to the music of Meyer Davis and his orchestra.

"Blue-eyed Rosie Kean," a song written by Meyer Davis especially for Miss Kean, was played with other dance music.

"Never met a "Kean"-er girl in all of this town than our
Wonderful blue-eyed Rosie
Alwa-s with a smiling face there's never a frown, that's our
Wonderful blue-eyed Rosie. . . .
She's Fond of all sports, on the basket ball courts, she's the
Cu-test trick you've seen;
So tonight we'll shout "Hoo-ray" and offer the crown to Blue-eyed Rosie, Kean our Queen,
Blue-eyed Rosie Kean.

The debutante has just been graduated from Ft. Timothy's. She will make a tour of Europe this summer, and in the fall she will enter Vassar College. She will make her bow to society in New York next winter.

STANLEY GRAUEL exchanges "hellos" with Mrs. Nat H. Levy (left), gnd Mrs. Garfield Kass at the Dime-a-Day luncheon of the United Jewish Appeal at the Mayflower Hotel yesterday. Mrs. Levy was chairman of the luncheon and Mrs. Kass is chairman of the women's division of the United Jewish Appeal of Washington

500 at Dime-a-Day Lunch Give $42,000 for Jewish Refugees

More than 500 women attended the United Jewish Appeal Dime-a-Day luncheon at the Mayflower Hotel yesterday and contributed approximately $42,000 to transport European refugees to Israel.

The contributions came after a talk by Stanley Grauel, a former Methodist minister who left the pulpit to pursue more actively his work in race relations.

Mr. Grauel told of his experiences on July 10, 1947, when 4500 Jewish refugees of Europe were crowded on an old ship bound for Israel. Terming the exodus a "Boston Massacre," Mr. Grauel said five British destroyers and chursers struck the side of the ship causing 14 casualties. With "potatoes and tin cans" as their only ammunition, the Jewish refugees were transferred to British ships to be returned to concentration camps.

"I am a better Christian and a better American for having lived through that exodus," he said. Mr. Grauel stated emphatically that he was not condemning the British people, but a policy—"the policy preached by Herr Goebbels."

Twice the women applauded the Methodist minister during his talk. The first round of applause came when Mr. Grauel told of the birth of Israel; the second time the entire group rose to its feet as Mr. Grauel concluded his speech with "I'll be glad to return to Israel soon and see the flag of a free and democratic people."

Mrs. Garfield Kass, chairman of the Woman's Division of the United Jewish Appeal of Washington, spoke briefly at the luncheon. Mrs. Nat H. Levy was chairman of the Dime-a-Day luncheon and Mrs. Raphael Tourover introduced the guest speaker.

About Sewing With Nylon

Would you give me any pertinent information on sewing with nylon yard goods? Must I use a nylon thread for stitching it? Must I leave more material for each seam edge or must it be a completely finished seam? Must pressing be with a warm iron only or how can I press in a permanent crease? How practical would nylon material be for play clothes for "misses" skirts, shorts, bras, shirts? C. S. G.

The yard goods departments where nylon fabrics are sold recommend that they be stitched with mercerized thread. The conventional half-inch seam is enough for nylon, but the seam should be cut with pinking shears, hand-whipped or the very edge turned under and stitched on the machine to avoid raveling. Nylon must be pressed only with a warm iron set to the setting for rayon. Because of this, styles which require permanent creases such as pleats are not as good for nylon as they would be in other fabrics.

Because nylon washes and dries so quickly and easily and can be worn without ironing, it is very practical for the uses you suggest. However, nylon does not absorb moisture as readily as some other fabrics and there are those who feel it is not as cool as rayons and cottons for hot summer months.

Will you tell me the address to use for information on a bug or two I find in this house? C. S. G.

For identification, the dead bugs can be sent to Insect Identification, United States Department of Agriculture.

Many thanks to M.Y.M., G.C., and F.B.J., who sent in Crab Imperial recipes for M.M. The large back-fin lump crab meat makes the nicest Crab Imperial, M.Y.M. says, adding that you get the shells, ready to boil out and fill, at one of the stands in the 5th and K st. market.

Both M.Y.M. and G.C. sent in the following recipe for Crab Imperial made with capers:

CRAB IMPERIAL

1 pound cooked crab meat, broken in bite-size pieces
½ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
½ cup mayonnaise
1 tablespoon capers
½ cup dry bread crumbs
paprika

COMBINE crab meat, seasonings, mayonnaise, and capers. Mix carefully to keep crab meat in large pieces. Heap in greased crab shells. Sprinkle with crumbs and paprika. Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees Fahrenheit) for 25 minutes. This recipe serves six persons.

F. B. J. sends the following recipe for Crab Imperial made with white sauce:

CRAB IMPERIAL
(with white sauce)

1 cup rich milk
3 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons flour
¼ teaspoon mustard
Dash cayenne
½ teaspoon paprika
Dash celery seed or celery salt
1 teaspoon Worchester sauce
Salt and black pepper
Green pepper and pimento
SQUEEZE juice of half a lemon over 1 pound crab meat. Chop small green pepper, several sprigs parsley, and 2 pimentos, adding this to sauce, along with crab meat. Cover with bread or cracker crumbs, dot generously with butter, and sprinkle with paprika. Bake in individual shells in moderate (350 degree) oven about 30 minutes. This recipe makes six servings.

How can a musty, damp odor be removed from a small apartment? Airing does not help permanently. A READER.

A permanent musty odor in a room usually results from dampness in the upholstery, rugs, etc. To eliminate the odor from this source, the upholstery and rugs should be thoroughly cleaned or at least completely gone over with the attachments of the vacuum sweeper. Also, they could be gone over with a product on the market which is designed to rid articles of the odor of mildew. This is sold at housewares departments and should be used according to directions which come with the product.

It is true that airing does not help permanently, but if you will regularly air the apartment on breezy, low humidity days during the summer you will surely notice improvement.

Will you tell me how to sterilize baby's bottles and formula equipment in a pressure cooker? I have a 4-quart cooker. Will sterilizing the nipples and bakelite parts at the same time cause faster deterioration than doing so separately in boiling water for three minutes? P. H. S.

Yes, the higher temperatures achieved with pressure will be hard on the nipples and might also be harmful to the rest of the tops, so I suggest you sterilize these by boiling water. The bottles and other glass or metal equipment can be sterilized under pressure, but when you do it be sure to remove from the fire and allow the temperature to drop without putting under cold water. Running cold water on the cooker would reduce the pressure so rapidly that the bottles might break.

Sometimes recipes call for using 10 pounds pressure in pressure cooking. My cooker has only one marker—"cook"—15 pounds, I believe. How can I adjust such recipes to my cooker? B. H.

The makers of all pressure cookers, especially those which cook with only one pressure, recommend that you do not try to adjust recipes but use only those recipes which come with your make of cooker. If you do not have the recipe book for your cooker, I suggest you write to the manufacturer for one or possibly your dealer will be able to get one for you.

Elsinore Calls A U. S. Hamlet

By Richard L. Coe

ON THE DRAMA DESK are five theater programs with the picture of a castle on the cover and the words: "Festspillene Paa Kronborg."

Kronberg Castle is the traditional site of Shakespeare's "Hamlet" at Elsinore, Denmark, and the programs are those of the "Hamlet Festival Plays" under patronage of the Danish royal family. Let's glance at them:

1937, the first year, brought Laurence Olivier, Vivien Leigh and a notable Old Vic Company to open this unique festival. It contains a note by Bernard Shaw, strikingly serious and proud for that implacable curmudgeon. He points out, "at last the tragedy is to be shown in the real country and real castle that Shakespeare imagined but never saw . . . And the audience are begged not to laugh when Horatio says, 'I am more an antique Roman than a Dane.'"

In 1938 Hitler's shadow ruled Europe and, at his request, a German company, from the State Theater of Berlin, went to Elinore's Kronberg, headed by a fine German artist, Gustav Grundgens, still considered by most Germans as the greatest living actor.

In 1938, just before the world crashed, a second English company was invited. John Gielgud brought his own company, which later was to provide such distinguished London productions during the war and was to tour the Allied forces.

Then comes a gap in those programs of mine—one of the most thoughtful gifts it's ever been my fortune to receive, from that valiant worker of the theater, Miss Mary Stewart French of New York and Washington.

When the programs resume, they are, aptly enough, of Norway's national theater, resuming the festival after bitter years of Nazi occupation. Again, the performances are under sponsorship of two governments and the program glitters with international patrons and unusual tributes to the remarkable play about the Danish prince.

My last program is of Finland's national theater, with greetings from President Paasikivi and, unfortunately for me, with Finnish notes about the cast. It's clear, though, that its members spent some years in the army and that, like the Norwegians, they rejoice in a free world to enjoy civilized cultures.

Government Helping

A new program this week will make its appearance in Elsinore's courtyard and, for the first time, an American company will be on that stage, at the request of Denmark with the stirring cooperation of several branches of the American Government and under the production sponsorship of Blevins Davis, of New York and Independence, Mo.

The company will be an amalgamation of the closest we have to a national theater, players chosen by ANTA from the Broadway set and from the Barter Theater, State Theater of Virginia. The script used will be that of the Barter's 200th production, seen last winter in this area. Robert Breen—the protege of the late John Barrymore, NOT the grown movie child Bobby—will be the Hamlet, with Clarence Derwent, Ruth Ford, Walter Abel and Aline MacMahon sharing the leads with the Barter's top players.

The two-week run, already sold out, will be unique in the American theater. As in all "Hamlet" productions, there will be those who like it and those who don't; the pedants, as ever, will have their yuckety-yuk. And you can count on the Soviet press to call it "decadent" or somesuch. But it will surely be an interesting production and an important reminder to the crowds from all corners of the world that the United States does other things besides chewing bubble gum.

I shall, God willing, be in that audience at Elsinore Friday night, and within the next few weeks will be telling you of this new step of the theater in our vigorous, maturing 'and.

JOHN M. COPPINGER will be writing most of the reviews while I'm trekking about Europe, his other duties making it impossible for The Washington Post's bright Orval Hopkins to contribute regularly . . . Coppinger has been teaching English and writing at Catholic and Maryland universities . . . He's written for radio and his three-act play, "A Voice in Rama," was acted this season by Fordham University after its premiere at C. U. . . . During the war, on his twenty-sixth combat mission as a pilot, he was shot down over Austria and was a prisoner for 16 months . . . In the concentration camp he worked on an underground paper, "Pow-Wow" (prison of war—waiting on winning) . . . I hope this is more fun, John . . . Good luck.

"THE WINDOW" is playing the Senator and Apex Theaters today, and the Senator on Friday, Frank M. Boucher tips us.

ROBERT BREEN
. . . protege of Barrymore

The Lyons Den

By Leonard Lyons

NEW YORK.—Daniel Arnstein, the transportation expert who reopened the Burma Road as United States High Commissioner, will leave for Israel in September . . . The name on Gov. Chester Bowles' desk last weekend, for the appointment to the United States Senate as successor to Senator Baldwin of Connecticut, is Elmo Roper, the poll-taker . . . Justice Ferdinand Pecora's nomination as the Democratic candidate for mayor would end the Fusion movement. Pecora is acceptable to the Liberal Party, to almost all the independent leaders in the city—and even to Clendenin Ryan. O'Dwyer believes that with Pecora's campaigning, the Democrats couldn't lose.

Charles Vidor, the Hungarian-born director who directed Rita Hayworth's pictures, was Miss Hayworth's witness at the secret Moslem ceremony between the star and Aly Khan. Don June de Bragazna, the Prince of Orleans, was Aly's witness. The honeymooners expect to be in New York this fall, unless Miss Hayworth can find a movie to make in Europe. . . . For the first time in 20 years, the famed Rainbow Division will hold its reunion in New York, starting on Bastille Day, with ceremonies at Father Duffy's statue. . . . General Motors will set up an assembly plant in Israel. The bankers they questioned said of Israel's credit: "100 per cent."

Elliot Paul, author of "The Last Time I Saw Paris," is back in Paris, visiting some of the characters he wrote about in his book, and collecting material about them for use in his next novel, "Paris Revisited" . . . Paul Henreid has just arrived in New York to make an independent film in which he will be starred. It will be called "Runaway," a story of juvenile delinquent girls, and Henreid has been interviewing 300 young ladies for roles.

After Michael Redgrave finishes making the Noel Coward movie, "The Astonished Heart," he will request a one-year suspension of his movie contract with J. Arthur Rank. Under the terms of this contract, Redgrave's salary is several thousand dollars a week. He wants the year's suspension so that he can play a full season with the Old Vic, where he'll be paid $150 a week . . . Dan Golenpaul has renewed his "Information, Please" agreements with Clifton Fadiman, F. P. A. and John Kieran . . . Admiral Gallery's forthcoming article in the Saturday Evening Post begins: "I may be court-martialed for this."

Bernard Baruch was discussing inflation with some visitors at his home last week. He said that America's plant capacity is large enough to produce sufficient goods for all, but that the inflated prices result from the universal wish to get the goods immediately. "For example?" asked one of the visitors . . . "For example, 'South Pacific,'" replied Mr. Baruch. "If people are patient about it, everybody eventually can get to see it at the regular box-office price. But so many people want to see it at once—results: Brokers ask and receive inflated prices."

Engineers to Elect

The Chemical Engineers Club of Washington will elect new officers at its annual dinner meeting at 8 p. m. today in the Officers' Club of the Naval Gun Factory, 11th and O sts. se. A dinner at 6 p. m. will precede the meeting.

At Least 11 Dead in Floods In Dallas-Fort Worth Area

Dallas, Tex., June 14 (U.P.)—Nearly 12 inches of rain sent flood waters running waist deep in suburban streets in the Dallas-Fort Worth area today and claimed at least 11 lives.

One person was missing and damage was estimated in the millions of dollars as the skies poured down tons of water during a series of spectacular thunderstorms.

It was the second major flood disaster in the area in recent weeks.

The storms which began last night left six persons dead in Dallas County, four of them drowning victims; claimed four lives in Tarrant Count (Fort Worth), and brought death to still another in Denton County, adjoining Dallas County on the north.

In addition, the deluge caused the derailment of a Frisco freight train at Farmers Branch, north of here, wrecking 21 of the train's 40 cars.

Torrents swept the area and sent Duck Creek running wild through the northeast suburb of Garland, flooding some 200 homes and business houses in that thriving town of 8000.

Damages at Garland alone were estimated at one million dollars by Dallas County Sheriff Bill Decker.

Water ran waist-deep in Carrollton, another Dallas suburb, and caused flash-flood damage in Rockwall, Richardson and Farmers Branch.

The Dallas Rains started late yesterday and hammered throughout the night with almost no interruption. But despite the tremendous rainfall, it was not expected there would be a recurrence of the major flooding condition on the Trinity which caused a disaster in Fort Worth a month ago.

A new storm hit Forth Worth this morning after that city had been spared in last night's downpours.

Richardson reported the heaviest rainfall, measuring 11.80 inches unofficially in a standard-type gauge up to dawn.

British Held Ready To Help Yugoslavs

Albanian Shot

Communists In Bulgaria Expel Leader

Belgrade, Yugoslavia, June 14 (AP).—Traicho Kostov, former Vice Premier of Bulgaria, has been expelled from the Communist Party, it was announced today in Sofia.

The party newspaper, Rabotnichesko Delo, said the central committee of the Bulgarian Party has released Kostov from his committee post, and expelled him for failure to make "serious and sincere self-criticism of his errors."

In April, when Kostov was ousted as Vice Premier, the party accused him of having nationalist tendencies, and an unfriendly attitude toward the Soviet Union. It accused him of seeking to sow dissension in party ranks.

The party, attacking him along lines similar to those taken by the Cominform nations against Premier Marshal Tito of Yugoslavia, also charged Kostov sought to displace Premier Georgi Dimitrov.

From Albania, the Tirana radio announced that Former Deputy Premier Koci Xoxe was executed Saturday by a firing squad. The broadcast said Xoxe was charged with having been "an Albanian people's nemy and a notorious Trotskyite."

Xoxe, accused of siding with Yugoslavia in the year-old Cominform squabble, was convicted of "treasonous activities."

A Yugoslav spokesman, commenting on the latest purges in Cominform countries, said various leaders were being ousted for advocating equality among Communist-dominated nations in western Europe.

Milovan Djilas, minister without portfolio and a member of Tito's Politburo, called the purges a "scare" campaign designed to frighten those who favor an equal rights policy.

In a signed article in Borba, Yugoslav government mouthpiece, Djilas said the Xoxe case is only one of several recent examples. He mentioned Laszlo Rajk, Hungarian Minister for Foreign Affairs, who has been released from his post without explanation.

London, June 14 (AP).—Well informed sources today said Britain is about ready to go to the economic aid of Marshal Tito of Yugoslavia, for whom Cominform strategists are reported sharpening the ax.

The informants said "questions of policy" which arose in early stages of negotiations in Belgrade have been settled and Britain is ready to get down to brass tacks on a projected five-year 800 million dollar trade agreement.

Presumably the policy questions were settled in Paris the past two days, when Sir Charles Peake, British Ambassador to Yugoslavia, and Marko Ristic, Yugoslav Ambassador to Paris, conferred separately with Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin.

Trade With U. S. Discussed

Cavendish Cannon, United States Ambassador to Yugoslavia, also flew to Paris yesterday to see Secretary of State Acheson and Marshall Plan administrators on ways of increasing trade with Yugoslavia.

Cannon said Yugoslavia had no "urgent need" for help under the European Recovery Program, but was "trying to get a loan from the International Bank."

These conferences took place as Warsaw dispatches quoted authoritative informants as saying a Cominform meeting was winding up in Poland with Tito as the top problem.

The informants were quoted as saying more of Yugoslavia's trade with the East would be cut off and other squeeze measures adopted.

Trade Pact to Expire

Tito, who insists he is a loyal Communist, nevertheless has remained determined to fight for the right of a Communist to remain independent of Moscow. Considerable deviation from the Kremlin line in other Soviet statellite states is generally traced to the example set by the Yugoslav chief.

Britain now has a 12-month one-hundred twenty million dollar trade agreement with Yugoslavia which expires in September.

British Plan Conference On Middle East 'ERP'

London, June 14 (U.P.).—Foreign Secretary Bevin has summoned all Britain's Middle East envoys to London for a special conference on the possibility of a "Marshall Plan" for the Middle East, it was learned today. The conference has been called for the last week of July.

Other participants in the conference will be J. M. Troutbeck, chief of the British Middle East Office in Cairo; Sir Reginald Champion, Governor of Aden, who is also special envoy to a large number of sheikdoms in the south of Arabia, and Sir R. Hay, British political resident in the Persian Gulf area.

Institute Due To Add 2000 County Pupils

Expansion of the National Institute of Health in Bethesda will add 2000 children to the Montgomery County school enrollment by 1960, it was estimated yesterday.

A survey conducted by the institute showed that peak employment at the institute is expected to reach 4500 persons by 1958.

Of these, 80 per cent will want to settle in Montgomery County and 70 per cent will probably buy homes, the report said.

The report was turned over to the Montgomery County Council at its meeting yesterday in Rockville. The purpose of the report was to assist the council in future planning.

The council voted to request the Maryland State Roads Commission to eliminate a traffic hazard at River and Burdette rds., near Bethesda, where William A. Julian, Treasurer of the United States, was killed in a traffic collision May 29. Cost of the grading project was estimated at $6000.

At the request of County Agent O. W. Anderson, the council authorized a $5000 appropriation for the county's annual Japanese beetle campaign.

Court Order Halts Auction Of Property

The auctioning of two pieces of property by Montgomery County officials because of unpaid taxes was halted yesterday by court injunction.

The auction sale is scheduled for 10 a. m. today in the Courthouse at Rockville. Four other properties not affected by court intervention will be sold. Owner of one of the two properties on which sale was delayed is E. Brooke Lee, county Democratic organization leader. The other property is owned by Mr. and Mrs. Albert Rogers.

Both pieces of land in question are lots at Takoma Park. About $115 in back taxes is due on the lot owned by Lee and about $679 on the other lot, officials said.

Owners of both tracts contend they tried recently to pay all delinquent taxes and interest due, but their offer was refused. Lee said he is still the legal owner of the property because it was illegally advertised for the tax sale at which the land was purchased by the county government in 1938.

Montgomery Lets Contracts For 5 Schools

A $586,000 contract for five new Montgomery County elementary schools of eight classrooms each was awarded yesterday by the County Board of Education.

The construction firm of Walter B. Avery of Washington won the contract, which also includes $41,000 for ground work around the schools.

The schools are expected to be ready for occupancy within six months.

The board, meeting in Rockville, awarded a $63,244 contract to the Spradlin Construction Co., also of Washington, for a four-classroom addition to Somerset Elementary, Bethesda, to be completed in 150 days.

Average cost per classroom for the five new schools will be about $13,625, according to Assistant School Superintendent Richard Carpenter. The same cost last year, he said, would have been about $20,000. The drop was attributed to lower construction costs and standardization of design.

The five new schools are: Viers Mill Village, at Dahill and Joseph Mill rds. in Viers Mill Village subdivision; Oakland Terrace, on Plyers Mill rd., in Oakland Terrace; Rock Creek Forest, Colston dr. and Grubb rd., in Rock Creek Forest; East Rockville, Woodburn rd. and Grandin ave., in Rockville, and Rolling Terrace, Bayfield and Hood sts. in Rolling Terrace.

Reds Believed Seeking More Heavy Industry

London, June 14 (U.P.).—Appointment to Premier Stalin's inner cabinet of Ivan Tevadrosovich Tevosian was interpreted today as an indication Russia will put even greater stress on boosting Soviet heavy industry.

Tevosian is the third expert on heavy industry to enter the Council of Vice Premiers since 1946. His appointment by the Supreme Soviet was announced by the Soviet news agency Tass, which said Anatoli Kuzmin replaced him as Minister of Metallurgical Industry.

Residents of the Falkland Apartments, 16th st. and Colesville rd., Silver Spring, Md., will hold a garden show and tea in the apartment auditorium today.

The show will be from 11 a. m. to 8 p. m. Tea will be served from 2 to 5 p. m. Mrs. Cyrus S. Kauffman is chairman of the show and Mrs. Samuel Boykin is cochairman.

Chest Officials Named

W. Carroll Beatty, Hyattsville attorney of University Park, and J. Robert Sherwood of Mount Rainier, treasurer of the Prince Georges Bank & Trust Co., have been appointed cochairmen of the special gifts committee for the 1950 fund drive of the Prince Georges County Community Chest.

Bloodmobile at Groveton

A Red Cross Bloodmobile will be stationed at the Penn Daw Fire Station in Groveton, Va., today to accept blood donations from 10 a. m. to 4 p. m. It had been announced earlier that the Bloodmobile would be stationed in Falls Church on that date.

$215,000 Estate Of J. G. Bell Is Filed in Probate

An estate valued at $215,000 was left by John Gibbs Bell, 55, executive vice president of Peoples Drug Stores, who died May 26, it was disclosed yesterday in a probate petition filed in District Court.

Under the terms of the will, the bulk of the estate will go to Mr. Bell's widow, Anna, his only survivor. Of the total, $190,000 is in securities.

BRENT

Poet Turns Attention to 'Prose-aic' Matters

Rhymaster G. A. Fisher of 1442 Spring rd. nw., notes that an attempt is being made to break the will of the man who left his money to Winchester's school children. He says:

"I suppose the lawyers think it'll be as easy as taking candy away from a kid."

MORAL VICTORY

The next time the stock market manages to confine its daily losses to less than a point, the harried Wall Street Bulls will probably cheer the session as a "rally."

GIVE-AWAYS

"Four black female pups, part cocker, 7 weeks old." (Shepherd 4935.)

"Accumulation of pint Mason jars, refrigerator jars and tumblers." (Shepherd 2379.)

HOW'S THAT AGAIN?

"Bandit Flees When Employe Gives Him Slip," says a recent headline. And Al Sisson of 4609

24th ave., North Woodridge, Md., can't resist asking:

"A female employe, no doubt?"

FLAG DAY

When Capt. Warren F. Lloyd, USMC, in charge of the Washington Recruiting District, went by Union Station yesterday he suspected that there was something amiss in the arrangement of the flags there.

Flag Day was being celebrated by the display of two American Flags and one District Flag. The District emblem was on the center staff; the National colors were flying from the right and left masts.

Captain Lloyd assigned Sergt. Charles D. Prindle of the Public Information Branch to investigate. Sergeant Prindle's research corroborated his captain's suspicion.

Public Law 623, 1942, states that the National colors are never to be flown to the left of State or other flags (as judged from the position of the viewer).

"The District Flag should have been on the left-hand mast," says Sergeant Prindle, "with the National Flags on the center and right-hand masts. Or, as an alternative they could have used the American Flag in the center, flanked by two District Flags. But the District Flag in the center, flanked by two National Flags, is definitely wrong. The Marine Corps likes to keep these things straight—because the Marines are two years older than the flag."

Today, look up into the sky.
Observe that flag, still waving high.
Think well of all the years beyond,
Then go and buy that Savings Bond.

G. A. Fisher.

THESE CHANGING TIMES

Dot Wolfe Richardson of 5001 N. 15th st., Arlington, Va., is puzzled by the Coplon trial testimony about the folks who were alleged to have gone about their apartment sans clothes.

"Does that make them Communists," asks Dot, "or nudists?"

I dunno, Dot—but I'm so old I can remember the time when "nudist" would have carried the greater stigma.

OWNER MAKES DOLLARS; HORSE MAKES SENSE

Nate Leiderman of 1508 41st st. se. wonders if you've heard the story of the horse who pleaded with his fellow contestants to let him win a certain race.

"Why are you so anxious to win today?" asked the other horses, and the first steed replied:

"Because my owner has a lot of dough riding on this one, and he says that if I win it, he'll give me a big bonus. He's promised me 10 bales of hay—and that ain't money, you know."

ADD SIGNS

Mrs. S. H. Horne of 9112 Alton pkwy., Silver Spring, Md., reports that a Silver Spring jewelry store displays a going-out-of-business sign which reads:

"Auction Sale — Contentious — Starts 1 p. m."

THOUGHT FOR TODAY

W. M. Devine of 234 F st. nw. says that every Government worker will find the secret of getting ahead printed right on the door to his office: "Push" and "Pull."

Acheson Keeps Truman Posted

By Drew Pearson

White House insiders marvel at the way Secretary of State Acheson reports to President Truman on almost every detail of the Paris conference. The White House is almost as up-to-date on what the foreign ministers are talking about as Acheson's own assistants in Paris.

Pearson

Acheson tells friends that he learned about White House reporting from Jimmie Byrnes; for it was Byrnes' failure to send detailed reports to the President that led to his first break with Truman. Acheson relates how, when Byrnes attended the Moscow conference as Secretary of State, he sent almost no reports to Truman. Thereby hangs part of the still-untold mystery of why the popular and sometimes impulsive Jimmie Byrnes suddenly resigned.

Acheson, who was acting Secretary of State while Byrnes was in Moscow in 1946, has told part of the story to close friends. During that time he saw the President five times a week, in addition to being summoned on other occasions, and was constantly embarrassed at not being able to report on what was happening at Moscow.

Several times Acheson cabled Byrnes asking for reports, but sometimes he never even got an acknowledgement. Acheson figured that the messages went to Byrnes's devoted secretary, Miss Cassie Connors, who probably reasoned that Byrnes was tired and shouldn't be bothered with reporting to Washington.

At one time, Byrnes cabled: "Tell Maud (Mrs. Byrnes) that my cold is better." But he cabled little or no information to Truman.

Newsmen Scoop Government

What got Truman particularly irked was that the final protocol signed at Moscow was broadcast by the Moscow radio long before Byrnes cabled it to the State Department. Therefore, the President, who had flown out to Independence, Mo., read the final results in the morning papers almost before he got a report from the State Department.

Truman was further irked when Byrnes, flying back from Moscow, sent a message to Bill Benton, Assistant Secretary of State for Public Information, telling him to arrange for a radio broadcast in which Byrnes would report to the American people.

When Byrnes arrived, Acheson went to the airport to meet him and, while driving home, Byrnes casually mentioned his forthcoming broadcast. "What broadcast?" asked Acheson. Byrnes told him.

Argument in Limousine

Knowing that Truman was irked, Acheson hinted that it would be wise to report to the President before going on the air.

Truman, however, had gone down the Potomac on the yacht Williamsburg—perhaps as a deliberate rebuff to Byrnes. This made the Secretary of State highly indignant, and Acheson had a hard time explaining that this was Truman's only way of escaping a constant stream of callers. Truman, he explained, had been just as busy as Byrnes.

This led to a heated argument between Byrnes and Acheson while driving from the airport; but, in the end, the Secretary of State flew down the Potomac to see Truman, got stranded by bad weather, and became further annoyed when Acheson implied that he hadn't fully reported the Moscow proceedings. To settle the argument, Acheson had a complete set of the telegrams he sent to Byrnes, and the replies Byrnes had sent him, placed before Truman so he could judge for himself.

This incident was the first time the sparks flew between Truman and Byrnes. Things calmed down later. But the real fact is that Byrnes' scanty reporting of the Moscow conference started the chain of circumstances that led to his sudden resignation.

Note—Acheson tells friends how Gen. George C. Marshall, in contrast to Byrnes, always answered every telegram sent by the State Department or White House during international conferences. At Moscow, Marshall detailed a special secretary to acknowledge all letters and telegrams. Sometimes the telegram merely informed the White House that Marshall would be stuck in conference for the next 3 hours and therefore couldn't answer. Real difference between the two men was that Byrnes played diplomacy by ear, didn't have time to send reports. Marshall, on the other hand, couldn't play diplomacy except by paying close attention to the score.
